135 DELEGATES PLEDGED

Only 15 for Roosevelt, but North Carolina, Texas, and Oregon Seem Sure for Him.

EAST IS AGAINST HIM

Also Many Mid-Western States and the South, Say Dispatches to The Times.

Reports from nearly every State of the Union, except those which have already chosen delegates, as telegraphed yesterday to THE NEW YORK TIMES, indicate an overwhelming sentiment among Republicans for the renomination of President Taft. Even in the Far Western States, where Col. Roosevelt is said to be the strongest, the party leaders in some instances are not willing to force the issue. Rather than risk defeat before the Chicago convention, they are trying to persuade the Taft adherents to divide the delegates equally or to consent to an uninstructed delegation. This is notably true in Wyoming and Montana. Gov. Hadley of Missouri, a Roosevelt champion, has twice suggested a division there, but the Taft men spurned his offer.

The only States that seem certain for Roosevelt are Texas, where the National Republican Committeeman, Cecil Lion, who is also the State Chairman, is the chief boomer for the Colonel; North Carolina, and possibly Oregon and North Dakota. Oklahoma has already instructed 14 delegates for him.

Such States as Iowa, really the pioneer in progressive politics, and Indiana, always doubtful, and Illinois, where the Roosevelt boom was first launched, are strongly for the President.

In New York State Col. Roosevelt himself is claiming at least twenty of the delegates but State Chairman Koenig declares that the Colonel is too optimistic. While Mr. Koenig, who is a strong Taft man, has made no definite estimate as to how the full State delegation will be divided, he said only last Saturday that President Taft would have all the delegates from New York City with the possible exception of one — Controller Prendergast, who is for Col. Roosevelt.

Thus far 135 delegates are claimed for President Taft, with 13 for Roosevelt and 2 for Senator Cummins. Here is the table as prepared by the Taft headquarters in Washington:

| | Taft. | Roosevelt. | Cummins. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Indiana | 4 | .. | .. |
| South Carolina | 14 | .. | .. |
| Oklahoma | 4 | 14 | .. |
| Florida | 12 | .. | .. |
| Georgia | 22 | .. | .. |
| Virginia | 22 | .. | .. |
| Philippines | 2 | .. | .. |
| District of Columbia | 2 | .. | .. |
| Tennessee | 14 | .. | .. |
| Alabama | 18 | .. | .. |
| Michigan | 2 | .. | .. |
| Missouri | 4 | .. | .. |
| Iowa | 8 | .. | 2 |
| New Mexico | 7 | 1 | .. |
| Totals | 135 | 15 | 2 |

Contests are reported in the First Georgia, the Third Virginia, the Second and Fifth Missouri, and the Third Oklahoma. These districts at the regular conventions have instructed for President Taft.

Maine's Vote Divided.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., March 17.—Conflicting statements and counter-claims have so confused the Taft-Roosevelt fight in this State as to make an accurate forecast of the result difficult.

In the rural sections, especially in Aroostook County, the great potato-growing region, the feeling against the President on account of his reciprocity policy is said to be very strong, although the Taft supporters say that this has been exaggerated. The Taft sentiment seems to predominate in the cities, especially in Portland, where the attempt to organize the Roosevelt supporters has not been very successful. It is conceded that the First District will elect Taft delegates.

The Roosevelt boomers are those who supported Col. Frederick Hale for the Republican nomination for Congress against Congressman Hinds, and this factional quarrel has overshadowed the main issue and enlisted the Hinds support for the President.

On the whole, the chances rather favor a solid Taft delegation from this State, but the Roosevelt sentiment is strong and may sweep the field outside this district.

The sixty-odd delegates to the State Convention already chosen are nearly equally divided. The convention will be held in Bangor on April 10, and will consist of about 1,000 delegates. The district conventions, except the First, will be held in Bangor on the same day.

CONCORD, N. H., March 17.—Nineteenths of the active political leaders among the Republicans of New Hampshire are working for the renomination of President Taft. They are making plans to give him an ovation on Tuesday, when he visits Nashua, Manchester, and Concord, which will convince everybody of the preponderance of Taft sentiment.

On the other hand, Gov. Bass and some, not all, of his associate Progressive Republicans are stumping the State for Roosevelt, and are cheered with enthusiasm by large crowds everywhere. Their one hope, for which they are making a vigorous fight, is the adoption of a Presidential primary by the Republican State Committee at its meeting on March 27.

With a primary in force the Roosevelt people would have some chance of getting some delegates from New Hampshire. Under the old convention system they have no chance whatever.

MOB SEIZES GIRL'S ASSAILANT

Farmers of Pleasant Valley Finally Overawed by Sheriff.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 17.—Attacked by a farmhand while walking to her home at Van Wagoner Station after attending Sunday school at Pleasant Valley this morning, Miss Elsa Hartje, 18 years old, daughter of Jacob Hartje, a well-to-do farmer, was seriously hurt. Her assailant, Walter Davis, 30 years old, is in the county jail, having been rescued by the authorities from a posse of twenty-five angry farmers who were determined to lynch him.

Under Sheriff Frederick C. Hornbeck, accompanied by two Deputy Sheriffs and a local constable, arrived on the scene in time to save Davis from the mob, and hurried the assailant to a cell.

Miss Hartje was losing consciousness after a desperate struggle with her assailant when Frank Ridgeway, a newspaper carrier, drove up. Davis fled, and Ridgeway lifted the girl into his wagon and drove to the home of William James. He telephoned to the Sheriff's office in this city, and Hornbeck and a Deputy Sheriff responded.

The news of the attack spread and within half an hour a band of farmers armed with shotguns went in pursuit of the fugitive. Davis left the highway and ran across the fields. The posse soon took up his trail and went in pursuit. Hornbeck received reinforcements and with two deputies and a constable joined in the chase. He realized the temper of the farmers and feared the assailant would be killed. The pursuers followed Davis five miles before they overtook him.

In a last desperate effort to escape Davis plunged into Wappinger's Creek, which is flooded, and swam across. He surrendered only when bullets began to rain about him. Davis was cornered behind a rail fence in a thicket near the creek. He made a desperate fight and tried to pull a revolver.

The farmers' posse attempted to drag the prisoner away, and the Under Sheriff and his Deputies were obliged to draw their pistols and threaten to shoot.

The prisoner was taken to Miss Hartje's home, and she identified him as her assailant. Miss Hartje said that she was walking along the highway, reading a Sunday school paper, when she saw Davis ahead of her, walking slowly. As she passed him, he threw himself upon her and bore her to the ground. With his hands at her throat, he tried to choke her, and in the struggle she was cut and bruised. The attack took place half a mile west of Pleasant Valley.

MRS. GRACE READS BIBLE.

Imprisoned Woman Discards Magazines and Turns to Religion.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 17.—Disturbed over the reports of the serious condition of her mother, Mrs. Daisy Ulrich Opie Grace, the Philadelphia woman held in prison here on the charge of attempting to murder her husband, has turned her attention from magazines and problem books to the Bible.

All to-day, when she was not in conference with the lawyers over her case, she was reading the Bible and praying for the safe recovery of Mrs. Ulrich. The routine of the day was broken by a visit from Dr. S. P. Wiggins, pastor of the First Methodist Church, the call being requested by Mrs. Grace. It was only a short visit because of other engagements which took the pastor's time, but it seemed to be very comforting to the prisoner. The Rev. Mr. Wiggins was much impressed with Mrs. Grace.

"She is a good woman," he said after he left the prison, "and it is hard to believe that she could be guilty of any crime."

The Grace mystery has been discussed in a number of pulpits. Prominent among the ministers who have discussed the case is Dr. Dunbar Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church. He reviewed the case to-night and strongly objected to the attention paid to it in the press, when much of the space might be more profitably employed, he thought, with religious articles or with educational matters.

Believing that Mr. Grace will not die immediately, and pointing out that President Garfield, who was shot in the same way, lived for eighty days, Mrs. Grace's lawyers will hold a conference with the physicians to-day, and if they agree that the end is several weeks off an application for bond will be made. Mrs. Grace stands ready to give bond in any amount asked.

TROLLEY CAR MOVES A HOUSE

Knocks Frame Building from Its Foundation After Jumping a Switch.

A Newark and Hackensack trolley car, southbound, jumped the switch in Main Street, Carlstadt, N. J., at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The car ran over the curb and crashed into the ice cream store of Mrs. Meada Burhop, a widow, who lives in the frame structure with her two daughters. The family was at breakfast in the rear of the store when the crash came, and they were carried along with the building, which was moved some eight inches from its foundation.

The trolley car carried away the corner of the butcher shop owned by August Drombroski, and then stuck fast in the narrow alley between the two stores. There were two passengers on the trolley car at the time, and they were not injured. None of the Burhop family was hurt.

The trolley track runs down grade at the point where the accident occurred and the car was going at a high speed. It took a gang of men three hours to return the derailed car to the tracks.

TOOK MOTHER'S DIAMONDS.

Boy Needed Money to Finance His Young Pugilist Friend.

Intent upon becoming manager for a boy friend who aspires to be a pugilist, Michael Sacher, the nineteen-year-old son of Mrs. Rebecca Sacher of 130 South Second Street, Brooklyn, found that the necessary funds were lacking. On Saturday morning, so Mrs. Sacher says, she left a pair of $1,500 diamond earrings on the sideboard in the dining room. Later when she returned for them they were gone. Then she discovered that her son was missing, too.

The police were notified of the loss of the jewels. Meanwhile Detective Kenney of the West Thirtieth Street Station found Michael and his pugilist friend, as it chanced, in the act of pawning the earrings at Thirty-eighth Street and Sixth Avenue, and took them to the station.

Michael's friend said he was Louis Kalson of 146 South Second Street, Brooklyn, known to the ring as "Young Stanley." The youths were equipped for a journey, and had a complete fighting outfit. They were arraigned before Magistrate Freschi in the Yorkville Court yesterday morning on the complaint of Mrs. Sacher, and were held for the Grand Jury in $2,000 bail each.

MINERS WILL QUIT WORK ON APRIL 1

But Coal Operators and Men May Get Together Then and Agree Upon Terms.

STILL TIME TO AVERT STRIKE

Soft Coal Operators Waiting for the Result of the Conference in Cleveland on Wednesday.

Belief gained ground yesterday that the anthracite mine workers' conference committee and the committee of operators will get together again after the general suspension of work at the mines on April 1, when the present agreement expires. It was stated by both sides that there is no appearance of strained relations so far between the operators and the mine workers, and that if any new proposal is brought forward negotiations which might lead to a settlement still would be possible.

E. E. Loomis, vice president of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, said last evening that as far as he can find there is no very strong sentiment in favor of a strike among the rank and file of the mine workers. Nor is there any feeling of bitterness on the part of the men or their leaders that would prevent future conferences. "The situation was just as bad three years ago, but we got together later and a settlement was reached. Of course, I cannot predict that matters may end the same way this time. No one can tell what a day may bring forth."

As to the local condition, he said, there was what would be a normal supply in a year when no strike was looked forward to, but that was all. While a great deal of coal had been mined during the past year the consumption had been greater than usual, owing to the length and severity of the winter. As to the April discount on anthracite of fifty cents a ton, which is increased ten cents a ton each succeeding month until winter prices are reached again, he said:

"No circulars will be sent out as to discounts until the trouble is over, if we are to have any trouble. The larger coal carrying companies have not increased prices on account of the danger of a strike. If there have been any increases in prices they have been made by independent concerns."

Questioned about the proposal of Representative Lee of Pennsylvania to bring the mines under the operation of the Erdman Mediation act, which only applies to railroads at present, he said:

"The Erdman act may have prevented strikes by bringing both sides together. It can at least be used for this purpose, and in that way lessen the chances of strikes, but the findings of arbitrators under this act are not mandatory."

Soft coal operators said the situation has not changed much in a week. They are awaiting the first conference between the bituminous operators and the mine workers on March 20. Henry C. Fleming, Chairman of the Bituminous Coal Trade Association, representing the bituminous operators, said that no meeting of the association has been held on the situation, and that none will be called until something new develops.

Frank J. Hayes, Vice President of the United Mine Workers, who was in this city yesterday, said that it was for the anthracite operators to prevent a strike. Unless they recede from their present position work will stop on April 1. As to the bituminous situation everything would be guesswork until the conference in Cleveland this week between the bituminous miners and the operators took place and its result was known.

A recent issue of the organ of the Lake Seaman's Union quotes a paper which, it says, is the organ of the Illinois coal operators, as expressing a fear of a defensive alliance between the railroad brotherhoods and the mine workers, which would forbid railroad employes to aid in the shipment of coal not mined by union laborers. According to the paper referred to this alliance also would forbid the miners from mining coal for use by any railroads in which the union trainmen are on strike. The mine workers are said to have declared in favor of such an alliance.

It is known, however, that the railroad brotherhoods never engage in sympathetic strikes, and, with the exception of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, none of these brotherhoods is connected with the American Federation of Labor, with which the United Mine Workers are affiliated.

GIRL HURT IN PARK RUNAWAY.

Miss Teale Is Thrown Heavily After a Mad Gallop.

The Sunday afternoon throng in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, witnessed a spectacular runaway, ending in the rider, Miss Cecilia Teale of 358 Lafayette Avenue, being thrown and badly injured.

Miss Teale, who is the daughter of R. E. J. C. Teale, a rubber manufacturer at 69 Warren Street, started with several friends early in the afternoon for a horseback ride in the park. She had a new mount given to her as a birthday present last week.

As the riders entered the park through the Plaza entrance the horse became frightened at the automobiles. Miss Teale managed to control him, however, and she and her friends rode on through the park.

Close to the Coney Island Avenue entrance to the park the horse again took fright at the machines coming in and started on a mad gallop through the park. Miss Teale finally dropped the reins and clung to the saddle. Near the Ocean Avenue entrance the horse swerved suddenly into a meadow and Miss Teale was thrown. An automobile was stopped by Bicycle Policeman McNamara, who had been chasing the runaway, and the girl was taken to the Seney Hospital, suffering from lacerations, bruises, and nervous shock. The physicians say she will recover.

DR. MARY WALKER ILL.

Stricken on a Train Coming from Albany and Is Taken to a Hospital.

Dr. Mary A. Walker, the advocate of woman's rights, is ill in the Presbyterian Hospital, and her condition is said to be serious. She had an engagement to make an address before the Betterment League in this city yesterday afternoon, but this had to be canceled. Relatives at Oswego, N. Y., were notified of her illness.

Dr. Walker was in Albany last week, and on Saturday she left there to come to this city. On the way she became ill, and on her arrival here was taken directly from the Grand Central Terminal in a taxicab to the hospital. There it was said last night that her illness was due to overwork.

10-MINUTE WIRELESS AMAZES ENGLISHMEN

"GREAT," SAYS AVEBURY

Lord Blythe, Elated at Sharing Honors with Lawson, Says Results Pass His Comprehension.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—Lord Avebury expressed great appreciation when THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent informed him to-day that the wireless message he sent from here reached New York on Saturday night in twenty-two minutes. For a moment he appeared almost unable to speak, merely saying, "Great! Great!"

When told that Lord Blythe's message was received by THE TIMES in New York ten minutes after it was filed here, he exclaimed:

"Really, can it be possible? It is a very remarkable achievement."

Lord Avebury added that the tests reflected the highest credit on the British and American telegraph authorities, while as for Mr. Marconi, what more could he say than has been already said in commendation of his wonderful work.

Later I saw Lord Blythe, who was highly elated that he shared with the Hon. Harry Lawson the record of a ten-minute message to New York. He said:

"It is a curious coincidence, but I am on a Parliamentary committee with Lawson, of which we are joint Treasurers. It is so gratifying to know that we share the honors of the present occasion. I am very glad to hear of the success of THE NEW YORK TIMES's test, although I must frankly say that such great results quite pass my comprehension.

"I did not say a word in my message but what I feel from the bottom of my heart. It is magnificent."

The tests of the Marconi transatlantic wireless telegraph referred to in the above dispatches were made on Saturday night for the edification of the guests at a dinner given in the Tower Hall of the Times Building to Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless telegraph, and Godfrey Isaacs, Managing Director of the Marconi Company. Congratulatory messages addressed to Mr. Marconi, Mr. Isaacs, and THE TIMES were received from London and read during the dinner. Through the co-operation of the British Postmaster General, who directs the British telegraph system, and with the aid of the Western Union Company, which has long given THE TIMES a practically instantaneous service from Glace Bay, the American transatlantic wireless terminal, land-line delays on both sides of the ocean were reduced to a minimum.

The best record made was 10 minutes from London to THE TIMES office in New York. The senders of the congratulatory messages and the time of transmission in each case were: Earl Grey, former Governor General of Canada, time 20 minutes; Lord Avebury, time 22 minutes; Lord Blythe, time 10 minutes; Sir Rufus Isaacs, Attorney General of Great Britain, time 14 minutes, and the Hon. Harry Lawson, editor of The London Daily Telegraph, time 10 minutes.

While the dinner was in progress one of the guests, at 7:47 o'clock, sent a wireless message to London, to which he received a reply at 9:17 o'clock. The reply was transmitted from London in 27 minutes.

Almost equally remarkable speed was accomplished in the transmission of THE TIMES's regular wireless news dispatches on Saturday night, several being received from London in from twenty to forty-three minutes. One from Berlin came through from London in twenty minutes, which was just one-third of the time consumed in its transmission from Berlin to London. Another, from Paris, came from London in twenty-one minutes. This message was telephoned from Paris to THE TIMES's London office. The telephoning began at 1 o'clock Sunday morning in Paris; at 1:20 the message was started from London, and at 8:41 Saturday night it was in THE TIMES's home office, having occupied just forty-one minutes in its entire journey by telephone, telegraph, and wireless from Paris to New York.

Another Paris dispatch was forty-two minutes on the way from London to New York, and a message from Rome came through from London in forty-three minutes.

FOR MARCONI HEADQUARTERS

County Council Likely to Lease Gaiety Restaurant to Company.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—The Improvements Committee of the London County Council recommends that the council accept the Marconi Company's offer to lease the premises known as the Gaiety Restaurant, a fine building in the Strand, next door to the Gaiety Theatre, which was formerly used as a restaurant and private hotel.

The Marconi Company offers a yearly rent of $42,500 for ninety-nine years, the lease beginning March 25, on condition that it is allowed to execute such internal alterations as are required to adapt the premises to its business.

The building, which is thus likely to become the Marconi headquarters, cost $500,000 to erect. It has been a white elephant on the hands of the London County Council since the Gaiety Restaurant Company surrendered the lease a year ago.

MAY ORDER TROOPS TO PURSUE OUTLAWS

Gov. Mann's Representatives Choose Camp Site in Vicinity of Devil's Den.

PREPARING FOR A BATTLE

Posse Finds Trail of Floyd Allen's Nephew in Mountains—Virginia Lawyers Form Combination.

Special to The New York Times.

HILLSVILLE, Va., March 17.—Two thousand feet above sea level, among the crags of the Blue Ridges, the posse of detectives and volunteers is gradually drawing its lines closer around Devil's Den, where are hiding the Allen clansmen who last Thursday demonstrated their contempt of the law by slaying Judge, Prosecuting Attorney, Sheriff, and jurors of Carroll County.

If the outlaws continue to defy arrest by the posse, either by armed resistance or by their mere ability to evade discovery in the mountain fastness, Gov. Mann will send the militia after them. This fact became known to-day when representatives of the Governor arrived here to select a camp site for the troops. Gov. Mann is on record as declaring that the Allens must be taken.

The county authorities are working in harmony with the State, and orders may soon be issued for several companies of militia, if not for the search, certainly for the formal arraignment of the prisoners.

Dynamite may also be used in the man-hunt. Some of the authorities here are of the opinion that the only way to disclose the exact hiding place of the outlaws to the pursuers who are unacquainted with the paths and passes of the highlands, will be to dynamite the mountain side.

Desperate Battle is Feared.

It is a foregone conclusion, though, that when the outlaws eventually are encountered, whether by posse or by troops, there will be a battle. Those who know the Allen tribe know they will fight to the death. Hunting them is dangerous work, with all the advantages they have in their favor. Concealed as they are behind the overhanging precipices of Devil's Den, with provisions and ammunition in plenty, they will be able to fire with deadly aim upon their advancing enemies, with small chance of being sighted in return.

Over the rain channeled mountain side the posse skulked to-day, but to no avail. They conducted their movements in the broad glare of a hot sun, which, however, helped to dry the muddy roads, making prospects for to-morrow more encouraging.

It was learned to-day that the trial of the Allens will not be gone into on March 26. The Grand Jury was adjourned until that day in the hope that additional light might be thrown on the facts surrounding the murders and that further indictments might be presented. Acting Commonwealth's Attorney S. Floyd Landreth will ask that the March term be adjourned on the 26th and a special term called for some day in April.

Will Not Aid Brother.

There was much speculation as to the attitude of "Jack" Allen, regarded as the real leader of the Allen family. He was not a participant in Thursday's affray. He is worth about $50,000, and because of a fight which he had several years ago with his brother Floyd, now in jail in Roanoke, it was not thought he would lend financial aid to the defense. "Jack" Allen himself settled doubt on this point to-night, when he was seen at his home seven miles from Hillsville, by declaring he would take no part in the affair.

"I am greatly shocked," he said, "by what has happened. I do not think my brothers had made any plot or plan. When I saw Sidna the night of the shooting he told me he knew nothing of any trouble beforehand, and was surprised himself when the shooting began in the courtroom.

"I do not believe my relatives will give themselves up, for I am not sure that they would get a fair trial in Carroll County. My brother Sidna was wounded when he passed my home Thursday night and was alone. I do not know where he has gone, and have received no word from him since. I shall not try to advise them about giving themselves up. They must do as they think best."

Quiet prevailed in Hillsville to-day. The village pastor preached in favor of capital punishment at all times and there was no mistaking whom he meant. From the countryside came the curious on horseback, muleback, by ox carts and rigs of every description, fording the high water of the creek and climbing the steep hills to the summit where reposes the hamlet of Hillsville.

Sentiment against the Allens throughout the county is extremely bitter. No more pointed evidence of this could be needed than the following words uttered to-day by a leading member of the Carroll County bar:

"If the Allens want lawyers to defend them they will have to go outside of this county to get them. Lawyers of Carroll County have decided that none of them will take the case.

"I hope the trial will be a long time delayed, for Floyd Allen said he would not go to jail and I like to think of him in jail when he said he would not go."

Innocent, Says Floyd Allen.

Guards who were with Floyd Allen during his stay in the Hillsville jail tell of declarations he made to them regarding the crime, and, in accordance with his usual attitude, he protests his innocence.

"I shot in self-defense," Allen said, "and I had a right to shoot. When the Judge started to sentence me I said, 'Boys, I won't be taken,' and then I fumbled in my coat pocket for some papers I wanted to find. My friends thought I was getting my gun to shoot, and so they began to shoot, and then I did, too."

Nikisch and His Men Heavily Insured for American Tour.

Arthur Nikisch, who is to conduct the London Symphony Orchestra on a brief concert tour of this country beginning here on April 8, is to be insured for $200,000 against accident and death by his American promoters for a period of thirty days.

His life is already insured for $500,000 by the Leipzig Gewandhaus Orchestra of Leipzig. The promoters here of the coming tour have insured each member of the orchestra of one hundred for $20,000 against accident, and the instruments of the musicians have been insured for $500,000.

HIS 12 CAMPAIGN ARGUMENTS.

They Are Missouri State Secretary's Children—He Had Nine Before.

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 17.—Cornelius Roach, Secretary of State, announced his candidacy to-day for another term. He has no opposition, and none is expected.

In the campaign of 1908 photographs of Mr. Roach's nine children were extensively circulated as "Roach's nine reasons." Three more of the "reasons" have arrived since Roach took office, in January, 1909, and he now has an interesting family of twelve children. A photograph of the twelve has been made, and copies will be circulated in every city, town, and hamlet of Missouri under the head "Roach Has Twelve Reasons Now." Roach is 52 years old.

MISS MOISANT HAS A FALL.

Narrowly Escapes Her Brother's Fate —Her Monoplane Wrecked.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 17.—Miss Matilda Moisant, sister of the late John B. Moisant, narrowly escaped her brother's fate here to-day when, in descending after an exhibition flight, her monoplane struck the ground at too steep an angle, bounding into the air and turning turtle.

Miss Moisant fell a few feet just as the machine dropped. She was helped from the wreckage unhurt. The iron support of the guy wires at the top of the machine held the heavy motor from the ground, and but for this Miss Moisant would probably have been crushed to death. The monoplane was badly damaged.

ALL CHINA IS SHAVING.

Using Horse Clippers, Too, in Mad Rush to Shed Queues.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., March 17.—Arrivals from the Orient to-day by the steamships Lucerie and Sado Maru bring word that the cost of living in China is rapidly increasing as result of a revolution.

Chinese want American clothing, and the demand cannot be supplied. Safety razors and hair clippers are also in great demand. Just before J. P. Heilbronn left Manila a firm there received an order for 1,000 dozen hair clippers wanted in a hurry by Republicans of China. The firm could not find enough barbers' clippers to fill the order, and horse clippers were substituted.

All articles of general merchandise are commanding better prices in China, says Heilbronn. The price of European clothing in Hong Kong has increased 60 per cent., and still the demand cannot be supplied.

Among arrivals to-day was Y. Okamoto of New York, a dealer in stocks and bonds. He is returning from a four months' business trip in Japan. He reports that business is unusually quiet in Osaka, where many cotton mills are being closed on account of the unsettled conditions in China. Mrs. Okamoto came from New York to meet her husband.

MISSISSIPPI HAS INCOME TAX.

To be Imposed on Amounts of $2,500 and Over—New Land Tax.

JACKSON, Miss., March 17.—The Mississippi Legislature, which adjourned at midnight, passed a bill imposing a tax of 20 cents an acre on all land holdings over 5,000 acres.

Another bill signed by Gov. Brewer last night provides for a graduated tax upon incomes in excess of $2,500 ranging from 5 mills on the dollar on those not over $5,000 to 20 mills on those of $20,000 and upward.

Approximately $7,000,000 was appropriated during this session, about $600,000 less than the estimated revenues, and Gov. Brewer is authorized to negotiate for the deficit if necessary.

CHINESE KILLING A MYSTERY.

Five Orientals in Room with Victim Disclaim Knowledge of Crime.

Detectives Nelson, Foley, and Mangin and Policeman Kilboyde of the Elizabeth Street Station heard the reports of three revolver shots coming from the rooms of the Four Brothers Society, up one flight in 22 Pell Street, just before 6 o'clock last evening. They ran upstairs and found a Chinaman lying on the floor with three bullet wounds in his left side. Near him lay a revolver. About the room stood five Chinamen.

The five were arrested, while the wounded man was hurried to St. Gregory's Hospital, where he soon died. The five denied that they knew anything about the shooting. Neither did they know the dead man, they said.

RIOT IN A CHURCH.

Many Arrested in Cleveland Catholic Edifice—Police Surround Altar.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 17.—Many persons were ejected from St. Michael's Church to-day and arrested for rioting in the edifice. The disturbance continued for more than an hour. Children were trampled under foot by shouting men and women, who sought to drown the reading of a letter by Father Paulus, the pastor, from Bishop Farrelly, condemning the communicants for a previous riot. Forty policemen answered a riot call and mass could not be resumed until the rioters had been expelled, fighting and screaming. The police surrounded the altar, remaining there the rest of the service.

The parish is practically under martial rule by the police to-night and a guard surrounds the rectory, the doors of which have been supplied with heavy chains to prevent any attack. The trouble which came to a climax to-day started with the appointment of Father Paulus to the parish. A dozen persons were arrested last Sunday and Father Paulus appealed to the Bishop.

MANIACAL SKILL IN ROSALSKY BOMB

Police Seek a Hypothetical Degenerate of Remarkable Mechanical Ingenuity.

CLUE IN A WOMAN'S MURDER

Infernal Machine That Killed Mrs. Walker Similar to That Sent to Judge.

SAME TYPEWRITER USED

In Addressing Both Packages—Detectives Working on a Theory to Fit These Likenesses.

Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty, directing the work of the detectives who are trying to find the person or persons responsible for the attempt on Judge Otto Rosalsky's life on Saturday, frankly admitted to reporters last night that he was completely in the dark in this sensational case, which he considers one of the most difficult mysteries the police have ever been called upon to solve. It was a typical Conan Doyle story, he said, and would try the patience of a Sherlock Holmes.

"I would be unfair to myself and unfair to you if I said I had any idea who sent that infernal machine to Judge Rosalsky," he said, "but this much I am certain about; that whoever sent it was at once very talented and insane."

Then the Commissioner gave out, as one of many theories on which the police are working, a rather remarkable one that, perhaps, there is at large in New York a man of great mechanical skill and practiced knowledge of electricity and explosives, who labors under the delusion that he has a mission in life to rid the world of persons who, his disordered brain has led him to believe, are enemies of society.

There can be no doubt of the similarity between the machine sent to Judge Rosalsky and the one sent to the home of Mrs. Grace Walker in the early evening of Feb. 8. In the latter the principal mechanism was a pair of small dry batteries. The explosive was packed in a steel pipe, the wooden bottom on which the machine rested was pasted over with brown manila paper, and the opening of the package started the mechanism and ignited the nitro-glycerine with which the piping was packed. In that case Mrs. Walker tore open the package and the explosion that followed killed her almost instantly.

Typewriting May Give Clue.

The bomb that was sent to Judge Rosalsky was also one in which two small dry batteries were used. There was an iron pipe, different in size from that in the Walker bomb, the contact arrangement was the same, the package came through the mail, and on a Saturday, just as the one that was received by Mrs. Walker, and on the package in each case was a ten-cent stamp. Also, according to the police, and this is in their opinion the most striking point of similarity, both were addressed with a Remington typewriter, and they say that the alignment is so similar as to be startling.

To-day, Commissioner Dougherty said last night, an authority on typewriters will compare the addresses on the two packages that contained the bombs.

In one particular the bombs were different, and that is in the kind of explosives used. In that sent to Mrs. Walker was nitro-glycerine. In the one received at the apartments of Judge Rosalsky in the Hendrik Hudson, Riverside Drive and 110th Street, Inspector Owen Eagan of the Bureau of Combustibles, who opened the box and in so doing nearly lost his life, said last night that the explosive was a chloride mixture that he believes was composed of potash, antimony and sulphur. Again the Walker bomb was wrapped with a waxed red cord, while that sent to Judge Rosalsky was wrapped with twine.

"You see," said Commissioner Dougherty, "there is a very striking similarity, to say the least, between the construction of the bombs in the two cases as well as the manner of delivery, and then both were sent on Saturday and both were mailed so as to reach those for whom they were intended about dinner time. Now, I don't say that the same person sent both of these infernal machines and I only call attention to the theory that it may be that there is at large in New York a man, now thought to be sane, who has a delusion that he is what we may term a 'social cleanser.'

First Bomb Followed Publicity.

"Mrs. Walker, it will be remembered, received the bomb that killed her a few weeks after she had been before the Grand Jury charged with being in the white slave business, and, when the case failed, had been indicted for running a disorderly house and was fined $50 in Special Sessions. These facts were printed. Can it be possible that some person, who is mentally out of hang, could have sent her that bomb because of the kind of life she was said to have been leading?"

Commissioner Dougherty did not mention, in connection with the theory, the Brandt case. Another police official, however, did intimate that it might have been the reading of newspaper comments on this case that led some mentally unbalanced person to try to take the life of Judge Rosalsky.

This is only one of many theories on which the police are working. The records of criminals who have been sentenced to prison by Judge Rosalsky, and who may now be at liberty or on parole, are being carefully studied, friends of those against whom he has pronounced judgment are being looked up, and a careful search is being made to find out if there are any persons who have never been in the meshes of the court, but who imagine they have a grievance against the Judge.

The most valuable clue, if it may be so called, is the typewritten address on the package sent to Judge Rosalsky containing the bomb. The police have been able to patch together the fragments of the paper on which the address was written sufficiently to get about half of the name "Rosalsky," a part of the word "Riverside," and nearly all of the "New York City." This is admittedly a shadowy theory, but the police will follow it with earnestness as a desperate hope, and will endeavor to find the person who has or had a typewriter on which the alignment, spacing, etc., are like that of the typewriter used in addressing the package sent to Judge Rosalsky.

All day yesterday policemen were on duty at the Hendrik Hudson, while detectives at work on the case came and went all day. Judge Rosalsky remained in his apartments and refused to receive reporters, although he did talk to a TIMES reporter over the telephone.

"There is nothing that I care to say at this time," he said, "and the whole case is in the hands of the police, who, I am sure, are doing excellent work.

"Is it true, Judge, that you said last night that the reporters had contributed to conditions that resulted in some one sending you the infernal machine?"

"What paper said that?" Judge Rosalsky asked.

"Practically all of them," the reporter answered.

"Well, then, I am not responsible for what is printed in the newspapers," was the answer.

"In an afternoon newspaper," Judge Rosalsky was told, "a story is printed to the effect that you telephoned to Commissioner Dougherty this morning and gave him the name of a man who you think may be able to cast some light on this bomb outrage."

"That is absolutely untrue," Judge Rosalsky replied, "and I have not given any such information to any one. There is no foundation whatever for any such story."

In the afternoon a poorly clad man from the East Side, believed to be insane, called at Judge Rosalsky's apartment and was taken in custody by the police as a suspicious person.

"Do you attach any significance to the case of that man?" Judge Rosalsky was asked.

"I certainly do not," he replied. "The man, I understand, was recently in an asylum and is a poor fellow who meant no harm to me and I am glad to know that he has been sent to Bellevue. There is nothing in that case, so far as this affair is concerned."

The east side visitor, who is now in the Observation Ward at Bellevue, gave his name as Wolff Berman, and said he lived in the Glenmore lodging house on the Bowery, near Chatham Square.

It was about 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon when Berman appeared at the Hendrik Hudson. Policeman Broesman of the West 125th Street Station was in the apartment at the time. Broesman's attention was called to the man by a maid in Judge Rosalsky's employ. Broesman went out, and after listening to the man's story took him to the police station. A doctor from the J. Hood Wright Hospital said he was undoubtedly of unsound mind.

Berman said he had been getting wireless messages from Brodie Duke of the American Tobacco Company, and that he had been unable to satisfy himself why Mr. Duke wanted to communicate with him. He had written, he said, to two friends in Boston about the messages, but had received no replies. He admitted that he had been an inmate of the Central Islip Hospital for the Insane, and that he had been released about ten months ago. Berman said he was a tailor.

"I have been unable to get any employment at my trade for several years," he said, "and when these wireless messages from Mr. Duke began to come in I wanted advice. I knew Judge Rosalsky was a friend of poor men, and so wanted to get his advice especially."

Inspector Owen Egan of the Bureau of Combustibles was at his home, 732 Third Avenue, all day yesterday, nursing the wounds he received when the bomb exploded while he was examining it in Judge Rosalsky's library. His hands, the index finger of the left having been blown off, were wrapped in bandages and his face, arms, and neck were covered with cuts from the flying fragments of the glass table top, which was shattered into thousands of pieces by the explosion.

"When I got to Judge Rosalsky's apartment," said Inspector Egan, "the wires of the infernal machine had been all but in contact with each other for about one hour, and the great mystery to me—and I am very happy for this good luck on the part of the Judge—is that it did not go off before I got there. Judge Rosalsky was as near death as any man could have been. When I went into the library I went to the table, and, as is the custom when handling infernal machines, I cut off the corner furthest away from the spring. Then in some way the contact wires were connected and the explosion followed.

"My opinion is that the reason the thing did not explode when Judge Rosalsky started to open it was that some non-conducting particle, maybe a piece of sawdust, got into the contact mechanism. When I lifted the box this little non-conductor which had saved the Judge's life must have fallen out, and then came the contact and my own narrow escape."

Inspector Egan said he had not inserted the blade of his knife, accidentally, between the contact wires, and in that way made the contact necessary to cause the explosion.

A steady stream of callers came and left Judge Rosalsky's apartments yesterday, all of them friends of Judge and Mrs. Rosalsky, who came to congratulate the Judge on his narrow escape. Scores of telegrams were also received.

DEMOCRATS IN MAINE TO MEET TO-MORROW

First of New England States to Send Delegates to the Baltimore Convention.

UNDER NEW PRIMARY LAW

Platform for State Election to be Adopted — Senator Johnson Will Be Chairman.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 17.—The biennial State Convention of the Democratic Party of Maine, which will be held in Augusta City Hall on Tuesday, will be the first State body in New England to select delegates to a National political convention. It will also be the first State Convention of any party in Maine since the Direct Primary act became a law. Already the delegates are arriving.

The principal duties of the convention under the new law will be the framing of a platform for the State election next September, the selection of tweleve delegates and twelve alternates to the Democratic National Convention at Baltimore in June, and the nomination of six candidates for electors of President and Vice President of the United States, to be voted for next November.

United States Senator Charles F. Johnson of Waterville will preside, and among those who are expected to address the convention are United States Senator Obadiah Gardner, Congressman Daniel C. Gillicuddy, Samuel W. Gould, and Gov. Frederick W. Plaisted.

HARMON HAS A DOG SONG TOO

His Headquarters Issues a Metrical Reply to Clark's Ditty.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Harmon headquarters issued to-day a metrical reply to Champ Clark's already famous campaign song, "The Houn' Dawg of the Ozarks."

The Speaker's song is said already to have won him a hostile convention when a lean dog crept into the hall and yelped loudly as a heavy foot descended on him. A Clark sympathizer raised the refrain, "You gotta quit kickin' my dawg aroun'," and the convention voted for the Speaker.

The Harmon retort is as follows:

Old "Uncle Jud" of Columbus town
Allows no dog to be kicked aroun'.
He does what he can for the people's good,
And now says little and just saws wood.

THE modern fireproof dwelling and the sixty story skyscraper owe their development, if not their existence, to the activity of this Company in solving fireproofing problems and inventing materials to fit their solution.

CALLS WILSON STRONGEST.

Senator Smith of South Carolina Out for New Jersey Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 17. — Senator Smith of South Carolina joined his colleague, Senator Tillman, to-day in indorsing Gov. Woodrow Wilson for the Democratic Presidential nomination. Indications in South Carolina point to an uninstructed delegation, and Gov. Blease has declared for Gov. Harmon. Mr. Smith bases his choice chiefly on impressions received by him from speeches delivered by Mr. Wilson.

"I believe," says Mr. Smith, "that Gov. Wilson is the most available candidate that the Democrats have in the field for the Presidency. His work as Governor of New Jersey, in bringing into the fold of Democracy a State otherwise hopelessly Republican, and his elimination of boss rule and corruption in that State, illustrates his ability to put into practice as a National Executive the theory that he advocated.

"I am convinced in the light of his political career in New Jersey, his public utterances as a candidate for the Presidency, and, above all, in the frenzied opposition toward him of certain newspapers, periodicals, and individuals, that he is the most formidable candidate that the Democrats can nominate for the Presidency and support against any nominee of the Republican Party."

delegates to the Chicago Convention. In accord with the custom of Republican conventions in this State, the delegates will be uninstructed, but it will be thoroughly understood that they are for Taft. The candidates have so expressed themselves.

Senators, Congressmen, and Governor are for President Taft, and not a single politician of prominence has come out for Col. Roosevelt. Feeling among farmers along the border against Taft because of his reciprocity propaganda amounts to little, and will not redound to his rival's favor.

Taft Strong in Massachusetts.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 17.—What use Massachusetts Republicans will make of the Presidential primary is problematical. The party organization is strong for Taft and the people at large are his loyal friends. Nevertheless, outcroppings of Roosevelt sentiment are occasionally visible, and it is evident that the delegation thus chosen to the National Convention will be divided. Much depends on the personnel of the nominees. The organization has too many prominent men as candidates for delegates at large and the Roosevelt people have too few.

Altogether the situation is so new that prediction is impossible. Even seasoned prophets confess themselves baffled. One of them was induced to guess that the delegation might stand: Taft, 80; Roosevelt, 6.

Taft the Man Rhode Island Wants.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., March 17.—Rhode Island's ten delegates will be solid for Taft at the Republican National Convention in June.

Gov. Pothier has declared for Taft; Gen. Charles A. Wilson, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has in public addresses as well as in signed statements come out for Taft; the Republican State Central Committee at a recent meeting unanimously indorsed Taft, and a recent poll of the General Assembly gave Taft 78 votes to Roosevelt's 6.

With this Republican organization so solidly for Taft, it is considered that the delegates will be bound by iron-clad pledges by the State Convention.

Connecticut Solid for Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 17.—There is no difference of opinion as to the preference of Connecticut Republicans as between President Taft and Col. Roosevelt. Connecticut is strong for Taft, and the delegation to the National Convention will go pledged to support him.

Taft Men Sure of Jersey.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., March 17.—President Taft will have at least 24 of New Jersey's 28 delegates to the Republican National Convention in Chicago, according to the Taft supporters in this State. Some of the Taft men expect that the President will have New Jersey's solid support.

There will be 24 district delegates and four delegates at large to the convention under the new Congressional reapportionment. The only two doubtful districts are said to be in Hudson County, and they may possibly go for Roosevelt, the Taft men say, although many of the President's followers are of the opinion that they will finally cast their lot with the Taft forces.

Taft Leading in Pennsylvania.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—While both the Taft and Roosevelt managers in Pennsylvania are claiming the majority of the delegates to the Republican State Convention in Harrisburg on May 1, it is estimated that at least 250 of the 275 delegates will favor Taft. This means that Senator Penrose will control the convention by an easy majority and will be able to elect the twelve National delegates at large that are allotted to this State.

Senator Penrose declares that he will not yield one National delegate to Roosevelt. He is using the full strength of his political machine in behalf of President Taft, and he promises a solid delegation of seventy-six delegates to the Republican National Convention for the renomination of President Taft.

Followers of Col. Roosevelt, however, are predicting that he will "sweep the State." They hope to have the majority of the National delegates chosen at the primaries. But it is generally felt in political circles that they will be fortunate if they have twenty Roosevelt delegates to the National Convention.

Only Taft in Delaware.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 17.—The six delegates from Delaware to the Republican National Convention will cast their votes for President Taft. This is assured, although they may go to Chicago uninstructed. Senators Richardson and du Pont, who will control the State Convention that will meet at Dover on April 16 to elect the Chicago delegates, are emphatically in favor of Taft.

There is only a mild sentiment for Col. Roosevelt in this State. Efforts have been made to have it assume material proportions, but in vain. There will be no fight in the State Convention; the Taft supporters will be in control.

THE MIDDLE WEST.

Ohio Drifting Roosevelt's Way.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 17.—The political situation in Ohio, so far as the selection of National Convention delegates is concerned, is in a much befogged condition. While President Taft, a few months ago, seemed certain of a majority of the forty-two delegates from the twenty-one districts, if not nearly all of them, sentiment recently has shown such a leaning toward Col. Roosevelt in many of the districts hitherto believed Taft strongholds that the Roosevelt leaders are now claiming a majority. They say they are certain of twenty-six delegates, and they expect to have at least thirty-six in all.

Taft leaders declare this to be mere buncombe, and assert that they expect to capture all of the districts excepting two or three. There is no doubt, however, that the Roosevelt sentiment is strong, especially in the rural districts.

Six delegates-at-large are to be elected, either at a caucus of the delegates elected at the May primaries, or by the State Convention. The State Central Committee will decide the method of selection next week.

The political complexion of these six will depend upon the manner in which they are chosen.

Michigan Delegation Taft's.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., March 17.—President Taft seems assured of the Michigan delegation to the Republican National Convention. The only thing apparently that can prevent it is the possibility of Gov. Osborn inducing the Legislature to give immediate effect to the Presidential Primary bill passed last week. In that event Col. Roosevelt might get the delegation, though the Taft supporters do not concede him the slightest chance.

A month ago Roosevelt was leading in the straw votes, but his strength seemed to start on a decline after his Columbus speech, and now Taft has a big margin in all the balloting. The Roosevelt headquarters in Detroit give no evidence of activity. The Progressives who made so much noise under the La Follette banner have not flocked to the Colonel's standard, as expected. All the delegates thus far elected to the State Convention are for Taft.

Illinois Another Taft State.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 17.—President Taft wil get a majority of the Illinois delegates to the Republican National Convention, even with a preferential primary in operation, which at this time is not probable, except in a few isolated districts and Cook County. The Roosevelt strength does not exceed 12 of the 58 delegates. Roosevelt sentiment in Illinois has been weakened by his Columbus speech.

Fifty of the Illinois delegates will be chosen in the twenty-five Congressional Conventions to be held on April 17. The Roosevelt people are certain of controlling but one district—the First. They will have a chance in the Third, Congressman Wilson's district; the Tenth, Congressman Foss's district; the Fourteenth, Congressman McKinney's district; the Sixteenth, Congressman Stone's district, and the Seventeenth, Congressman Sterlin's district.

Taft may carry all of the so-called doubtful districts, although there is a fairly well-defined Roosevelt sentiment in each of these districts. The Federal and State forces will unite in practically every district in the State, except the First, to name Taft delegates. Unless some politcal miracle is brought about they ought to win.

The Taft people will control the State Convention on April 19, which will name the eight delegates at large.

Taft Thus Far Leads in Indiana.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 17.—Although the primaries in the First and Seventh Districts, including Indianapolis and Evansville, the two large cities of the State, were carried by Taft by a large majority, the Roosevelt managers hope to carry six of the thirteen districts, giving Roosevelt twelve delegates and Taft eighteen in the State, including the four delegates-at-large. The Roosevelt men are claiming eighteen, while the Taft forces claim twenty-four or more. The Roosevelt hope is based on sentiment in the country, which is expected to crystalize in the Colonel's favor.

The party organization generally and the party newspapers, as a rule, are for Taft, but the Roosevelt forces do not lack for publicity and are remarkably aggressive and determined.

Taft or Cummins in Iowa.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 17.—Up to date President Taft has 429 delegates to the State Convention on April 24 and Senator Cummins 128. It will take 741 to control. Cummins expects to overtake Taft's lead when the conventions in the north half of the State are held, for it is there that the Senator is strongest.

Iowa will have 26 delegates in the Chicago Convention. Taft is sure to have 8 o fthese under instructions already, obtained in district conventions.

Roosevelt has thus far developed little strength.

Against Roosevelt in Wisconsin.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., March 17.—The best impartial judges of the Wisconsin preferential Presidential situation concede that La Follette will carry the majority of the State delegation, with delegates reported in many cases to favor Roosevelt for second choice. The delegates themselves, however, declare they are for La Follette to the end, regardless of Roosevelt. They regard Roosevelt as having betrayed La Follette, and they will not vote for him under any consideration. There will be no Roosevelt delegates voted for in the primary on April 2.

The Taft men are active, but their hope is not to get a majority of the delegation, but to prevent La Follette from having a unanimous vote from the State.

May Split Kansas Delegation.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 17.—The recent action of the Republican State Committee in defeating the Progressive plan for a State-wide primary, and in declaring for Taft's renomination has stirred Roosevelt supporters in Kansas to white heat. It was the opening of the biggest fight among the Republican factions ever known here.

State Roosevelt headquarters will be opened here to-morrow. Four Roosevelt organizers who have been working in Oklahoma will canvass every county in the State. Under the call of the State Committee county delegates may be elected by primary or caucus plan. Roosevelt managers will demand a primary in every county, and Roosevelt committeemen will be visited and urged to insist upon a primary.

Gov. Stubbs is leading the fight for Roosevelt in Kansas. Conservative estimates give Roosevelt three districts, Taft two, with three a stand-off. This would indicate an even break in the twenty delegates, with chances favoring Roosevelt.

THE FAR WEST.

Taft Sure to Get Colorado.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., March 17.—Colorado has been claimed for Taft ever since the State Republican Committee declared for him. The claims of Chairman McDonald and Senator Guggenheim were well borne out by the results of the primaries in nine counties, eight of which sent delegates to the State Convention instructed for Taf.

One of the counties carried by Taft yesterday was Pueblo, the largest in the State outside of Denver. In the one county captured by Roosevelt gross frauds by the friends of the former President are charged.

Yesterday's result gives Roosevelt but two of ten counties, and they are not important.

Utah to Instruct for Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

SALT LAKE, Utah, March 17.—At this distance it looks as though President Taft will have an instructed delegation from Utah at Chicago. Gov. Spry has declared for Taft and the Republican machine is for Taft, together with their newspaper.

A ray of hope for a split on behalf of Roosevelt lies in the fact that Col. C. E. Loose, State Chairman, will resign his Chairmanship on April 6. He is a friend of Roosevelt because the Colonel is a friend of Senator Smoot, although Smoot, paradoxical as it may seem, apparently is for Taft.

Insurgency in Utah is directed against the machine rather than against Taft. It is not effective as yet, having neither organization nor leadership.

Montana for Whoever Wins.

Special to The New York Times.

HELENA, Mon., March 17.—On a State-wide primary Roosevelt would unquestionably be the choice of the Republican voters of Montana. This much is admitted by the Taft leaders. But there will be no primary, and although the State Committee does not meet until the last of the week, it is generally understood that the State Convention will not be held until late in May, the plan of the organization leaders, who are for Taft, being to have the convention one of the last to be held prior to the big Chicago gathering. Under these conditions, the Montana delegates will unquestionably be of the "band-wagon" variety.

If the sentiment of the country has by the time of the convention crystallized sufficiently to insure the nomination of Col. Roosevelt, the Montana delegates will be instructed for the Colonel. On the other hand, if it is apparent that Taft will win, the eight votes of the State will merely go to swell his majority.

If the issue is close, it is probable that Senator Dixon's friends, backed by the strong Roosevelt sentiment, can force instructions for the ex-President.

North Dakota May Be Roosevelt's.

Special to The New York Times.

BISMARCK, N. D., March 17.—Taft will not be a factor in the Presidential preference primary election in North Dakota on Tuesday. The fight is between Senator La Follette of Wisconsin and Col. Roosevelt, with the chances that the Colonel will win.

La Follette has made a tour of the State for the last four days, and will remain here until Monday evening. He has gained many supporters. There will undoubtedly be a heavy vote cast if the weather is favorable.

Idaho for Taft or Uninstructed.

Special to The New York Times.

BOISE, Idaho, March 17.—The outlook in the Idaho Republican Presidential contest is that it will be either a Taft delegation or one uninstructed, with indications in favor of the President. A Roosevelt campaign has been started in the State, headed by politicians close to Senator Borah.

In order to prevent instructed delegates for Taft in counties that are almost certain to favor the President, Senator Borah has been mentioned as a dark horse candidate for President by the Roosevelt men. This plan is also being promoted by certain Republican leaders who would like to make Borah trouble in his canvass for re-election to the United States Senate.

Wyoming for a Waiting Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, March 17.—While Wyoming Republican Progressives are for Col. Roosevelt and the standpat wing is loyal to President Taft, efforts are being made by leaders of both factions to send an uninstructed delegation to the Chicago Convention.

It is pointed out that Wyoming being at the foot of the roll of seats the candidate will have been decided upon long before Wyoming is reached, and by sending an uninstructed delegation this State will be in a position to vote with the majority, whether that majority is for Taft or Roosevelt.

Taft Gaining in California.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 17.—A canvass of California by Taft and Roosevelt managers has just begun, and while both sides claim an easy victory, it is apparent that President Taft is steadily gaining. If primaries had been held two weeks ago, there is little doubt that Col. Roosevelt would have swept the State, but even his strongest supporters now admit that he has a hard fight.

Taft has the support of practically all the influential papers in the State. His fight is being made by men who have been the backbone of the Republican Party for twenty years. Constant agitation of third-term talk has done much to deprive Roosevelt of his former popularity. The general opinion now is that the fight will be close but that Taft will win. The women's vote will help the President.

Roosevelt May Carry Oregon.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Oregon, March 17.—Impartial observers consider that Oregon belongs in the Roosevelt column. Active Taft leaders themselves are far from confident that the President will carry the Presidential preference primaries on April 19. La Follette's followers say that the advent of the ex-President in the fight has complicated matters greatly. La Follette's strength, however, is looking up, and it is predicted that should the Wisconsin Senator make a personal tour of the State he would receive a heavy vote.

Straw votes have been favorable to Col. Roosevelt. One taken last week at the University of Oregon showed 169 votes for Roosevelt, 109 for Woodrow Wilson.

Looks Like Taft in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Wash., March 17.—The best judgment of political observers at this time is that President Taft will have a majority of Washington's fourteen delegates to the Chicago Convention. National Committeeman Perkins to-day expressed the belief that the entire delegation will be for Taft. Mr. Perkins returned yesterday from Eastern Washington, where Roosevelt is supposed to lead. He found Taft sentiment strong at Spokane, Walla Walla, and North Yakima.

Chairman Coiner of the Republican State Committee states it as his judgment that the delegation will be for Taft excepting two delegates from the Third Congressional District. Three-quarters of the members of the Republican State Committee are for Taft.

Lorenzo Dow and other Roosevelt leaders, however, will not concede the entire delegation to Taft. They declare that if the Progressives should control the State Convention at Aberdeen on May 15 all fourteen delegates would be selected at large and instructed for Roosevelt. This contingency is improbable. Delegates to the Aberdten Convention will be chosen by counties in three ways; by county committees, by county preferential primaries, and by ordinary caucuses and primaries. No delegates will be named before the last of April.

It is likely that ten to twelve of the Washington delegation will be for Taft.

THE SOUTH.

Maryland also for Taft.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 17.—While the Roosevelt managers here will not admit the fact, it is certain that Maryland will send a solid delegation for Taft to the Chicago Convention. Even should the direct Presidential primaries bills now pending in the Legislature pass, the managers of the regular Republican organization are absolutely confident that all of the sixteen delegates will be for Taft. Former Attorney General Bonaparte and other Roosevelt enthusiasts expect to carry several of the districts, but all indications point the other way.

Gov. Goldsborough has come out strong for Taft, and at the same time favors direct Presidential primaries. Of course, there is some Roosevelt sentiment in Maryland, but the majority of the Republican voters are for President Taft.

North Carolina for Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

RALEIGH, N. C., March 17.—The Presidential preference of the Republicans of this State is overwhelmingly for Roosevelt. The appointment of H. G. Connor to be Judge of the United States Court for the Eastern District of this State and Canadian reciprocity destroyed all chance of Taft getting the delegation from this State.

It is barely possible that Taft, through his office holders, may get the delegates from one or two districts, but it is not probable. If Moorehead, chairman of the State Committee, and E. C. Duncan, National Committeeman, get together and support Taft, he will have a fighting chance in three or four districts. The four delegates from the State at large will be instructed for Roosevelt.

Texas All for Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 17.—It is practically assured that the State Republican Convention, which meets in Fort Worth on May 28, will be controlled by the Roosevelt element, headed by Col. Cecil Lyon, National Committeeman and State Chairman. The party machinery is in the hands of Roosevelt's supporters, as was shown by the recent vote of indorsement given the Colonel, Taft receiving only one vote out of the twenty-eight members of the State Executive Committee.

The situation as now viewed from a non-partisan standpoint causes the belief that the forty delegates from Texas will be instructed for Roosevelt. But it is almost certain that possible irregularities of the convention will cause a contesting Taft delegation to be selected.

WILSON SECOND CHOICE.

Report of Kansas Democratic Conven-

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17.—Some question having arisen as to whether or not the Kansas Democratic State Convention, which met on March 14, instructed the delegation to Baltimore for Gov. Woodrow Wilson as second choice, Barney J. Sheridan of Paola, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, said to-day:

"The resolution on Clark and Wilson as carried by The Associated Press is correct. It was adopted by the convention by unanimous vote."

The resolution, which was read to the convention by Mr. Sheridan, who is one of the delegates at large and who was in charge of the Clark headquarters at the convention, was as follows:

> We hereby instruct the twenty delegates from Kansas, elected to-day to the Baltimore Convention, to vote for Clark as a unit, until two-thirds of the delegation believe his nomination to be impossible. We instruct our delegates further that if it becomes evident that Mr. Clark cannot be nominated, our twenty delegates shall vote for Woodrow Wilson as long as in the judgment of two-thirds of the delegation he has a chance for the nomination.

Judge A. M. Jackson of Winfield, Temporary and Permanent Chairman of the convention, a Clark adherent and also a delegate at large, said in a telephone conversation to-day:

"The convention certainly adopted the Sheridan resolution providing for Wilson as second choice. We as delegates to Baltimore are to stay with Clark till we believe he cannot be nominated, then the delegation will go to Gov. Wilson."

SOUNDING ROOSEVELT ON TOBACCO TRUST

900,000 Independents May Support Him if His View Coincides with Theirs.

HE IS INVITED TO STATE IT

In Letter to Colonel Their Counsel Condemns Government's Failure to Take an Appeal.

Disappointed in President Taft, to whom they recently appealed in vain to secure an order directing Attorney General Wickersham to reopen the Tobacco Trust case, the independent tobacconists of this city have sounded Col. Roosevelt on the Administration's acquiescence in the Circuit Court's approval of the recent dissolution. Edward L. Andrews, who is associated with H. H. Hunter as counsel for the Independent Retail Tobacconists' Association, has sent to the Colonel a letter asking for an expression of his views.

Mr. Andrews says there are more than 900,000 voters in this country who will support the Sagamore Hill candidate if he is willing to champion the cause of the independent tobacco dealer. Representative Ollie James of Kentucky is expected to introduce a bill in Congress to-day extending the Government's time in which to take an appeal from the lower court's disposition of the case and directing the Department of Justice to appeal. The period allowed by law has expired. Congressmen have been supplied with opinions holding that this procedure is legal.

"We want to know where Col. Roosevelt stands on this matter," said Mr. Andrews. "President Taft has alienated a vast body of men whose livelihood depends upon the continuation of open competition in the tobacco trade. We want the other Republican candidate's position defined."

This is the letter which the tobacco men hope will draw Col. Roosevelt out:

The Hon. Theodore Roosevelt.

Dear Sir: Many thousands of your fellow-citizens desire to express their concurrence in your opinion that the existing relations of our Government to the judiciary present a pivotal question. They refer more particularly to the operation of those public powers upon the economic affairs of the country. As you are well aware, the Administration bases its plea for a renewal of popular favor mainly upon its alleged efficiency in protecting the business interests of the Nation "by the persistent enforcement of the Sherman law." In this connection we will endeavor to demonstrate these propositions:

That its asserted execution of the law against illegal combinations is a pretense and a falsity.

That to effect this pretended pursuit of the trusts, without protecting competitive rights, it has perverted the legal relation between the Executive and the Supreme Court.

As you may well surmise, no lawyer would undertake to maintain this theme if the evidence were not extracted from the utterances and the conduct of the officials themselves.

"Administration's Misconduct."

As the Supreme Court has declared that the litigation instituted by the Government against the American Tobacco Company involves the most important and difficult questions that have arisen under the legislation against trusts, we will illustrate the misconduct of the Administration by a brief reference to its evolutions in that judicial field.

This tobacco litigation was the climax of years of effort to adjust the industries of the country to Federal legalism. The Supreme Court had reversed the Circuit Court and sent the case back to the lower court with directions "to dissolve the combination and to recreate a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with the law." Of all the developments of monopoly which were thus presented for solution, the invasion of the field of distributing business by the Tobacco Trust is peculiarly obnoxious to an immense mass of merchants.

By reason of the facilities of purchase which this arm of the Trust, known as the United Cigar Stores Company, secured by its identification with the illegal combination, independent competitors have been driven out of business. But we need not enlarge on the vehement showing of these conditions by the Attorney General, a copy of whose argument is inclosed. You will no doubt be convinced by its logic and touched by its pathos. To remedy this situation, the Attorney General urged upon the court that the United Cigar Stores Company "be turned loose" from the American Tobacco Company—that the latter's stockholdings in that agency be sold and that the stockholders of the Tobacco Trust be debarred from their purchase.

The adverse ruling of the lower court on those contentions prepared the ground for the appeal by the Government to the Supreme Court of the United States. It is needless to remark that the Tobacco Trust did not appeal. But the Government, the defeated Government, would of course seek the judgment of the Supreme Court upon the positions which it had just been maintaining for the restoration of competitive conditions. On moral and material grounds such appeal would follow as the day follows the night.

The Circuit Court had already been reversed in the case and particularly in respect to its decision upon the legal relations of the Trust to the United Cigar Stores Company. This was the first cause involving the principles controlling the disintegration of illegal combinations, for which the Attorney General had contended. The maintenance of competition through the action of thousands upon thousands of distributing merchants was at stake. The Government had for several years been putting in motion an immense legal machinery to reach some definite and authoritative result concerning the relations of the Federal law to business freedom. The Supreme Court was already familiar with the case, so familiar that you may learn from Justice Harlan's language whether he did not suppose that the performance of the decree of dissolution would be brought before the Supreme Court for review, an opinion in which he was not at variance with his colleagues.

Nearly every important cause under the Sherman law had been submitted to the judgment of the Supreme Court, as a long line of records illustrate. This self-indicated course being the sole remedy for avoiding conflicting interpretations among the lower courts, Congress had passed the Expediting act, to facilitate such appeals directly to the Supreme Court and to give the cases preference on the calendars. Pursuant to this statute the Attorney General had declared this cause to be of "general public importance."

Submits to Lower Court.

In the face of all these normal and compelling reasons, this Administration undertook to submit to the defeat of the United States at the hands of the lower court, and studiously refrained from asking the judgment of the Supreme Court—its judgment concerning the validity of the contentions of the United States in favor of a different decree from that rendered in the court of first instance.

The country has not been favored with any explanation of this failure to maintain the Government's own position concerning the proper means of maintaining competition in the distribution of monopolized products. This is the incredible and mysterious attitude with which the Administration confronts the intelligence of the American people.

The stand which it took in the court below goes for nothing; the Supreme Court goes for nothing; but the Executive practically substitutes itself for the Supreme Court. To cover this ruinous retreat from the highest court, the Administration has been perambulating the country and telling meetings of voters that it is "engaged in persistent efforts to destroy the trusts"; that on this specialty it seeks the suffrages of the people! Above all it declares that it loves the courts; that it respects their judgments, particularly those of the Supreme Court—which it is careful not to invoke even in aid of the Government's own claims!

Nothing more need be said concerning the tobacco litigation. Congress will stamp its disapproval upon this executive negation of the tenor of our judicial institutions by passing the bill extending the time to appeal and requiring the department to take an appeal from the rulings adverse to the Government.

There is, however, a much higher issue involved in this incredible conduct of the administration—it is the broad relation of the Executive to the Judiciary. In the face of a great trust reposed in the administration, it stops the working of the judicial machinery just where it should be efficient. It does not propose to recall the Judges or their decisions; it has discovered a more effective way. It prevents the Judges from making any decisions which the Executive does not want. It thus perverts the statutes, which furnish treasures of money and put aside the other legal business of the country to enable the Government to appeal from its defeats under the Sherman law to the Supreme Court of the United States. Under such an administration we would go far on the road to a purely executive government, to the detriment of judicial as well as constituent power.

This peculiar and inexplicable posture of the administration should result in effective legislation against its recurrence. Such betrayal of the spirit of our legal institutions by an administration purporting to be peculiarly wedded to legalism demonstrates that the enforcement of the Sherman law should no longer be left in the hands of any political officials. A permanent commission may be constituted and invested with the sole control of all action against illegal combinations. It could regulate through its own counsel all legal proceedings in reference to such organizations. Several years ago the American Law Review suggested this method of taking the Sherman law out of politics and allowing the Department of Justice to return to its normal functions. Very respectfully,

EDWARD L. ANDREWS.

APPEALS TO YOUNG JEWS.

Movement to Bring Them Back to Religion Started on East Side.

For the purpose of bringing together the congregations of the many Jewish synagogues on the east side a mass meeting, the first of its kind, was held last night under the auspices of the Sons and Daughters of Israel in Kalverier Synagogue, at 15 Pike Street. The movement is designed to bring together the younger generation of Jews and stimulate them with a stronger religious feeling. If it proves successful there will be built on the east side a large synagogue where congregations from the smaller synagogues may meet one another.

The principal spea- last night were Justice Samuel Greenbaum and Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle. Rabbi Israel Odes, leader of the movement, presided.

Justice Greenbaum announced that he was heartily in favor of the movement. Young people had come to think that, as the clothes and traditions of their parents were old-fashioned, the religion of their parents also must be old-fashioned. "They must be made to understand," he said, "that there is no fashion in religion.

"I fear, too, sometimes," he said, "that the old people do not understand the dangers that beset the young. There are temptations here that must be fought, and the young must fight them. One of the saddest of sights is to see our girls coming out of the factories, and then to see them again on Sunday on the streets with paint and powder on their faces, looking like women we cannot mention."

The home, he said, was one of the greatest safeguards for the young, and he urged that the beautiful customs of the Jewish home be preserved. He asked young people to come forward and work to bring back their companions to the synagogues, and to strive to uphold the Jewish ideals.

Congressman Henry M. Goldfogle urged his hearers to keep alive the religious spirit of the Jewish race.

a bullet in his left cheek and a bandage across his face, showed to-day just how the tragedy happened. He rehearsed the scene with vivid detail, even to placing the bullet scarred chairs which were occupied by Judge Massie, Sheriff Webb, and Commonwealth's Attorney Foster. A row of bullet holes, low on the right hand wall, were added evidence of the horror.

A shattered rail in front of the Judge's bench also showed the effect of the fusillade, and upon the floor was the discoloration of blood. Goad showed how Mr. Foster, after being fatally shot, staggered and dropped his head upon a sheepskin volume of the law. A dark coat of blood on the book was mute evidence.

Andrew Howlet and Stuart Worreli, both bystanders wounded at Thursday's assassination, to-day rested easily. One has a bullet in the lung and the other was shot in his side. Juror Columbus Kane, who was shot in the abdomen and is most seriously injured of all, may die, which would bring the death list up to six.

ALLENS IN ROANOKE JAIL.

Prison Services Omitted to Comply with No-Visitor Rule.

ROANOKE, Va., March 17. — Floyd Allen, his son Victor, and Byrd Marion, were brought here from Pulaski early this morning and put in jail. The authorities thought feeling against the court house assassins was running too high at Pulaski, the home of Judge Massie, for their safety.

Allen was brought here on a cot, with one broken leg in a cast. He is wounded in the other. The prisoners were widely separated in the jail and all outsiders were kept out. This order even extended to the religious workers and there were no services in the jail to-day.

Young Allen and Marion, both under indictment for murder, protested to their guards that they took no part in the shooting.

United States Revenue Agents Weaver and Hendricks returned from Hillsville to-night. They passed Sidna Allen's house on Thursday afternoon after the shooting and saw him there. The officers had heard of the tragedy but did not know Sidna Allen had been implicated in it. They are perhaps the last persons outside members of the clan to have seen Sidna Allen.

ROOSEVELT AND BEVERIDGE DIFFER

Colonel Declares Ex-Senator Told Him Newspapers Erred in Giving Indianapolis to Taft.

BEVERIDGE IS SKEPTICAL

When Shown Roosevelt Statement Says He Doesn't Believe He Made It—Colonel Tells Stumping Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

OYSTER BAY, L. I., March 17.—Col. Roosevelt outlined his stumping trip to-day. The Colonel had said that he expected to make few addresses. His campaign managers decided, though, that he could not afford to limit his speeches if he was to capture the nomination. Opening with two addresses in New York City this week, Col. Roosevelt will spend most of the time for the next three weeks on the road.

The first address of the trip will be made at Carnegie Hall Wednesday night, when the candidate will talk on "The Right of the People to Rule." The Colonel said that if a hall could be obtained he would also get out among the people on the east side, where he said he felt that he had much strength. No date for the east side speech has been set as yet. It is not at all unlikely that he will make a third address in this county, because the Colonel's managers are very anxious to have him make an impression in New York State.

"We will get at least twenty delegates in New York State," Col. Roosevelt declared to-day when told that County Chairman Koenig had asserted that the Roosevelt boom was collapsing. Then the Colonel added:

"If there was not such a bad primary system now in force, we would capture more than a majority of the delegates in the State."

Says Koenig Is Misinformed.

Walking home from church to-day, the Colonel talked about the political situation. He laughed heartily at a statement made by County Chairman Koenig, in New York, that, with the single exception of Oscar Straus, there was not a representative Republican of the county connected with the Roosevelt boom.

"Mr. Koenig is laboring under a misapprehension," said the Colonel. "Oscar Straus is a gold Democrat and was in the Cleveland Cabinet. Next thing, I suppose Koenig will be saying that Billy Ward and Judge Deuel are not representative Republicans."

Plans a Western Trip.

After his speeches in New York, Col. Roosevelt said that he would start for the West, probably on March 25 or 26. That week he will speak in Chicago, St. Louis, and either Minneapolis or St. Paul. This does not mean, he declared, that his addresses will be limited to three. Either on the way to Chicago or on the return, he said, he will make platform speeches in West Virginia, and, in fact, will probably take advantage of every stop along the line where a crowd gathers, to preach his doctrines. Saturday, March 30, will see him back in New York.

The plan for the week beginning March 31, so far as it has been determined, will include a swing into the New England States. There Col. Roosevelt will speak in Boston and Concord, N. H. If he can get as far as Portland, Me., before the primaries, he will go there. In New England he plans to make a number of platform speeches. In the week beginning April 7 Col. Roosevelt will go to Newark, N. J., and Philadelphia, and he is also considering making an address in Pittsburgh. The Colonel said he was well satisfied with the situation in Pennsylvania, but he declared that he intended to make assurance doubly sure in that State.

Col. Roosevelt said that he would not visit the South. It is understood that he believes State Committeeman Lyon of Texas and State Committeeman White of Louisiana are waging a good fight there. Ormsby McHarg, now said to be the real head of the Roosevelt campaign, is said to feel that Roosevelt already had the South well in hand.

The report that Col. Roosevelt is fighting to get control of the National Committee has caused much comment among his opponents. Col. Roosevelt, in discussing the report, said:

"I do not suppose I could control it," He added that all he asked of the National Committee was a square deal when it came to passing on the contesting delegations. In that event he did not care, he said, whether the committeemen were favorably inclined to him or to Mr. Taft. Such committeemen as he had heard from, the Colonel said, had promised impartial action.

Col. Roosevelt walked to Christ Church from Sagamore Hill to-day. In honor of St. Patrick's Day he wore a green necktie. He also said that he had received a large box of shamrocks sent by friends in County Wicklow, Ireland. Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel Roosevelt will return on Tuesday from their trip to Panama, and Col. Roosevelt will meet them in New York and return with them to Sagamore Hill Tuesday night. He will go to The Outlook office Wednesday morning.

DOUBTS COLONEL SAID IT.

Beveridge's Comment When Shown Roosevelt's Statement on Primary Results.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 17.—"I don't believe Col. Roosevelt made any such statement," was the comment of ex-Senator A. J. Beveridge to-night when he read a dispatch in which Col. Roosevelt was quoted as saying that Mr. Beveridge had told him that the situation in Indianapolis had been misrepresented in the newspapers, which said that the primaries there had resulted in favor of President Taft, whereas they were two to one in favor of Col. Roosevelt.

Further than that Mr. Beveridge declined to talk. He would not say if he had given the Colonel any information regarding the primaries in Indianapolis.

NEW BETH ISRAEL HOSPITAL.

Directors Finally Vote to Select a New Site and Erect Another Building.

The Directors of Beth Israel Hospital, who have been debating whether to build a hospital on a new site or add to the present building, met last night at the office of Dr. Joseph J. Cohen, the President, at 333 Central Park West, and voted for a new site and to proceed as fast as possible with the erection of a new building.

It is proposed to spend about $1,000,000. A central location will be chosen and it will be the aim to establish an institution equal to any of the kind in the city. It was shown by the last report of the President of the hospital that many patients had to be turned away last year for lack of room.

The new building will be large enough to take care of the many poor who are now necessarily turned away, and also room will be made for those who can afford to pay for treatment.

S. J. Silberman was chosen Chairman of the Committee on Site. The committee will report at a special meeting of the Beth Israel Hospital Association when several sites now under consideration have been further examined and the most desirable chosen.

STOP FLOOD BY DYNAMITE.

Engineers Blow Up Ice Jam at Rochester, but Damage Property.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 17.—The Genesee River broke loose to-day and began to rise in a most threatening manner. State and city engineers had planned to dynamite the ice above Court Street to-morrow morning, but were forced to do it this afternoon. Two charges were exploded, the ice, more than three feet thick, being dislodged for half a mile up the river. It permitted the water to flow down and carried the broken ice with it, thus preventing a flood in the city.

The force of the explosions threw immense blocks of ice 500 feet in the air. The train sheds of the Erie and Lehigh Valley stations were perforated by ice cakes, and one man was struck on the head and injured. A cake of ice fell upon the roof of Police Headquarters, penetrating to the gymnasium. Many plate glass windows were broken on both sides of the river.

MOUNT MORRIS, N. Y., March 17.—An ice jam at Portageville, sixteen miles above here, went out this morning. Warning was sent by telephone to persons living along the river and household effects were moved to points of safety. Cakes weighing tons went over Portage Falls.

Three miles below Portage the gorge is narrow. Bends in the river held the ice back for an hour, causing the water to back up. Cattle were lost by many farmers and there was general damage to property.

The ice jammed again at Smoky Hollow, near Gibsonville, and the flats are covered with ten or fifteen feet of water. Travel over several highways has been held up. It is expected that it will take twenty-four hours of warm weather to break up the new jam unless there is a heavy rain.

There is not enough water in the river to carry off the ice, and when it reaches Mount Morris it is feared it will back up and the entire Genesee Valley will be flooded.

Men's All-Silk Shirts at 3.85
values 5.00 and 6.00
Great Sale Beginning Today

¶ The last word in shirt styles and the last word in shirt values—not chronologically, but actually, not by the calendar, but by comparison, not by our standards alone, but by all standards.

¶ A shirtmaker, who is new to you and to us, is making a bold bid for some of our shirt business, and by way of doing the thing handsomely, he has made up 1,200 beautiful silk shirts, the fabrics for which were first selected by us from his full sample line of new and exclusive shirtings. That explains how we come by this gorgeous collection of silk shirts, whose weaves, colorings, and designs are the finest that American looms can produce. Incidentally, it may interest you to know that it will cost you 5.00 to 6.00 to duplicate these shirts, and in certain pseudo-exclusive shops the selfsame shirts will cost you 7.50. It is just one more instance where we are ahead of the other fellow.

¶ Look them over. All new Spring patterns, but lifted out of mediocrity by the exclusiveness of their designs. Ever see anything handsomer in your life? We never did, and we have seen some fine shirtings in our time. Feel the texture of the fabrics—softer than eiderdown. See how rich the colors are, some plain and others combination colors, woven on white and cream grounds. As for the workmanship, all we have to say is this: That although the maker is new to us, he is old in his knowledge of shirt-making. Why, you could not buy better workmanship, we do not care how much you pay for your shirts.

Sizes 14 to 18. Plain bosom, with double French cuffs attached. All sleeve lengths.

Men's Spring Overcoats
at Saks'
the authoritative centre for Men's styles

¶ In a well composed program, you will always find the Speaker of the Evening sandwiched between lesser lights. The piece de resistance of any performance should be more or less centrally located between the beginning and the end. For example: Whatever glimmerings of Spring overcoat styles have lately flitted fitfully across these selfsame columns were but the lesser lights preceding the Speaker of the Evening. Thus is our entrance on this great theme of style in clothes nicely and appropriately chosen.

¶ Let us survey the situation, first in general, thereafter in particular. Briefly, we may tell you that diversity has never before been so apparent in style, in fabric, and in color. The season is a kaleidoscopic stir of style and shade, wherein hard, uncompromising lines and dull drabs are more conspicuously absent than ever. It is a season of pleasing variety, but most of all, it is a season of soft and languid lines.

The Covert Coat at 35.00
in particular

¶ From a selection which would tax any man's choice, we have finally hit upon the Covert Coat as our first choice for Spring wear. Made of covert cloth, tan color, and cut fairly long, just to the knee, to be accurate. All seams strapped, patch pockets with flaps, and self collar. A button-through garment, silk-lined, with short-waisted belt and narrow shoulders. It is an epic of style, smart, unobtrusive, yet peculiarly sufficient. Has grace of line, perfection of finish, and is a model of tailoring. In Raglans and 38-inch box coats, made in various shades of tan, prices range from 30.00 to 35.00.

THE TIMES'S DAILY TRANSATLANTIC WIRELESS AND CABLE DISPATCHES

GERMAN LINES RAISE OCEAN FREIGHT RATES

RATES HERE UNCHANGED

Local Agents Say Any Action by Other Lines Will Be Initiated Abroad.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—Transatlantic freight rates are to be heavily increased forthwith as a result of the British and German coal strikes. A conference of Hamburg and Bremen shipping interests, which took place yesterday decided, THE TIMES correspondent learns, to increase the carrying charges 10 per cent. to distant ports, and 15 per cent. for near-by ports and coasting service. The companies, which voted to take this action, operate in accord with the leading shipping lines abroad. This advance is to cover the increased cost of coal, and will continue in force until fuel is again obtainable at normal prices.

The German strike gives no prospect of cessation, though the number of men who refuse to work has dropped to a certain extent during the past forty-eight hours. The presence of the military seems to put an end to excesses, and the strike area is now tranquil.

Lloyd B. Sanderson, who is one of the well-known freight experts in the Atlantic trade, said last night that the rise of 10 per cent. in German freight rates was known here on Friday, but thus far had not affected the British lines.

"There is no conference on Atlantic freights," said Mr. Sanderson, "as there is in the passenger department of the steamship business.

"Rates are arbitrary and fluctuate frequently. They may go up one day and down the next, according to the conditions of the shipping trade. It is possible that the rates may be raised all round during the coming week if the coal strike continues, but I do not think they would jump 10 per cent. at once."

Inquiries made last night among the agents of the British lines running to this port and Boston confirmed the opinion of Mr. Sanderson that there was no prospect of any immediate rise in freight rates. The managers said that they were awaiting further developments from the other side, and the change of rates would be decided upon there, as it has been in the case of the German steamship companies.

TORIES MAY FIGHT WAGE BILL.

Political Crisis Threatened by Asquith Plan to End Strike.

LONDON, Monday, March 18.—The settlement of the coal strike seems not unlikely to involve a serious political crisis.

The opposition party in the House of Commons was expected to adopt an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the Government's minimum wage bill. The Conservative organs. however, are beginning to hint that unless the Government's measure proves to be a "strong" one, such benevolence cannot be counted on. but that the opposition will be free to treat the bill as a contentious measure.

As it is practically certain that any bill acceptable to the Labor Party would be distasteful to the Conservatives, long and heated debates may arise before the Government is able to put the bill through Parliament.

Even if the fate of the Government itself does not become involved, predictions are now being made that the strike will be ended by disintegration or exhaustion before the bill becomes a law. William J. Thorne, M. P. for Westham, declares that if the strike lasts six weeks the trades unions of the country will be bankrupt.

Much may depend on the attitude of the Irish Party. John E. Redmond, the Irish Parliamentary leader, will be placed in a difficult position. Nearly all the labor and Socialist members of the House of Commons are Home Rulers, whose sympathy he desires to retain, but he would almost be compelled to support the Government, because a coalition of the Conservatives, Laborites, and Redmondites against the Minimum Wage bill, would wreck the Government and ruin the chances of obtaining home rule.

SCOTTISH DUCHESS DEAD.

Her Grace of Buccleuch Dies in Edinburgh—Prominent in Victoria's Court

LONDON, March 17.—The Duchess of Buccleuch died this morning at Dalkeith House, Edinburgh.

Her death throws half the peerage into mourning, owing to her many matrimonial connections, and casts an additional shadow on the social season, which is already suffering from the recent death of the Duke of Fife.

The Duchess was one of the few remaining grand dames who were prominent personalities of the Court of Queen Victoria, and was for several administrations Mistress of the Robes to that monarch. For the past eleven years she held that position to Queen Alexandra.

The post of Mistress of the Robes was regarded as a political one during the reign of Queen Victoria, but ceased to have that significance in the household of Queen Alexandra. A few years ago the Duchess, for this reason, desired to resign the post, but Queen Alexandra induced her to continue.

The Duchess was a great hostess and remarkably exclusive in her entertainments at her London house. She was a charming and popular woman, but a grand dame to her finger tips.

The Duchess of Buccleuch before her marriage known as Lady Louisa Jane Hamilton, was the third daughter of the first Duke of Abercorn. She was married to the Duke in 1859. Queen Victoria bestowed on her the Victoria and Albert Order. Her husband succeeded to the title in 1884, and is a Knight of the Garter and a Privy Councilor. Five sons and two daughters survive her, the eldest being the Earl of Dalkeith.

The Duchess was one of the most powerful leaders of the social world in the United Kingdom. The celebration of the Buccleuch's golden wedding in 1909 was a notable event. Her father, the first Duke of Abercorn, King Edward used to call "Old Splendid" for his fine appearance. The Duchess's sisters are the Marchionesses of Blandford and Lansdowne. The Dukes of Roxburghe and Marlborough are her nephews.

Dalkeith Palace, the home of the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, is one of the most interesting places in Scotland. It belonged first to the Grahams, who received it from King David I. It passed to the Douglass family, who long ago entertained there the famous historian, Froissart, and he describes it in his "Chronicles." It was purchased from them by the first Duchess of Buccleuch in 1642. Almost every King of Scotland has slept beneath its roof. James I. and Charles I. held Court there. It likewise sheltered for a time Oliver Cromwell, and it is said that it was in the dining room of Dalkeith Palace that Gen. Monk planned the restoration of Charles II. It is particularly associated with the Duke of Monmouth, who headed a rebellion against James II.

AIRSHIP CAMPAIGN FAILS.

Vedrines Is Defeated as Candidate for Chamber in Limoux.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 17.—After an extraordinary campaign by aeroplane, Vedrines was defeated to-day by 7,690 to 6,927 votes in Limoux in his effort to be elected to the Chamber of Deputies as "member for aviation." The victor was M. Bonnail, official candidate of the Radical and Socialist Party.

The volatile little airman had no one to organize meetings for him nor canvassers, but brought his aeroplane and his tempestuous eloquence, illustrated by a wealth of emphatic gesture, to aid his campaign. He declared that he belonged to no party, but to France. While his opponent talked on politics to the peasantry, Vedrines painted in garish colors France's future in the air. He insisted on the necessity of giving the nation a great aerial fleet and of having men in Parliament who knew how to fly.

On Friday he flew from dawn to sunset over 152 communes or divisions of Limoux. At night, leaving his aeroplane, he harangued the town folk in the marketplace. His opponent in one village, while addressing a meeting from a terrace adjacent to a Vedrines gathering, was howled down, but the ballot to-day went against the airman.

OUR DANCE PLEASES BERLIN.

One of the Hits of the Thalia's Newest Musical Comedy Success.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—"Autoliebchen," the newest German musical comedy, was produced at the Thalia Theatre last night. It encountered a roaring reception, and was an instantaneous success. Indications are that it will rival the triumph of its immediate predecessor at the Thalia, "Polnische Wirtschaft," which has just scored the amazing record of six hundred consecutive performances.

The author of "Autoliebchen," which means "A Taxi Sweetheart," is Jean Kren, manager of the Thalia Theatre, who played many years ago in New York in a farce called "Hodge Podge." The music is by Jean Gilbert, the composer of "Polnische Wirtschaft." One of the big hits of the new piece is a waltz song entitled "Come and Two Step with Me," dealing with the prevailing German craze for the American style of dancing.

"The Broadway Girl," a farce with a New York background, is a successful novelty at the Folies Caprice Theatre.

MOROCCO PROTECTORATE.

France Takes Step to Obtain Treaty from the Sultan.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, March 18.—The London Times has the following dispatch from its Paris correspondent:

"M. Regnault has left Tangier for Fez, to negotiate a treaty for a French protectorate over Morocco.

"The last Spanish proposals on the question of territorial compensation are regarded as unacceptable, and amount to a rejection of the French demands. The Ministers met in council yesterday under the Presidency of M. Fallières, and it is understood that they unanimously agreed that the Spanish proposals could not be entertained.

"It is admitted that the situation might become seriously complicated if France were to occupy the territories to which she lays claim in the Spanish sphere and if Spain were either to forestall or counteract this move by occupying Tetuan and Arzilla.

"Those who continue to believe a rupture may be avoided point out that quite apart from the general interests of Great Britain in the Madrid negotiations, the renewal of British good offices would be directly relevant, so long as the question of the status of Tangier remains unsettled.

"According to a message from Fez, published in the Temps, the Sultan is reported to have had an attack of neurasthenia, and wanted to abdicate, but was dissuaded from carrying out his intention.

SIDE SLASHED SKIRT MAKES PARIS STIR

Seen First at Auteuil Races Yesterday, It Exposes Wearer's Knee as She Walks.

OPEN MESH STOCKINGS

This Is Startling Feature of Day's Showing of Novelties, Forecasting the Coming Styles.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 17.—Although it is stated that the great Paris dressmakers have agreed among themselves not to show their Spring season models until the opening races at Longchamps on Easter Monday, the Sunday race meetings at Auteuil continue to furnish a good idea of the lines along which the new creations are being fashioned.

The Tallien costume, which promises to be one of the most striking novelties of the coming season, made its début in the inclosure at Auteuil this afternoon and created a mild sensation. Taking its name from the famous Directoire beauty, Mme. Tallien, the feature of the new costume is a skirt slit at the side well above the knee. The dress worn this afternoon consisted of a black skirt with a high slash, showing the wearer's knee as she walked.

The corsage was pink, and with it was worn a white hat, surmounted by a magnificent osprey. If the directoire stocking, made of silken net work with very large meshes, is to be worn with the dress, as it is said, the effect will be startling.

A charming effect was seen in a black morning costume, consisting of jupe fourreau with large insertions on either side of black mourning crepe, which expanded as the wearer walked, giving the impression of accordion pleating.

There were a great many tailormades in the now all-prevalent taffeta, flowered or in the blue plume color or black. Spiral tafeta dresses wound in graceful curves around the body were most becoming, and emphasized the rejuvenating effect of the new textile.

Nearly all the tailormades have deep V-shaped décolleté corsages, a distinct inconvenience to the wearers in the chilly weather at the races this afternoon.

A mulberry-colored tailormade in rough wool was a good illustration of the effective use that can be made of this fashionable cloth.

Mlle. Polaire, the dancer, was wearing a kind of a shooting costume of coarse green wool, with a border of ruddy brown and green stripes, with a green leather belt around the waist. With it she wore boots with green tops. The effect was bizarre in the extreme.

LONDON, March 17.—The Italian fleet is off Mitylene and a Russian squadron has assembled ten miles from the entrance to the Strait of Constantinople, according to a dispatch from the Turkish capital.

The dispatch adds that an attempt has been made to assassinate the Minister of the Interior while traveling in Albania. Two of the Minister's attendants were wounded.

POMPEII CHARMS MR. MORGAN

He Is Especially Captivated by the Frescoes in New Excavations.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

NAPLES, March 17.—When J. Pierpont Morgan went to Pompeii Friday he was accompanied to the new excavations by Prof. Spinazzola, Director of Works, who showed him the new treasures recently unearthed. He went through the house which was brought to light, admiring the atrium and peristillium, and especially the original fountain, with many jets of water and many statues, from which it was possible to identify the proprietor. Mr. Morgan gazed about with the keenest interest and appreciation, and was especially captivated by the beautiful frescoes. It was surprising to see how the bed of cinders, several feet deep, had preserved even the most delicate object almost intact. Thus the thermopolium, or Pompeiian bar, reappeared as it was nearly 2,000 years ago.

Mr. Morgan promised to return again.

NEW STAR'S PUZZLE.

Dark Lines in the Hydrogen Band Mystify Astronomers.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—The discoverer of the new star in Gemini was Enebo of Dombaas, Norway, who is a regular observer of variable stars.

The new star has been observed at Greenwish, being in right ascension 6 hours 49 minutes 15 seconds, north declination 32 degrees of the Gemini, 9 degrees west of Castor, and 3 degrees northeast of Turner's Nova of 1903.

The new star is nearly of the magnitude of Theta, but fainter and of distinctly redder color. A photograph of Nova's spectrum, obtained at Greenwich, using a 30 degrees prism in front of an object glass of a Franklin-Adams camera, shows the characteristic bright hydrogen bands, accompanied by dark bands on the side toward the violet.

Roumanian Among Those Accused of Connection with Plot—Dalba Still Insists He Was Alone.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, March 17.—The escape of King Victor Emmanuel from the dastardly attempt of an assassin was communicated by wireless to the ships of the navy and the troops in Tripoli.

Thus the Italian sailors and soldiers fighting across the sea rejoiced together with the Italians at home at the safety of their sovereign, again appreciating the genius of their compatriot, Marconi, who with his invention made this communication possible.

ROME, March 17.—Several arrests have been made in connection with the attempt to assassinate King Victor Emmanuel last week.

Among those taken into custody is Nicholas Tacito, a Roumanian, who was mentioned in a report sent to the Government by the Italian Consul at Geneva recently as being connected with a plot hatched there to kill King Victor Emmanuel, and also Premier Giolitti and Foreign Minister Marquis di San Giuliano. Tacito was arrested in Rome.

Antonio Dalba, who fired at the King, was questioned again to-day in an endeavor to obtain a better insight into the attempted assassination. He admitted that he used thirty-five cartridges in target practice, preparatory to his attempt to kill the King, but refused to say where the practice was done. He again insisted that he alone was responsible for the attempt.

Some persons declare it to be their belief that Dalba's mind has been affected by the Turco-Italian War, and that after reading an account of the latest fight between the Turks and Italians at Derna, Dalba exclaimed, "How many men are sent to the front to be butchered!"

Since then Dick had been sad and morose. The Journal says that yesterday, when taken out for exercise, the animal threw itself under a tramway car and was killed.

How to Interpret Piano Music Correctly

Music beneficially affects the welfare of the American home, and for that reason is of great interest to everyone who loves his country.

While this is an easily demonstrated fact, you may well say that we selfishly write it and talk it, because the wider the fact is realized the greater the demand for pianos in the home.

It is true that every word we publish in the papers is an effort to sell a Sterling Playerpiano and extend our business.

But it is equally true that there is not one of our pianos sold that doesn't give us the pleasurable satisfaction of knowing that we have sent out an instrument which is exactly what we have said it is, and that it will produce untold pleasure and benefit to the purchaser.

To interpret piano music correctly, no matter how dearly one loves it, requires technical skill, hard study and constant practice.

That is one reason why the great music of the world is seldom attempted by the pianist who has no time to devote to hours of practice.

The popular airs and simple pieces are not only generally the limit of one's repertoire, but the production of a longing for something greater, which a lack of technical skill prevents attaining.

Here is where the

playable by hand or the music roll, comes in and opens up the world's countless treasures of music to anyone, not only to the pianist, but to you who have never played a note in your life.

You will probably start with the simple things, but every day enlarges your vision, until the wonderful meaning of the great music becomes a part of your life and is easily conveyed by you to others through your individual interpretation.

The Sterling Playerpiano is not an accident; it is the product of over half a century of conscientious piano building, combining the genius of the artist with the skill of the honest craftsman.

It is easy to buy on our monthly payment plan—it is not a luxury but a necessity.

We have Playerpianos from $450.00 up to $750.00—everyone sold with the broadest guarantee ever given in the piano business.

Smith Gray & Co.
Foremost Clothiers Since 1845

Have your Spring and Summer clothes tailored to your individual measure by the Smith Gray & Co. special tailoring organization.

Today is made the initial Spring and Summer New York showing by our special tailoring department—a department, which, though our youngest, still in its swaddling clothes, so to speak, less than two years old, has scored a success which stands as a world's record. It serves the more discriminatingly dressed men not only in seven hundred cities from coast to coast, but in Cuba, Porto Rico, far off Alaska and manywhere in South America—and each successive season the volume of business has trebled, which in itself is unquestionably the strongest compliment that can be paid to the quality of garments tailored.

Among the manifold advantages which are yours as a result of the service rendered by this department, you may:

Select from over three hundred exclusive custom fabrics—have them tailored to your individual measure in any one of the more than thirty Continental, English or Fifth Avenue models—you may, in short, have your own individual ideas worked out in whatever manner and way suits you best and arrange for deliveries to suit your convenience.

In many ways the service is unique, offering you, as it does, a latitude of choice, an individuality of expression and a personal service impossible in any other way or by any other method. And since by reason of the fact that this department is conducted on a wholesale basis and on individual service, the prices are based entirely on wholesale production and, in consequence, a value results that is or has not been attained in any other tailored-to-measure clothes.

Suits and Overcoats made to measure at 20.00 to 50.00 with very unusual values at 20.00, 25.00 and 30.00.

LOAN TO CHINA REFUSED BY POWERS

Russia Wants Her Political Privileges in Manchuria Recognized First.

NO RIGHTS TO OTHER NATIONS

"Four-Power" Group Angry Over Loan Belgians Gave and No Money is Forthcoming.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at St. Petersburg says regarding China's foreign loan, which is to be floated for about £60,000,000, that Russia will take part only on the express stipulation that the republic will continue to recognize all the privileges Russia enjoyed under the monarchical régime. Russia maintains that her politcal and commercial standing in Manchuria, Mongolia, and Chili Province differs materially from that of all other powers, and she is resolved to exercise to the full, in the future as in the past, the advantages accruing to her from that standing.

In other words the advance of money by other States, which in all kindred cases carries with it certain unstipulated political rights, and in certain contingencies creates a lien on the borrower's territory, shall in this instance be deemed to confer upon the other creditors no rights or liens, the exercise of which would impair or modify Russia's States in the Chinese Provinces named. The provision is being insisted upon in consequence of proposals for neutralizing Manchuria, which emanated from American Secretary of State Knox about two years ago. If the contemplated financial transaction be a loan, and nothing more, it is believed the United States will feel no hesitation in acquiescing in Russia's desire.

PEKING, March 17.—It is understood that the scheme for financing China until the end of June has been suspended in consequence of the loan furnished by the Anglo-Belgian syndicate. In consequence of this alleged breach of faith, the "four powers" group have refused to advance the 1,000,000 taels, ($600,000,) which was promised on Saturday, and are awaiting advices from their respective Governments.

When Premier Tang Shao-Yi implored prompt financial assistance, owing to the necessity of paying off 500,000 soldiers, he did not hint at any other loan, although negotiations to that end were then proceeding. The incident is attributed to the Chinese desire to play off rival foreign interests against one another.

Tang Shao-Yi has left here for Nanking. The southern delegates with whom he came to Peking departed several days ago. Certain foreign Ministers who have met Tang Shao-Yi consider him something of a visionary, and the southern delegation generally have disappointed the diplomatic representatives. With one exception, they were apparently without experience. They have been ardent workers for the cause, but seemingly do not realize that the republic was achieved with few sacrifices and largely because the Manchus did not seriously combat the delegates.

Anarchy and famine prevail throughout the country. The Nation's finances are in a chaotic condition and China is divided by sentiment into several sections.

The legations do not fear any immediate or widespread risings or anti-foreign attacks, but do not believe the country will be reunited, the army disbanded, and reorganization and progressive development accomplished without long and intense suffering and serious political struggles.

TIEN-TSIN, March 17.—A battalion of the Fifteenth Infantry, which left Manila March 9, arrived here this morning, having been detained outside Taku since Friday, owing to a storm. The battalion, which is commanded by Lieut. Col. Edward A. Root, is made up of 444 men, including a band.

The band of the British Somerset Regiment awaited the coming of the American troops at the railway station here yesterday and there was much disappointment when it was announced they had been delayed.

The Americans are now quartered in a large warehouse in the French concession. The accommodations being given them are similar to those accorded the earlier detachments of American troops from the Philippines.

HONGKONG, March 17.—Two hundred insurgents were executed yesterday at Canton, near Sha Meen, the foreign quarter.

The late reports say that operations have been suspended temporarily in Canton, but that there has been severe fighting at Swatow, twenty-five miles from Canton, between the Hakka tribesmen and Cantonese troops.

FALSE PROPHET ARRESTED.

Efforts to Swindle Widow the Downfall of Venerated Silesian.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—A man named Bursy, who is venerated in Upper Silesia as a prophet and a saint, was arrested yesterday, charged with a long succession of frauds. In reality, the prophet is a person of humble origin, with a constitutional disinclination to work, but he managed to persuade the ignorant peasants that he was endowed with supernatural powers and was able to foretell the future.

From all parts of Silesia pilgrims came for his aid and advice. He always received them in a room adorned with religious pictures, fragrant with incense, and burning dimly lit lamps such as are hung before altars in churches. In this mystic atmosphere, he predicted coming events in the lives of his dupes. Sometimes as many as a hundred persons visited him in a single day.

His fees and gratuities brought him an annual income estimated at $6,000, and he might still be in receipt of this agreeable competency, but for the outcry made by a poor widow from whom he tried to extort $60, for which he guaranteed to rescue her husband from sufferings he was supposed to be enduring in the other world. The woman made a great effort to raise the money, and while doing so the story got to the ears of the police, who promptly arrested the swindler.

MONEY STRINGENCY DISTRESSES AUSTRIA

Financial Press Write with Anxiety About the Severe and Unseasonable Conditions.

WARNING BY BANK OFFICER

Financiers Hope Flow of French Capital Will Be Resumed and Thus Bring Relief.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Monday, March 18.—The London Times has the following dispatch from its Vienna correspondent:

"The unseasonable stringency of the Austro-Hungarian money market continues unabated. In normal times dear money attracts foreign remittances, which tend to bring down the discount rates and improve foreign exchanges. Now, however, no remittances are received, and the unfavorable balance of trade necessitates the payment of balances, due to foreigners, while even the foreign holders of Austrian Treasury bills, due for redemption, withdraw the cash they receive.

"The Austrian financial press write with anxiety of the situation, the Neue Freie Presse in particular remarking that German banknotes are now nearly as dear as they were at the moment of greatest strain last Autumn, while bills on Paris and London stand three-fifths of 1 per cent. above mint par.

"The acute symptoms of stringency date from the warnings given to the German banks by President von Havenstein, and to the Austro-Hungarian bankers by the Secretary General of the Joint State Bank.

"The Austro-Hungarian Bank is stated to have refused last week to discount a number of bills presented by Viennese banks, but it does not appear whether the rejected bills were accommodation paper or building credit bills of the kind described by the Secretary General, and reading: 'At three months from date I will renew.'

"The conclusion drawn from the situation is that bankers and industries must cut their limbs according to their coat and remember that the present business epoch in Germany and Austro-Hungary was based upon the expectation that large amounts of foreign, and particularly French, capital could be available.

"During the Morocco crisis the flow of French capital was checked, and has since set in other directions. Some Austrian financiers hope there will presently be a reflux, though they have not, perhaps, quite realized the degree in which the changed spirit of the French people may affect the uses to which the French will allow their savings to be put."

TAFT IN BOSTON TO-DAY.

There for St. Patrick's Day Fetes—In New Hampshire To-morrow.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—President Taft left Washington at 5:35 o'clock this evening for Boston, where he will participate in the celebration of St. Patrick's Day to-morrow. He was accompanied by Secretary Hilles, Major Rhodes, and others, forming his traveling party. Before his return to Washington on Wednesday the President will speak at Nashua, Manchester, and Concord, N. H.

BOSTON, March 17.—President Taft will be Boston's guest in the celebration of St. Patrick's Day. Upon his arrival at the South Station about 7 o'clock to-morrow morning President Taft will be escorted by Mayor Fitzgerald and Samuel J. Elder to the City Club, and after a "continental" breakfast will receive the club members.

The President will be the guest of the city at a second breakfast at 9:30. He will later attend the meeting of the Massachusetts Peace Society, and address the members of the Massachusetts Legislature at the State House. After lunching with the Pilgrim Publicity Association the President will review the Evacuation Day parade in South Boston and visit the Taft League.

In the evening he will attend the Charitable Irish Association dinner and will also make brief visits to dinners of the Boston Bank Officers' Association, the Boston Paper Manufacturers' Association, and the Yale Club.

The President will pass the night at the Somerset, leaving early on Tuesday for New Hampshire, where he will make several addresses, and return here on Tuesday night on his journey back to Washington.

W. C. Brown's Blooded Cattle Frozen.

Special to The New York Times.

SIDNEY, Neb., March 17.—As the result of the big blizzard of last week, W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central Railroad, is short almost a full carload of very valuable blooded cattle which were being shipped from his Iowa farm to his cattle ranch at Gooding, Idaho. The train was side-tracked somewhere during the storm and when the car was unlocked here yesterday, many of the animals were found frozen to death. Among the dead cattle was a bull valued at $5,000.

ACCEPT PLAN FOR UNITED WIRELESS

Stockholders Said to Have Agreed Upon Changes to Put the Company on Its Feet.

RETORT FROM MARCONI

Wireless Inventor Declares Statement by United Stockholders is Full of Inaccuracies and Misstatements.

The plan for reorganizing the United Wireless Telegraph Company has been agreed upon and the work of reorganization will be begun at once, according to a statement given out by Saul S. Myers of 60 Wall St., counsel for the reorganization committee of the stockholders, last night. The statement in addition charges the Marconi Wireless Company with attempting to depress the value of the United Company's assets by bringing a patent infringement suit at a critical time in the United Company's history. According to the statement, which is signed by Arthur P. West, Chairman of the reorganization committee, shareholders having upward of 300,000 shares of stock have sent in their subscriptions and an equal number have written the committee that they would be glad to come into the reorganization if the time limit was extended to April 1. This has been done.

Mr. West declares the suit of the Marconi Company is an attempt of foreign inventors to establish a patent monopoly.

The United Company, according to Mr. West, intends to fight the suits, and he declares that if the Marconi Company is able to establish a patent monopoly the Government as well as the commercial companies here will be at the mercy of the Marconi Company.

Mr. West was asked whether there was any truth in the report that there would be a consolidation with the Marconi Company. He replied that last December one of the trustees in bankruptcy of the United Company went to London, and while there conferred with the Marconi officials. At that time the Marconi Company made a proposition which was declined. The negotiations were later taken up by cable, and finally Godfrey Isaacs, the Managing Director of the English company, came to this country, he said, arriving a few days ago on the Lusitania for the purpose of conferring with the Reorganization Committee with a view to a consolidation of the two companies. Mr. West said that the United Company would not be in favor of a consolidation as long as the Marconi Company displayed a hostile attitude.

When shown the statement of Mr. Myers last night Mr. Marconi glanced through it and said that it was too full of inaccuracies and misstatements of fact to be answered offhand. He referred the reporters to Mr. Isaacs, Managing Director of the Marconi Company.

"The statement that our patent suit was not upheld is false," Mr. Marconi said. "It is true that certain claims were held invalid, but they were not important."

At the Holland House Mr. Isaacs said that the statement was too long and too full of inaccuracies for him to answer. "I do not even care to answer it," he continued, "as the judgment of Justice Townsend speaks for itself and is public property. It is only a few days until March 25, when the second suit is to be tried and the rights of the Marconi company will again be upheld by the Supreme Court. If the defendants have the case deferred they will gain nothing, for it is bound to come to trial. This is all I care to say."

VESPER SERVICES FOR THE SIXTY-NINTH

CARDINAL FARLEY THERE

Bugles and Drums Used in the Impressive Service—Thousands Throng the Cathedral.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment, 1,500 strong, under command of Col. Louis D. Conley, attended vespers yesterday afternoon at St. Patrick's Cathedral. The soldiers, in dress uniform, left the armory in Lexington Avenue shortly before 4 o'clock, and, turning into East Twenty-sixth Street, marched to Fifth Avenue and then to the Cathedral.

Thousands of people lined Fifth Avenue, from Twenty-sixth to Fiftieth Streets, and watched the marching regiment, which had no music except drums and bugles. Even these were only used as an incident to the Cathedral service.

At Fiftieth Street, a throng gathered on the steps leading to the main entrance of the Cathedral, and as the regiment approached the chimes from the towers pealed out a welcome. Flying from each side of the towers was a large American flag.

Mgr. Lavelle, rector of the Cathedral, with two acolytes, met Col. Conley and his men at the main door and escorted them down the middle aisles, which had been reserved for their use. When the regiment was seated, the procession from the sacristy began. First were two hundred altar boys, preceded by cross bearers; a dozen seminarians from Dunwoodie, and various priests of the Cathedral.

The last of the procession was brought up by Cardinal Farley, attired in the ermine of his office, who ascended his throne and sat there until the vesper service was completed.

Mgr. Lavelle was the celebrant of the vesper service, and during it two hundred children from the Cathedral school and the seminarians alternated in the singing of the responses and hymns. Just as the procession came out the organist in the choir loft started up with a hymn to St. Patrick.

At the conclusion of the services, Cardinal Farley was robed to give benediction of the Blessed Sacrament. When the Host was elevated in the monstrance there was a fanfare of trumpets, a roll of drums and the colors of the regiment were lowered. The services took about one hour, and then the regiment returned to the armory, using the same route by which they had reached the Cathedral.

The Rev. W. B. Martin of the Cathedral clergy delivered a sermon on the life of St. Patrick, and told the men of the Sixty-ninth that lessons of patriotism could be learned by studying the life of the apostle of Ireland.

The church was crowded to its capacity, thousands of men standing in the aisles during the services.

SHAMROCK SHOWER BY MAIL.

Hundreds of Packages Came Over from Ireland on the Lusitania.

When the Irish mail, which arrived on the Lusitania on Friday, was opened up at the Terminal Branch of the Post Office, in Church Street, on Saturday and yesterday, it made the branch station look more like a garden than a Post Office. St. Patrick had cast a verdant shimmer over the mail this time with countless packages of shamrocks, bog, fern, and sold from "the ould country," weighing several tons.

Hundreds of letters that contained the little green tokens had opened, owing to the dampness of the shamrocks, which fell scattering over the floor, so that it became necessary for the clerks constantly to repair lots of the shamrock mail, putting the shamrocks back as best they could into the envelopes or boxes they came in. Many of the shamrocks came in registered packages weighing from one to three pounds. Some of the envelopes were so stuffed with the little green tokens that the Post Office clerks had to hand stamp them instead of running them through the canceling machines.

Besides shamrocks, the mail contained countless Irish postcards embellished in the green of the Emerald Isle and adorned with ludicrous pictures of Ireland's own Paddy and Paddy's own pig—Paddy following in tow of the pig, with the leading string leading Paddy and attached not to the pig's head but to its tail. There were also green handkerchiefs, ribbons, and the like; and little pipes filled with Irish sod, with shamrocks planted in the bowls. Some of the tokens were addressed to persons living in Fifth Avenue and on Riverside Drive, many to politicians at the City Hall and other municipal buildings, and a large number to various hospitals, including those on Blackwell's and Ward's Islands.

Most of the boxes containing these remembrances had verses on them. One of the favorite flights of Paddy's Pegasus was this:

> There's a dear little plant that grows in our Isle,
> 'Twas St. Patrick himself sure that set it;
> And the sun on his labor with pleasure did smile,
> And with dew from his eye often wet it.

The Irish Post Office clerks, as usual, did not forget their American brethren, many of the clerks in the local office getting shamrock remembrances from the clerks in Ireland.

IRELAND'S FRIENDS DINE.

Trouble Stirred Up Over a Free-for-All Seating Plan.

Ireland's American Friends, an organization which includes not only Irishmen but men of other nationalities, met last night at the Astor for the seventh annual dinner. There was no doubt about the friendship of all present for "dear old Ireland," but this could not be said of some of the diners in relation to each other.

There was no prearranged seating list, and this, it seems, was responsible for the trouble. The bill of fare, a green affair from top to bottom, contained the suggestion on its face that guests should select their own table companions. This resulted in crowding and an attempt was made, while the witty speeches were in process, to remove one man bodily for rowdyism. Being an Irishman, he said he was unalterably opposed to such action, and so he stayed.

Frank W. Smith, President of the Allied Catholic Society of the city, presided as toastmaster. The first thing he did was to send a man, who came into the room with a red carnation in his buttonhole, out of the room to be redecorated. The diner returned with a green carnation.

J. W. Hilly spoke for twenty-five minutes on a three-minute schedule, and the toastmaster ordered him to cut it short, but Mr. Hilly would not be suppressed.

Rabbi Samuel Schulman was one of the speakers, his subject being "Things that Separate and Those that Unite Us."

"We are separated by differences," he said, "and are united by sympathy; we are separated by culture, and are united by conscience; we are separated by our interests and occupations, and are united by justice; we are separated by our religions and are united by our religion."

Justice Gerard spoke on "The Irishman at the Bar."

"Do you think," the Justice declared, "that I could have found a more convivial subject than that? They say that one drop of Irish blood means success in love, war, business, and politics, but perhaps it is truer to say that the Irish really owe their success to standing on their own feet and in never kicking the fellow just below them off the ladder. This country ought to be especially thankful that the long years of Irish persecution by the English has sent so many Irishmen to this country."

Justice Isaac F. Russell dealt chiefly in reminiscences.

"I want to say," he said by way of introduction to his typically Irish speech, "that I'm still a hero in spite of the prevailing tendency of shooting and blowing up the Judges. I admit, though, that it's getting dangerous."

HOLD-UP MEN CONFESS.

They Were Caught in Trap the Police Set at Bowery Bank.

Raphael De Baise and Frank Parieso, two of the men caught in the police trap sprung Saturday near the Germania Bank on the Bowery, appeared for arraignment before Magistrate Murphy in the Essex Market Court yesterday.

They looked at the line of detectives waiting to testify that they had snatched a wallet from Ella Nichols, bookkeeper and cashier of the Covering and Supply Company, 232 West Street, then at the wallet with its bundle of bills, which Detective Reilly carried on his arm, and finally at Miss Nichols, the diminutive complaining witness. They completed their survey of the room by stepping forward and asking permission to enter pleas of guilty. Magistrate Murphy held both defendants without bail.

Mario Mondracchi was not required to plead, as Detective Reilly said he was convinced that this prisoner was only a curious observer. John Johnson, a Swedish sailor, was held as a material witness.

DOCTORS HAVE ADDED 12 YEARS TO OUR LIFE

Mortality Here Halved Since the Sixties, Says Dr. William H. Welsch.

WANTS AID FOR RESEARCH

Medical Colleges and Hospitals Should Have Identical Interests, He Believes.

Statistics which William H. Welsch, M. D., LL. D. gave in an address at the forty-third anniversary of the Presbyterian Hospital indicate that in the last half century about twelve years have been added to the period of human existence. Since the first actual records were taken in New York City in the middle sixties, he said, the rate of mortality had been reduced from thirty-five deaths in each thousand inhabitants to about fifteen or sixteen.

"This reduction in mortality," he said, "is the sequence wholly of our control of infectious diseases. The saving thus made relates only to the period of life under fifty years. We have no such saving knowledge regarding the organic diseases of advancing years which afflict especially those who have been active in affairs and who have large responsibilities. The ideal hospital can be a workshop in that direction."

Speaking of the contributions of large sums of money for investigation in medicine to increase the knowledge of human pathology, Dr. Welsch called attention to the number of independent institutes of research that have been established, and then said:

"But in these independent institutes there is danger of losing sight of the intimate and close connection that must exist between education and the advancemnt of knowledge; it is not possible to further the advancement of knowledge effectively and do nothing for the advancement of education. The roots of fruitful research must lie deep down in the educational conditions of our institutions. We may well ask whether in the past our hospitals and medical schools have furnished the most suitable environment for research.

"Is it not to some extent the inadequacy of conditions existing in our universities, hospitals, and medical schools which has led to the establishment of these independent institutes? In my judgment, the most suitable as well as the historic place for investigation is the university; its ideals and environment should furnish the best atmosphere for careful work of this kind. I am in sympathy with those who believe that the medical school and hospital should be in close proximity. That is not saying that existing arrangements will not do much good, but it would be far more useful if the hospital and the medical school were close together. It is not merely a matter of convenience but a matter of the whole atmosphere and spirit of the institutions. The stimulus given to those engaged in the work of the hospital wards will be far greater if they are in close touch with the laboratories of the medical school. I should like to see the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Presbyterian Hospital side by side, and the destinies of the two institutions identified."

New York's Lost Opportunity.

Dr. Welsch said that it was a cause for general wonder that this city had not fully realized and utilized its great possibilities for medical education. The largest amount of clinical material in America is collected in the hospitals here and little use is made out of it.

"In consequence the metropolis does not occupy, or it has ceased to occupy, the leadership in medicine which its location and opportunities justify it to claim," said Dr. Welsch. "But this alliance means that the first adequate measures have been taken to secure for New York the pre-eminence in medicine which belongs to it by virtue of its position. The type of hospital contemplated by the alliance is in no sense an experiment. Throughout the world the hospitals of the largest usefulness to the community are institutions which have combined the humanitarian with the educational and scientific interests of medicine. They are the hospitals that have made the most important contributions to medical science and that have won the greatest reputation.

"Such are the hospitals of France, of Vienna, Berlin, and London. Guy's Hospital in London, which is of this type, to some extent, initiated these conceptions in Great Britain. It was there that men like Richard Bright, Addison, and Hodgkin made their clinical studies and their contributions to the advancement of medicine.

"In this country Johns Hopkins Hospital of Baltimore has pursued similar ideals, so far as its resources permitted. Each and every hospital of this category has rendered eminent service not alone in the care of the indigent sick but in the training of medical men and in the promotion of medical knowledge. The affiliation does not, therefore, mean that the hospital is entering upon a field of work wholly unexplored, nor does it mean the undertaking of tasks that have not already been demonstrated to be entirely practicable."

Of Practical and Scientific Value.

Speaking of new resources and opportunities, Dr. Welsch said:

"As the result of this alliance (between the Presbyterian Hospital and the College of Physicians and Surgeons) an appeal for support threefold stronger than ever before should be made. Those whose interests are along philanthropic lines should be even more interested than they have been in the past, because the humanitarian service of the hospital will be greater than ever before. Those who realize the great service which the alliance means to medical education and hence to the community should feel that here is a most rewarding opportunity to aid by adding to the resources of the hospital and medical school. Those whose interests lie in the advancement of knowledge, and who realize what the possibilities are for the advancement of the welfare of mankind in adding to our knowledge of the intimate nature and causes of disease, with a prospect of better methods of prevention and treatment, should feel that here is an unsurpassed opportunity to contribute in that direction.

"From the three points of view—the philanthropic, the educational, and the scientific—the work contemplated is preaching the highest ideals in medical education. Undoubtedly many new problems will be created, which, if it is realized that the interests of the hospital and the university are fundamentally common interests, will be solved by a just spirit of co-operation between the two institutions, each preserving its independent corporate existence. I feel that I am expressing the thought of all those interested in philanthropy and in education when I voice the hope, a hope which is almost an assurance, that under the new conditions of affiliation the ideal hospital may be evolved."

QUARANTINED FOR BERI-BERI.

British Craft at Philadelphia with Six Men Stricken and Two Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—Lacking two members of its crew, who died from beri-beri, and six others stricken with the disease, the British bark Brilliant, which sailed from Bombay three months and sixteen days ago, reached the Marcus Hook quarantine station, a few miles below this city, to-day.

The Brilliant was last reported at St. Helena on Jan. 29. At that time there was no sickness on board. The first case, that of an American, developed sixteen days ago. The following day an English sailor fell a victim to the disease. Both men died in less than a week. The body of the American was brought to this port, while the Englishman's body was buried at sea. Six other sailors, two Germans, two Englishmen and two Madagascar negroes, were stricken when the Brilliant was two days out from the Delaware Breakwater.

When the vessel reached the Quarantine station, the six men were removed to the hospital and precautions were taken to prevent the spread of the disease to the twenty-seven men who remained aboard the craft.

The vessel, which is laden with iron ore, will be held in Quarantine for several days to see if any additional cases develop.

THIS HORSE A MAN KILLER.

Police Mount Adds Another to the Riders He Has Maimed.

Arab, a horse noted among the police of this city for his ugly disposition, nearly killed another policeman yesterday. He is at present attached to the Liberty Avenue Police Station in East New York. He kicks and bites, and neither man nor beast is safe when he is around. In his eight years in the department he has thrown many riders, and several of them have had to go to the hospital.

Policeman Edward McKie, a skilled rider, was jogging along on Arab in Crescent Street yesterday when the horse suddenly bounded into the air, threw his head around and snapped at the policeman's leg. McKie was taken by surprise and was thrown fifteen feet. He landed on his head and shoulders and was knocked unconscious. Arab ran for a block or so, then returned and stood by just out of reach of the stunned policeman. Other men caught the horse and McKie after regaining consciousness rode to the Liberty Avenue station where his wounds were treated by an ambulance surgeon.

SHIPS ARRIVE GALE SWEPT.

Storms Have Prevailed Since November, Shippers Say.

According to the Captains of incoming steamships there has been no let-up in the storms on the Atlantic which have prevailed since early in November. The Mackinaw, bound from London to Philadelphia with a general cargo, had to put in here yesterday for coal, after having been buffeted for twenty-two days by wind and wave. The Captain said the ship had encountered a succession of southwest and northwest gales with tremendous seas.

Capt. Kelway of the freighter Indraghira, which arrived yesterday from Glasgow, said that on March 11 and 12 the ship encountered a large ice field and was eighteen hours in getting clear of it. He had to steer to the southward, the Captain said, to prevent being jammed in by the floating ice. On March 15 the Indraghira sighted the British freighter Ripon, bound from Leith to Baltimore. She reported having her decks swept by heavy seas, and losing three of her lifeboats.

BOY IN THE PARK HUGS ELEPHANT'S LEG

Slips Into Hattie's Inclosure While Keeper Snyder Is Showing Off Her Tricks.

HE WANTED TO TAKE A RIDE

Zoo Animals All Show Signs of Joy as They Sniff the Balmy Air of Spring.

With the fine touch of Spring in the air yesterday, there was a March record-breaking throng at the Zoological Park in the Bronx and the Central Park Zoo. So warm was it that the lions, tigers and many of the other animals which are housed in Winter were turned out into the open-air cages.

In Bronx Park the spectacled bear made its first appearance since it was put into a heated portable house at the begining of Winter. Señor Lopez, the crane, and his companions, including the stately Hidalgo Pete, strutted about joyfully, and the baby bears had a regular outing.

The special object of attention and admiration in the Central Park Zoo was Hattie, the elephant. Keeper Snyder had her out several times in the lot back of the elephant house, where she performed her tricks with such eagerness that she started one of them before he could give the command.

In the early afternoon the keeper was putting Hattie through her paces before a crowd which surrouled the enclosure several deep. Hattie had climbed up on the wooden stand and amused the crowd by dancing what Snyder called a "turkey trot." Then Hattie was due to play a mouth organ solo. She climbed ponderously down from her stand, and while Snyder went to the door of the hay house to get the harmonica she went over to the edge of the enclosure to search for friends with peanuts.

The gaping crowd was watching the elephant as she continued to do a sort of jig step because, Snyder said, she was filled with the pure joy of living. The keeper got the harmonica and walked over to Hattie. She took it in her trunk and gave a few discordant blasts. Then she was called for a march across the inclosure, lifting high first one front foot and then the other

Snyder gave the command to advance, but Hattie never moved. The keeper touched her with his goad, whereupon she dropped her mouth organ, lifted up her trunk and trumpeted loudly.

"Come on, Hattie," commanded Snyder and again the goad struck her in the side. The elephant made no move to obey. At that moment some of the spectators shouted a warning.

"Don't let her move!" called out one woman as another gave a scream of terror.

Hattie began to swing her trunk uneasily, but did not move a foot. With the first shout of warning Snyder dropped back to see what was wrong. Then he discovered the cause of Hattie's failure to carry out his orders and the alarm of the spectators. A small boy in a sailor suit had had his arms clasped about one of her legs.

While the exhibition of the elephant's tricks was in progress the boy had slipped into the inclosure unnoticed.

When Snyder saw the youngster he said he was apparently trying to shin up the elephant's leg as one would a tree and was laughing with glee, unconscious of danger.

"Want to ride elephant," said he to the astonished keeper.

"Sure," said Snyder; "Hattie knows what you want, old fellow."

He picked the boy up, and Hattie then began to move about. The crowd cheered and the elephant poked an inquiring trunk up at the boy. This was too much for him, and he broke into tears.

"What's your name?" asked the keeper.

"I'm Buster," said the boy, tearfully.

Just then the cheers of the crowd were silenced by the cry of a woman. It was "Buster's" mother, who had just discovered that her son was missing. Regardless of Snyder and Hattie, she ran into the inclosure.

"Here, you," she said, angrily, "give me my boy."

Snyder deposited the boy on the ground, and the irate mother towed the tearful boy out of the danger zone. That was the last Snyder saw of him, and Hattie began her interrupted performance without the word of command at exactly the point where it had been interrupted.

The ingenious Snyder says he has taught three squirrels to know the difference between right and left and to execute marching orders. When the Winter became so severe that there was danger of the squirrels starving, Snyder used to go through the Park with a bag of nuts, distributing them. In this way, he said, the squirrels got to know him, and the three are now his great friends, following him to the hayhouse and making their headquarters near the source of supply. "The Three Guardsmen" Snyder calls them.

"Those squirrels know how to obey when I say right or left or forward," said the veracious keeper. "I taught them by giving them nuts as a reward for good work."

SAILOR ASSAULTS CONSUL.

Lies In Wait Near Church and Strikes Him Down as He Comes Out.

The Greek Consul General, Demetrius Nicolas Botassi, was assaulted as he was leaving Holy Trinity Church at Seventy-second Street, near Lexington Avenue, shortly before noon yesterday by a sailor who had been waiting there for him. The sailor, who later said he was Antoni Vasselaro of 96 Roosevelt Street, struck the Consul General with his fist, knocking him down.

Members of the congregation seized the sailor and he would have been roughly handled had not the Rev. Father Courkolis, still wearing his vestments, run out of the church and quieted the disturbance.

At the East Sixty-seventh Street Station Vasselaro said the Consul General had caused his discharge from the United States yacht William Cleveland, and that he assaulted him in revenge. He was locked up.

Mr. Botassi said he had never before heard of either Vasselaro or the yacht William Cleveland, and that consequently the man's grievance was a fancied one.

8,523 TRESPASSERS KILLED.

Nearly as Many More Hurt in Ten Years on Pennsylvania Railroad.

For venturing, in violation of the trespass law, upon the private property of the Pennsylvania Railroad, a total of 8,523 persons have been killed and 8,285 others injured within the past decade, according to figures made public yesterday by the railroad company.

The rate of death among trespassers was not so large last year as it was the year before, and during the present year the railroad officials hope to lessen it a great deal more. They have done already, they insist, all that can be accomplished by the energetic action of the company alone, unsupported by the public, and by the posting of warning signs along the right of way.

The next move, they declare, is one that only State Legislatures can take, and it should be in the form of the passage of laws making it a serious offense to loiter upon railroad tracks or use them for highways.

Before 1907, when no effort was made to control the trespass of citizens upon railroad tracks, the death rate averaged 916 a year. In 1908, the posting of warning notices and the strict patrol of the tracks resulted in a reduction of the rate to 743, or about 18 per cent. In 1909, with a still greater increase of watchfulness, the rate was lowered to 633, and by the end of 1911 it had dropped to 527, making a net reduction of 42 per cent. in five years.

Besides applying to the Legislatures of New York, New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, Pennsylvania, and other States for legislation, the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad have ordered the immediate reposting of the lines of the entire system with warning notices.

LEAPS UNDER SUBWAY TRAIN.

Nothing but the Initials "E. J. McC." in His Hat to Identify Suicide.

A man committed suicide by leaping in front of a southbound express train in the Fourteenth Street Subway station yesterday afternoon shortly after 3 o'clock. He was standing about sixty feet from the southern end of the platform, and jumped so suddenly that Motorman G. Tiernan was unable to bring the train to a stop before two cars had passed over the man's body. The only means of identification were the initials "E. J. McC." in his hat. Traffic was blocked for about twenty minutes.

There were many persons on the platforms. Women screamed, and the excitement that followed attracted such a crowd that it was difficult for the police and the Subway Inspectors to remove the body to take it to the Morgue. The personal effects of the dead man were a nail clipper, which was crushed by the wheels; a pair of cheap link cuffbuttons, and a sample box of talcum powder. He was about 30 years old, 5 feet 9 inches in height, weighed about 175 pounds, was clean shaven, and had black hair. He was dressed in a black sack suit, black and white striped shirt, black derby, black socks, and tan lace shoes.

HELD AS BOGUS CHECK MAN.

Bankers Consider the Arrest of G. L. Lewis Important.

George Lambert Lewis, who, the police said after inspecting papers found in his room at the Hotel Gerard in West Forty-fourth Street, is a promoter whose activities embrace a chicken farm and a hotel scheme, was arrested yesterday afternoon near his hotel on a warrant obtained by Jacob A. Ondrak of 654 Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn. He charges Lewis with having given him a worthless check for four dollars. Mr. Gammion, manager of the Protective Department of the American Bankers' Association, said that the Association regarded the arrest as important.

Lewis was registered at the Gerard as George M. Sheldon, of Long Island, and he had been a week at the hotel, where he frequently stops. He had just left the hotel saying that was going to spend a few days in Philadelphia, when he was arrested. The police had been looking for him for some weeks, for while out on $1,500 bail he failed to appear in General Sessions for trial. In March, Lewis, it is charged, advertised for a chauffeur. Among those who applied was a young Irishman. It is said that he put up $500 as "security," that the automobile failed to materialize and that his $500 was not returned.

According to the police the prisoner is also sought by a liquor dealer at 144th Street and Broadway, who received a check from him for a small amount.

SPORTSMEN FOUND A GREAT GAME FARM

Will Breed Ducks, Quail, and Grouse on Cape Cod to Distribute Far and Wide.

TO HAVE GAME KEEPERS

Plan to Get an Experienced One from England to Put Their Plans in Operation.

In its March bulletin the American Game Protective and Propagation Association announces that it has acquired a large game farm and that wild duck, quail, ruffed grouse, and pheasants will be raised for free distribution among members. With the announcement the prophecy is made that there will be started in this country a line of gamekeepers that will play an important part in solving the game problems of the future.

Between 5,000 and 6,000 acres have been acquired in Carver and Plymouth Townships, Massachusetts, and there the work will be done. The land is situated on Cape Cod, near the town of Tremont, and is about forty miles from Boston. The description tells of thirty ponds and a good growth of pine and scrub oak in the stretch, which is about five miles long by three miles wide. For three or four years it has been used as a game preserve, so that already there are many quail and ruffed grouse in the covers. The Winters there are never severe enough to kill such hardy birds.

"At one time," the bulletin says, "the ponds afforded some of the best duck and grouse shooting in New England. They lie directly in the line of flight of these immigrants, which, since restrictions have been placed on shooting them, have been alighting there in increasing numbers on their northward and southward journeys. Many wild fowl breed there, and the association plans to increase the number by affording them unusual advantages in the way of food.

"The breeding of wild ducks will be the initial work in propagation. A supply of black, mallard, and wood ducks will be purchased immediately. Corn will be distributed in the shallow water around the edges of the ponds, so that the flocks brought down by the propagated ducks will be encouraged to nest there. The eggs laid by the tame flock will be hatched under hens. This method of propagation has been successfully carried on many times, and as black ducks and mallards are great layers, it is estimated that thousands can be raised this year."

Especially tender care is to be accorded the wood duck, for the association thinks it a sad commentary on American thoughtlessness that this bird, once a common object throughout the country, is now on the verge of extinction.

"The reasons for so many failures in attempting to propagate our native birds have been various, but it is not at all strange that we should fail in this country at the beginning. People point to the fact that in England, Scotland, and on the continent thousands of native wild birds are raised annually, but they do not stop to consider that they are raised by gamekeepers, father and son having been engaged in this occupation for generations. They have learned the secrets of the trade, while in this country we have given little thought to the matter.

"It is quite likely that the association will procure an expert gamekeeper from Scotland to take charge of rearing upland birds. The foreign gamekeepers in this country have been very generally successful. Undoubtedly they will teach their profession to Americans, and will thus start a line of gamekeepers in this country."

In announcing that the birds will be distributed for stocking purposes, the association urges the establishment of game refuges all over the country, with the prediction that these will improve the shooting in the surrounding country.

"If the birds have a place where they can raise their young in security and where the coveys will not be reduced to one or two each Fall, they will increase so rapidly that they are bound to overflow into the surrounding territory.

"The Massachusetts farm has been taken on a ten years' lease, with an option to buy for the original price of $13,000 any time during that period. The land, which is worth many times this amount, was purchased by disinterested sportsmen, each putting in about $1,000 on condition that no shooting be allowed upon it. These men have very kindly turned it over to the National Association.

"The only restrictions attached are that it shall continue to be a sanctuary for twenty years after the date of the lease, whether or not it is purchased. It is also stipulated that at least $500 a year must be spent in reforestation."

SPRING IN DELANCEY STREET.

Twenty-four Lost Infants Yesterday, and That's a Sure Sign.

The Delancey Street Police Station resounded yesterday with baby talk in eight or nine languages. In the matron's room there was a congress of twenty-four lost infants representing every race in the neighborhood. Lieut. Jones and Matron Mary Sullivan had great success in interpreting the fragmentary utterances. The standard English version of the statement of each newly found lost child was, "I want my ma."

The loss of twenty or thirty babies in one day is held in this neighborhood to be the first authentic proof that Spring has arrived. When fine weather comes the mothers post their small children where they can enjoy the softened air. In spite of pains and penalties for wandering, the first bright day means innumerable strayed infants and a few dozen so badly lost that they fall into the hands of the police.

Tots from two years old up to the mature age of six began to come in with the blue coats early in the morning. In the afternoon they began drifting in several at a time, followed shortly by women calling variously for Marrushka, Jankel, Salvatore, Ignatz, Katerinka, Rachel, Yitschuk, and Uyjer, and holding out offers of immunity to these young people if they would let themselves be found.

The children all finally landed with their families in the midst of an affectionate babel.

Eager to Read of Maine's Burial.

The United States battleship Nebraska, of the Third Division of the Atlantic Fleet, arrived yesterday from the Winter naval manocuvres off Guantanamo, Cuba, and anchored off Tompkinsville, S. I. Capt. Spencer S. Wood, who commands the Nebraska, as a Lieutenant commanded the torpedo boat Du Pont, which carried the orders from Key West which sent the Maine to Havana Harbor. When the Nebraska anchored at 6:05 o'clock last night boats were sent ashore for the Sunday newspapers, which contained accounts of the burial of the Maine.

BEGGARS BOARD STREET CARS

Boldly Solicit Alms and Defy Conductors Who Are Small.

Beggars have become so daring that they jump on crosstown cars and solicit nickels from benevolent-looking men who stand on the rear platforms to puff their cigars when the conductor is not looking. This is especially noticeable on the Fourteenth Street cars, just after one of the big ocean liners has pulled out and the car is crowded with people who have been down to the pier to see their friends off.

Where the conductor is a small man he has difficulty in putting the beggars off if there is no policeman in sight. The general plea put forth by these gentry is, "Say, Captain, don't you want to give a nickel to an old sailor who has got stranded on a lee shore?" There are very few policemen on duty in West Street except the traffic men and those at the steamship piers.

All-Metropolitan Programme Heard.

It has been usual this season at the Metropolitan Opera House to call in some soloist from outside to lend brilliancy to the Sunday night concerts, but no such aid was solicited last evening. Mrs. Gluck sang the "Caro Nome" air from "Rigoletto" and several songs; Mme. Alten was heard in the air from "Pagliacci" and the waltz song from "La Boheme"; Mr. Hinshaw sang "Largo al Factotum" from "Il Barbiere di Seviglia" and three songs; Mr. Slezak was heard in a group of songs, and Mr. Rothier sang "The Palms" and an air from "Le Caid." The orchestra was under the direction of Josef Pasternack.

As day by day Spring bursts upon us, man, emulating nature, takes on, adds to his raiment, color and in the whole mise en scene of dress for men, the one vibrant note that bespeaks individuality, in greater or less intensity, is ever and always the scarf.

Smith Gray & Co. offer in wondrous assortment, in sylvan shades that vie with nature's every Spring thought, in numerous monotones, in countless polytones, in shades reflecting every mood and thought from those ultra conservative in their sombreness to those that laugh with the joy of life—LE MAR CRAVATS.

Long lived and hardy, their lustre lasts—crease proof, pin proof, knot proof—yes, fool proof, since on account of their easy sliding qualities they become neither limp nor stringy—in short, they set a new high standard of sightliness and service, of beauty and long life—and, above all, of value.

For they sell at a half a dollar instead of a whole one, as you'd think, and, at the price, they set a value mark that our merchandising experience of more than two-thirds of a century has never seen equalled.

All the Easter shades and patterns are ready now—come in—remembering, as you look, that every LE MAR CRAVAT is guaranteed to give you absolutely satisfactory service, that you alone are judge and jury of what to you constitutes satisfaction.

DESCRIBE TESTS OF CANCER SERUM

Dr. Berkeley and Dr. Beebe Tell Results of Nine Months' Research Work.

TRIED IN SIXTEEN CASES

Serum Not a Cure, but May Be Valuable to Prevent Recurrence of Tumors Removed by Operation.

Experiments with a new cancer serum are described by Dr. William N. Berkeley and Dr. S. P. Beebe in a preliminary report published in the current issue of The Medical Record. The experiments were conducted at the Cornell Medical College, and injections of the serum were made in sixteen cases. The tests extended over nine months, and only human neoplasms or tumors were employed. Nowhere in the report, which is most conservative, does the word "cure" appear.

"It is believed," say the doctors, "that the great field of usefulness of the new serum will be to prevent the recurrence of malignant tumors removable in the early stages by operation. There is no indication from present experience that large inoperable cancers and sarcomas will be amenable to the serum treatment. Treatment, to be effective, must be early if there is to be any reasonable quantitative relation between tumor and anti-body. It is fully recognized that the cases so far successfully treated are too few in number to justify sweeping claims for the future. The object of this first report is to state the facts that have been proved, to answer numerous questions, and to clear up many misapprehensions in regard to the serum treatment."

The quest for such a physiological anti-body as a cure for cancer, is the line along which the research work at the Huntington Cancer Research Institute at Cornell has been conducted, and in this quest the doctors who make the present report say the late Dr. Eugene Hodenpyl was pioneer. Dr. Hodenpyl experimented with an anti-body for cancer, but in forty-seven cases, where he employed the injection of his serum, the patients all died within a year.

Local Treatment Not Sufficient.

"It has long been the opinion of thoughtful students of the subject," the paper in the Medical Record says, "that local treatments for cancer, however necessary as makeshifts, have been based on a misconception. It is quite possible, for example, that X-rays or the fulguration treatment may benefit a superficial cancer at its point of origin, but the danger of such growths lies largely in their spread to distant and inaccessible vital organs, where local treatment is impossible.

"We believe it therefore axiomatic that a scientific remedy for cancer shall be one soluble in the blood, transmissable by the blood and lymph currents to all parts of the body, and possessed of a selective affinity for the cells of the tumor to be destroyed.

"Such a remedy may quite conceivably be a chemical substance existing in the outside world, and by happy accident discovered to have the desired properties. It is along this line that Wasserman appears to have made his remarkable discovery of the effects of an eosin-selenium compound upon the cancers of mice. Again the remedy may be a physiological anti-body, developed in an alien species by successive injections of a cancer extract.

"The proposition of an anti-body is not a new one. The success of diphtheria antitoxin foreshadowed it. The credit for first actual suggestion of it belongs to von Dungern, though many experiments by him and his pupils, and a host of other workers in all parts of the world in the next few years appear to have been quite fruitless."

The success of S. P. Beebe's thyroid cytotoxin in 1906 is credited with bringing the cancer proposition still nearer solution and the writers point out that the labors of Dr. Hodenpyl strongly suggested the existence in a cancerous subject of a body having many of the properties in question.

"The problem has remained to produce the anti-body in clinical quantities," the report goes on. "The range of the experiments at the institute has been wide. We have used various animals, many different tumors, a large variety of biochemical products, (singly and in combination,) as injections, and have also experimented upon dosage within wide limits. To give the work a more authoritative character, human neoplasms exclusively have been employed—a procedure which has added interest to the investigation, but has greatly increased its difficulty."

Results in Test Cases.

"Present clinical results," the writers continue, "are briefly as follows: Sixteen cases of malignant disease in all stages of advancement have been treated in the last nine months by surgical friends interested in the result. A microscopical diagnosis was made in all but three cases. Fifteen were cancer and one sarcoma. Nine received stock serum, one received autogenous serum after a secondary operation, six received autogenous serum after a primary operation. Of the nine patients receiving stock serum two were moribund when first seen, and died quite uninfluenced by the injections; another, having cancer of the esophagus, was remarkably benefied for several weeks; one with an immense cancer of the tonsil, was somewhat benefited temporarily. One very extensive primary cancer of the bladder has not been recently heard from, but was probably not benefited. Of two immense cancers of the stomach, one was entirely unaffected, one slightly improved. One patient after two months of injections, is nearly well and in excellent general condition. Another case recovered promptly and has remained entirely well for four months. One far advanced case receiving a small amount of autogenous serum after a secondary operation, was greatly improved, but subsequently died of intercurrent acute disease. Of the patients receiving autogenous serum after a primary operation, one is still under treatment, greatly improved; the others have had no recurrence within a period ranging from three to six months."

72,000 HORSES AT WORK HERE

Many of Them Will Be Seen in the Women's League's Parade.

That the horse has not been entirely superseded by the motor car is shown in a statement just issued by the New York Women's League for Animals in connection with the announcement of their sixth annual workhorse parade, set for May 30. There are, it seems, still as many as 72,000 horses in New York, and below Fourteenth Street, the traffic is made up almost entirely of horse-drawn vehicles.

Mrs. James Speyer, President of the league, says there already have been received a number of entries for the parade, which has for its object the bettering of the conditions of the draught animals. Prizes are offered for the best conditioned horses and for the most humane drivers. The stylishness of the rigs counts for nothing; it is just the manner in which the Dobbins are treated which the league considers. Mrs. Speyer said that the league is just returning to their owners half a dozen horses which had broken down and had been treated by the women's organization at Mountain Rest Farm. These horses, completely restored to health, will be delivered to their owners, ready to go to work again as the bread-winners of the poor.

At the league's free dispensary last month no fewer than seventy-three horses were treated. Long before another workhorse parade comes around, it is expected that the animal hospital will be housing patients. The site has been selected.

LAST OF CRUISER ATLANTA.

Once Famous White Squadron Warship Next to Go to the Junk Pile.

The cruiser Atlanta is the next warship to go to the junkpile. Twenty-five years ago she was famous as one of the first line of the White Squadron, the other vessels in it being the cruisers Chicago and Boston and the gunboat Dolphin. Of this quartet only the Chicago and the Dolphin are now in active service, the Chicago being assigned to the Naval Militia of Massachusetts, while the Dolphin is used by the President and other high Government officials in Washington.

In 1886 the Atlanta went into commission, with Capt. Francis M. Bunce in command, and when, a few weeks later, she came to New York so great was the interest in the cruiser, then one of the finest afloat, that crowds came from all parts of the country to see her.

The Atlanta is now the station ship at the Charleston Navy Yard. When she leaves there for the auction block her place will be taken by the cruiser Olympia, Dewey's famous flagship in the battle of Manila Bay. The Atlanta cost the Government more than $2,500,000. It is expected that she will be broken up by the purchaser for the value of the materials in her.

SEA CRUISE FOR RESERVES.

Battleship Will Be Manned by Naval Militia of This State.

The Naval Militia of New York will cruise for two weeks this Summer on on of the battleships of the reserve fleet With the exception of the Captain, Executive Officer, Navigator, and one-third of the enlisted men, the battleship will be officered and manned by reserves. The cruiser will be independent of the operations of either Atlantic or the reserve fleets.

The trip will probably take the reserves into foreign waters, and it will be conducted along the same lines as the Summer cruises of the midshipmen of the Naval Academy. The ship on which the New Yorkers will cruise has not yet been designated, but it will probably be either the Indiana, Massachusetts, Iowa, or Maine.

Memorial for Drowned Sailors.

Memorial services will be held this evening at the Catholic Seamen's Mission, 422 West Street, for the sailors lost in the recent wreck of the Peninsular and Orient liner Oceana, and also for those who went down when the steamship Gloucester of the Merchants and Miners' Line, which rammed and sank the four-masted schooner Maxwell early Saturday morning.

SEES ARTISTS' HOPE IN ANARCHIC IDEAS

TELLS HOW HE WAS OUSTED

Columbia Made His Position Unbearable, He Says—Speaks to Students at Ferrer School.

While girls on the outside sold copies of his poems about Ferrer, Bayard Boyesen, who lost his place in the Faculty of Columbia University by his activities at the time of the execution of Ferrer, told a group of sculptors, artists, and art students at the Ferrer School yesterday why, in his opinion, all genuinely inspired artists get into a great deal of trouble in the course of their lives.

The Ferrer School, before whose pupils and friends Boyesen spoke, was founded by Boyesen and others shortly after Ferrer's death as a permanent memorial. For the purpose of illustrating Boyesen's talk about the artists in their relationship to philosophic anarchy. Boyesen had had the halls of the schoolrooms, at 114 East Twelfth Street, hung with the paintings of Robert Henri. William J. Durant, a former Catholic priest who has been won over to Mr. Boyesen's belief, introduced the speaker, and Leonard Abbott reviewed the progress of the movement for Ferrer schools in this country.

"In the first place I want to tell you that all of the artists of 35 years of age and thereabouts who are doing anything great in this city to-day, are not graduates of the New York Art School or the National Academy," said Mr. Boyesen. "Rather like Kent and Bellows they are pupils of Henri. That is why Henri's pictures are hung here.

"He stands for freedom. And because all genuinely inspired artists have stood for absolute freedom of conscience they have necessarily stood exactly where the philosophic anarchists stand. There is something irreconcilably different in the processes of inspiration and the processes of teaching at the established art schools. The art schools never crushed an absolute genius; they have hindered and retarded many."

Mr. Boyesen proceeded to read an honor roll of the great philosophic anarchists of former eras. As he proceeded it became evident that his roll was merely a list of artists and sculptors to whom the world has given high rank. What the speaker wished to emphasize about each was that the Governments under which they worked turned against them and cast them out.

Anarchists' Honor Roll.

Here is the honor roll as Mr. Boyesen read it over:

Phideas, who besides giving us the greatest Greek sculpture, was imprisoned for life the minute the power of his genius was described by the Greek Government.

Euripides, who was exiled for life when the power of his dramas burst upon his former friends.

Socrates, who was forced to drink of poisoned hemlock when the Government officials gathered the import of his now-honored philosophy.

Dante, who was exiled from Florence as his views became known.

Michael Angelo, who was harassed by the Church, the speaker said, from the beginning of his work until its close.

Shelley, who was ousted from Oxford.

Byron, against whom England's hatred ran so high that he was practically exiled.

Poe, who was dismissed from the University of Virginia, although now its most proudly named alumnus.

James Russell Lowell, who was dismissed from Harvard.

James Fenimore Cooper, forced to leave Yale.

MacDowell, America's greatest musical composer, and George E. Woodberry, an inspiring teacher of literature, ousted by Columbia.

Wallace Irwin and Will Irwin, expelled from Stanford.

Mr. Boyesen did not refer to his own case in his lecture, but in a heckling process that followed he spoke not with affection for the university from which he was dismissed. He was asked whether he had left of his own volition or had been dismissed.

"If ever a man was driven from his post I was," he said. "Of course, it was done by subterfuges. At first all information about the charges was refused. Then I was told I had been drunk at the boat races at Poughkeepsie. I was fortunately able to prove an alibi, as I could show that I had not been at Poughkeepsie in fifteen years. The same indirect methods kept up until I was out.

"Read the story of the Russian makers of literature. Except Tolstoy, of whom the Government was afraid, every one of them was put to death, sentenced to death, or exiled.

Artists' Need of Freedom.

"And what does it mean? Just this: That the artist demands absolute freedom for the play of the inspiration that dominates him and drives him on, and right there he joins hands with philosophic anarchy. What the artist does in his great moments of inspiration is to project out of himself the highest idea it is possible for him to conceive.

"They say that some 50,000,000 years ago we were all polywogs. Had some venturous polywog chanced then to dream of us to-day, all the other little polywogs would have done with him just what our Government—they are no wiser now than when they poisoned Socrates—do with the artists and poets whose fight for intellectual freedom is not yet won.

"Only in revolutions has there been an open door for idealistic art. Thus all the Greek art worth while, save Homer's, comes from a 40-year period in the stormy times from 480 to 440 B. C. Just so the Italian and English art bloomed suddenly in the revolution we know as the Renaissance, and the next great art outburst accompanied the French Revolution.

"With this fact in view I wish you to consider how our art to-day is surging to higher levels, borne on a tide no man has measured.

"We know the artist lives by his imagination, not by his intellect. Try to apply reason to the most beautiful lines of Shakespeare and you meet disaster. Art is incapable of canonical judgments, as you may well see in the fact that the canon of probability and the canon even of possibility are now put aside as worthless.

"In art you project your imagination, and the further it gets ahead and away from the intellectual possibilities, the more pure is the vision likely to be. Art above all is unrespectable and unrespecting. If respectable logicians work it over afterward in order to apply it to the needs of civilization, then it takes a place in our every day life.

"In pure creative art America is giving little or nothing to the world, and if an artist tries to do so it is as likely as not that we will turn some Anthony Comstock loose on him to declare him and all his purposes special creations of the Evil One."

Round-the-World Ship at Hongkong.

The agents of the Hamburg-American Line have received a cable from the Captain of the liner Cleveland reporting her arrival in Hongkong with her 548 round-the-world tourists all well. Owing to the unsettled political conditions and the mutiny of the native troops the Captain said that the trip up the Pearl River to Canton from Hongkong had been abandoned. Instead the Cleveland will call at Maceo, the Portuguese colony, and make a longer stay at Manila.

TO FORM EFFICIENCY SOCIETY

A New Organization to Improve Industrial Methods.

Supported by President Taft and his Cabinet, by leading bankers, manufacturers and business men, the Efficiency Society will organize at 10 o'clock this morning at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street. At the Aldine Club in the Fifth Avenue Building the Society will have a dinner to-night.

Rear Admiral Philips S. Andrews will read a paper written by President Taft. Addresses will be made by Mayor Gaynor, Secretary of the Navy Meyer and Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations. Papers by Gov. Dix, Dr. F. A. Cleveland, Prof. John H. Gray of the University of Minnesota and Dr. Luther S. Gulick will be read. The speakers on the programme for the two-day session of the society are James G. Cannon, President of the Fourth National Bank; Henry R. Towne, President of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company; William Jay Schieffelin of Schieffelin & Co.; Melville W. Mix, President of the Dodge Manufacturing Company of Mishawka, Ind., W. H. Cottingham, President of the Sherwin Williams Company, Cleveland; E. S. Lewis, advertising manager of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company, Detroit; E. C. Church, purchasing agent of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity of this city, and John Calder, manager of works for the Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y.

There will be on exhibition photographs showing good and bad industrial conditions and publications on efficient methods. There will also be an exhibit of office and factory equipment and a museum of safety devices. James G. Cannon is President and H. F. J. Porter, Secretary of the society.

"We have tested beers repeatedly, placing the bottles into direct sunlight, and testing the same after one, two, three and five minutes exposure; found that the beer with three and five minutes exposure became undrinkable on account of the peculiar odor developed. The detrimental effect of light upon beer can be successfully counteracted by the employment of brown or dark colored glass bottles."

THE STATE'S WATER POWER.

Map Showing Its Proposed Development, Transmission and Distribution.

WATER POWER BILL UP AGAIN TO-MORROW

ESTIMATE OF POWER COST

Engineers Report That Hudson River Towns Can Be Supplied at $15 Per Horse Power.

ALBANY, March 17.—An adjourned public hearing will be held before the joint Judiciary Committee of the Senate and Assembly on Tuesday, March 19, on the Bayne bill providing for a State service to municipalities of power, energy, electricity, or water, and for State regulation of the flow of streams. This bill seeks to carry out Gov. Dix's conservation policy with reference to the storage and utilization of waters in the State which are new wasted, and which is expected to give the people cheaper light, heat, and power.

The opposition to the bill was heard at the committee hearing last Tuesday. With two exceptions the objectors were representatives of light and power companies, including the following: Edison Illuminating Company of Brooklyn; Railway and Lighting Company, Rochester; Black River Power Company, Watertown; Light and Power Company, Medina; Glens Falls Electric Power Company; Sandy Hill Light and Power Company, Fairhaven Light and Power Company, Rutland Light and Power Company, Vermont, (owning water power in New York State,) Empire State Gas and Electric Company, Syracuse; Niagara Falls Hydraulic Company, Watertown Light and Power Company, Adams Electric Power Company, Dexter Electric Power Company, Buffalo Electric Power Company, Utica Gas and Electric Power Company.

Ontario Power System.

The time remaining for those favoring the bill at the first hearing permitted but one speaker to be heard, Judge Clark H. Hammond, Corporation Counsel of Buffalo. Judge Hammond is conducting an investigation of electric power charges in Buffalo and has made a thorough examination of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission, which is furnishing municipalities in Canada electric power at a minimum of about $10 a horse power and upward, according to the distance of transmission. Toronto, seventy-five miles away from the Niagara development plant, securing the energy for $18.50.

Judge Hammond declared that Buffalo was emphatically and earnestly with the Conservation Commission on its bill to lessen the burdens on the people for electric light and power. No politics figured in Buffalo's support of the measure, the speaker explaining that a Democratic Mayor and a Republican Corporation Counsel were working together in the effort to secure some relief for the ultimate consumers in their city.

He said there were flaws in the Public Service Commission law, so that the urgently needed relief could not be obtained by the Buffalo public from that quarter.

Judge Hammond demonstrated that the Ontario public management of electric power was a practical success and had come to stay, and was saving the consumers in that Canadian province thousands of dollars monthly in their light and power bills.

At the adjourned hearing on the Bayne bill other supporters of the measure will be invited to present their views.

To further add to the people's fund of information on the subject of this measure—a matter of direct interest to every household, every factory, ever farm in the State—the Conservation Commission's engineers have prepared a map which seeks to present an outline of the general plan to harness the unutilized water powers in the State.

The map shows the location of the chief sources of water power, together with the main trunk lines as tentatively planned for the distribution to all sections of the State of hydro-electric power, which will save for the people the equivalent of many millions of tons of coal.

Provisions of Bayne Bill.

The bill provides for immediate State construction, control and maintenance of a State-wide system of electric transmission, with water storage reservoirs to be constructed by the State for the public use and benefit. The Conservation Commission under its provisions may lease, construct, acquire by purchase or condemn any property necessary to the undertaking; and may contract to furnish any municipality in the State with power, energy, electricity or water for the purpose of lighting public streets, highways, public and private buildings, and for heat and power, so that any municipality enter'ng into such contract "and the citizens thereof shall secure at cost the benefits to be derived from the utilization of said power and water."

The Bayne bill further provides that any existing public service corporation at present supplying a municipality with light and power may enter into contract with the municipality for the distribution of such current as is furnished the municipality by the State, but only at a rate to be approved by the Commission.

No contract, either with the State or with an existing corporation, can be entered into by the municipality until the proposition shall have been approved at a special election at which all electors within the municipality can vote.

The surplus and other available waters of the barge canal are put under the jurisdiction of the commission, which may lease water whenever the best interests of the State require; or may develop and distribute water, light and power in the same manner as provided with impounded waters.

Cost of Hudson River Power.

The Conservation Department makes public the estimates of engineers as to the saving which could be effected in the light and power bills of the central part of the State.

Power from the Hudson River and Sacandaga River, and the Barge Canal could be delivered to municipal sub-stations in Albany, Troy, Johnstown, Gloversville, Amsterdam, Schenectady, Cohoes, Waterford, Rensselaer and other towns in quantities of 75,000 horse power or more at less than $15 per horse power. Other communities in this section that would be similarly benefited by reduced rates on electric power are Ilion, Herkimer, Little Falls, Fonda, Sandy Hill, Saratoga Springs, Ballston, Mechanicville. The urban population of the east central section served with cheap electricity would total fully 425,000. The length of the transmission lines would aggregate about 300 miles. The great mass of the population is centered, however, within sixty miles of the sources of power supply.

DIX TO FORCE PRIMARY ISSUE.

To Send Special Message—May Call Etraordinary Session.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 17.—Gov. Dix's flat declaration that he will not send to the Senate another name in place of Herbert P. Rissell for the Public Service Commissionership in the Second District has created lively speculation as to the Democratic programme for the rest of the Legislative session. The Governor has made no announcement with reference to the Commissionership in the First District for which his nomination of Edward G. Riggs was rejected.

The two things which the executive seems to desire most in legislation are the passage of the bill carrying out the State Conservation Commission's plan for the development, transmission and distribution of the hydro-electric power of the State, and the enactment of direct primary legislation.

A measure supposed to meet with his approval, framed at a Democratic Senatorial caucus with the understanding that it was to be put through as a party measure, still remains well in the background. Meantime a shorter measure which goes hardly farther than to correct some technical defects in the present law has been placed on the statute books.

The matter probably will be brought to a sharp focus within the next few days as the Governor has declared he will send in a special message on the subject if there is further delay.

There is a rumor that if the Senate does not carry out what to the Governor seems to be the instructions of the party platform with relation to primary legislation, the Legislature may be reconvened in extraordinary session, as it was reconvened for the same reason by Gov. Hughes in 1910.

Another enigma of the present session is the action of the Special Committee of the Senate that conducted an investigation into the affairs of Albany City and County. The resolution under which this committee was appointed directed that a report should be made the first Tuesday in January. A request for an extension of time to March 7 was thwarted in the Senate by a ruling of Lieut. Gov. Conway that the co-operation of the Assembly was necessary. Senator Bayne, Chairman of the committee, served notice of appeal from this ruling, but no vote on that appeal has been taken or called for, and as matters now stand the Republicans are in position to object to the reception of any report at all.

Action on the woman suffrage constitutional amendment promises to be one of the star features of the coming week's sessions. The matter comes up for a vote in the Assembly on Tuesday and in the Senate on Wednesday. The general opinion is that it will fail in both Houses, although it is expected to make a somewhat better showing in the Senate than it did last year.

TOO MANY INSANE ALIENS.

Lunacy Commission Wants Legislation to Facilitate Their Deportation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 17.—In the course of a report to Gov. Dix on the number of aliens domiciled in the State hospitals for the insane, the State Lunacy Commission urges the desirability of a change in the immigration laws to diminish this constantly growing burden. The commission suggests an executive investigation to find means to facilitate the deportation of insane aliens, the dificulties of which, it adds, have been increased by a recent decision of Attorney General Wickersham.

"It is estimated that there are about 8,000 insane aliens in the New York State hospitals at the present time," the commission states. "Immigration is one of the important causes of the increase in our insane population. The removal and deporatation of non-residents and aliens, therefore, constitutes one of the greatest factors at the present time in lessening the constant increase in our insane population.

"As a consequence of the great overcrowding of our institutions, which is increased by the burden imposed upon the State in caring for the large number of foreign-born insane, new buildings and new institutions are constantly required. Arrangements are being made for the erection of an institution near Yorktown, Westchester County, which will cost in the neighbordood of $2,000,000 when completed, and for an additon to the Utica State Hospital which will cost more than $1,000,000, as well as additions to the Long Island State Hospital, which will cost $500,000 more. It can readily be seen that these buildings, to a large extent, would be unnecessary if it were not for the necessity of caring for alien and non-resident insane.

"The fact should be emphasized that the most important reason for reducing to the lowest possible number the foreigners in our State hospitals is the difficulty of properly caring for our own insane. The cost to the taxpayer of caring for the insane is now so great that approximately one-sixth of the State's revenues is required for this purpose."

LODI HAS A BLUE SUNDAY.

And One of the Councilmen Who Voted for It Is Twice Arrested.

"Some people in this town wanted everything closed on Sunday; they wanted what is commonly known as a 'Blue Law' Sunday, and the Borough Council gave it to them," said Mayor John J. Geoghegan of Lodi, N. J., yesterday. "Probably the few that demanded the closing resolution are satisfied, but fully 4,000 of our 5,000 population are opposed to it, and I don't believe we want another repetition of what happened in our little town to-day."

Lodi's police force of Chief Thomas Davis and five men were at headquarters at sunrise yesterday to put into effect the resolution passed by the Borough Council on last Tuesday, which ordered the suspension of all business on Sunday. The real purpose of the early presence of the police on the scene was to catch Councilman Edward H. Myers, a local newsdealer, who was one of the four Councilmen to vote for the "Blue Law" resolution.

Mayor Geoghegan and Chief Davis had said they would "get" Councilman Myers if he dared deliver his papers Sunday morning. Myers was found with his delivery wagon on the street and arrested. He was taken before Recorder Andrew D. Kerr, who is also Borough Clerk, and his father-in-law. Recorder Kerr promptly released the accused newsdealer, at the same time telling the policeman that the old Jersey Blue Law was amended in 1893 so as to permit newsdealers to deliver their papers on Sunday morning.

An hour later Councilman Myers was again arrested, this time by Chief Davis, and again Recorder Kerr dismissed him with the order that the Councilman appear in the Recorder's Court at eight o'clock to-morrow morning.

Vincenzo Caramana, a barber; Michel Azzolimino, a barber and real estate dealer, and Carman Stomatio, a fruit dealer, were arrested for doing business. Recorder Kerr released the accused men upon their own recognizance.

Two hundred angry Italians, who were denouncing the new order of things, held up a trolley car on its way to Hackensack, and defied the motorman to move.

"If our storekeepers can't do business on Sunday then we won't permit the trolley company to do business, either," shouted the leaders. "There must not be laws that give special privileges."

Mayor Geoghegan, Councilmen Nicola Ciampo and John Butler, of the Police Committee, joined Chief Davis and the police in a rush to the scene of the trolley holdup, and they succeeded in dispersing the crowd without the use of clubs.

The four Councilmen who voted for the Blue Law resolution are republicans—Edward H. Myers, John R. MacCulloch, Peter De Vries and William Witte. The Democratic Councilmen opposed the resolution, but the disagreeable task of enforcing it fell upon the Democratic officials.

KILLED HIS RIVAL AT CHURCH.

Rejected Suitor Lay in Wait Till Girl and Sweetheart Appeared.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., March 17.—Bertha Zoeller of Willock, Penn., refused to listen to the suit of Louis Bentz and announced that she would wed Joseph Rozenski. She attended church this morning with Rozenski.

Bentz heard the banns were to be announced and lay in wait. The men came face to face at the church and Rozenski slashed Bentz twice. The cuts were superficial and Bentz fired and killed his rival instantly. Flinging away his revolver, he fled, pursued by a crowd of boys, and was finally caught.

Miss Zoeller collapsed during the struggle and is unaware that her sweetheart is dead.

SOUTHERN MEXICO RISING.

Raiders Do Much Damage—Government Troops Withdrawn.

MEXICO CITY, March 17.—Reports from the south arriving to-day in the capital indicate that the comparative peace established by the Government's army in the State of Guerrero has given place to a state of affairs about as unsatisfactory as ever. The reports of the extensive damage done at Ometepec and near-by towns by raiders are well authenticated, and it is believed that the rebels aim at the capture of Chilpancingo, the capital of the State. Save for a few small garrisons, the Government has withdrawn its soldiers for service in the north.

Salgado, still operating despite official reports of his capture and death, is now said to be taking advantage of the withdrawal of soldiers to reorganize his own forces, scattered by Gen. Figueroa, whose army, in turn, is said to be badly weakened by desertions.

A patriotic manifestation at Teluca to-day was turned into a demonstration for the army. Orators eulogized the life of Gen. Porfirio Diaz and denounced the action of the members of the Progressive Nationalist Party in warning ex-Provisional President de la Barra not to return to Mexico.

EL PASO, Texas, March 17.—Col. Pascual Orozco, father of the insurrecto Commander in Chief, with 300 men as a permanent garrison, arrived at Juarez to-day to relieve Gen. Antonio Rojas, who will take his force to Falomir to-morrow. Roja's purpose is said to be to capture the Federal garrison at Ojinaga. The latter is said to number only 30 men and Rojas hopes to seize arms and ammunition being sent there to arm Government volunteers.

A censor who will pass on all telegraph matter will be installed at Cluadad Juarez to-morrow.

LAREDO, Texas, March 17.—Two hundred refugees from Mexico, mostly women and children, passed through Laredo to-day, en route to points in the United States to remain until order is restored in Mexico. Fifty-five Spaniards were in the party. Several of the Spaniards said that when they left Torreon there were prospects of a battle soon.

RAILROAD MEN MAY QUIT.

National Line Employes to Consult American Unions Regarding Strike.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 17.—Representatives of conductors and engineers employed on a number of railroads in Mexico reached here to-day for a conference concerning differences between the men and the management of the railroads, the exact nature of which they refuse to divulge.

It is understood that representatives of the conductors' and engineers' organizations in the United States will be present.

MEXICO CITY, March 17.—Following an order to write train orders in Spanish, 750 American conductors and engineers, employes of the National lines of Mexico, sent a delegation of twenty-four members to the border yesterday with instructions to confer with trainmen organizations in the United States with reference to a probable strike. The delegation is headed by Vice President Curtis of the Order of Railway Conductors. The decision to quit work, it is understood, will depend largely upon the readiness of trainmen north of the border to co-operate.

SWITCHMAN CHOSEN SPEAKER

S. D. Bradner to Preside Over House in Arizona First Legislature.

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 17.—Samuel D. Bradner, a switchman in the Southern Pacific yards at Benson, was selected as Speaker of the House of Arizona's first State Legislature by a caucus of Democratic members to-day. The Democrats control the House, 35 to 4.

Bradner was the choice of the State administration for Speaker. A Democratic Senate caucus named Michael Cunniff, a former instructor in Harvard University, for President.

Leaders of the majority say the Legislature will enact a constitutional amendment reinserting the recall of the judiciary, stricken out at the instance of President Taft.

PAIGE

THE EVEN distribution of weight and carrying stresses give the Paige more horsepower for every 100 pounds of weight than 90% of the motor cars on the market. It is a light weight car equipped with over-size tires and cost of tire upkeep is reduced to a minimum. The motor is cast en bloc, affording great rigidity. All valves are enclosed.

The 1912 Paige "25," equipped with Self-starter, Delco Ignition and Cork Insert Multiple Disc Clutch, is the sensational automobile value of the season.

In durability of construction, power, speed, comfort and satisfying service the Paige cannot be duplicated at twice the price asked. Let us demonstrate the Paige before you buy a high priced car.

The Follies of Animal Transportation

When a team of horses pulls two or three tons up a hill, say of a ten per cent grade, they become pretty well tuckered out. There is a great strain. The effort required to get the load up the hill would doubtless equal the effort required to pull the same load two or three miles on a level street. Result: very tired horses.

But if you stop to consider, it takes also some effort for a team of horses to hold back a load coming down a hill.

It doesn't require as much effort, of course, as going up, but there is considerable energy expended. And every ounce of it counts with horse or animal transportation.

Every step lessens a horse's energy for the day. At the end of the day he is a tired animal. Through the day he must have his rest spells—his recesses from hauling.

An Alco motor truck never tires.

Going up a hill is without effort. Hills make no difference. The strong, powerful motor of the Alco pulls the load up in less than half the time it takes horses to descend.

In going down the hill the powerful quick acting brakes hold the truck rigidly in the control of the driver. There are four different brakes. Two of them are on the rear wheels in drums. Two of them are the locomotive, or clasp, type of brakes. They are on the jack shaft.

This is not presented as a major argument for installing motor trucks but it is a major argument why you should look into them and find out what they can do. Make the start by 'phoning Columbus 5300 and ask to have an Alco Transportation Expert call on you. No charge.

WEARINESS.

It is curious to note the change in the tone of the comment on Mr. ROOSEVELT's latest venture on the stage of politics, not only in his own country but in Europe. The seriousness is going out of it; weariness is setting in. The strenuousness of the efforts to secure a spontaneous popular demand is having its effect. The hastily constructed and overworked stage machinery creaks audibly and visibly wabbles.

On the other side of the ocean Mr. ROOSEVELT's reappearance attracts but moderate comment, and most of that, it is painful to remark, is amused and slightly contemptuous. The French papers particularly draw attention to the contrast between the present situation and that of the ex-President when he made his triumphal "progress" across Europe on his return from Africa. They recall his Sorbonne address with its solemn didacticism; his advice to Great Britain on the proper policy in Egypt; his sensational demonstration in Rome, where he managed to offend pretty nearly every faction in faction-torn Italy, and his general rôle of "enfant terrible" in the Old World. In Germany, where the Kaiser's good nature had given Mr. ROOSEVELT a peculiar prestige, it might have been supposed that the extreme radicalism of his recent course would be sharply condemned. It is, on the contrary, treated with levity as the latest manifestation of a hunger for sensation, a need for novelty at any cost. Mr. MUNSEY seems to think that Mr. ROOSEVELT began his "movement" too late. Really it would rather appear that he began it too early.

FRANCE AND SPAIN.

It is all very well for the French official papers to announce that if the Spanish Government will not come to terms as to a policy in Morocco France will proceed to organize her protectorate without regard to Spain, but in practice that would be a very troublesome task.

Up to the present time, in all general international agreements regarding Morocco Spain has been recognized as having an equal standing with France, and the French Government has distinctly recognized this view. It is true that the area of Spanish influence and authority is relatively very limited, but it is exceedingly important. It embraces a rather undefined territory in the northwest corner of Morocco, with a shore line and harbors on both the Mediterranean and the Atlantic. It lies across the route of the most needed railway line that France will have to construct. Back from the sea, it is inhabited by active and warlike tribes, whom Spain will find it very hard to control, and if these tribes are to be left uncontrolled the difficulties of France in the adjacent country will be greatly increased. With friendly cooperation the task of the two Governments in establishing order and gradually bringing Morocco within the range of civilization would be, though not easy, reasonably feasible. With permanent friction between them, and with the Spanish region weakly administered, the task would be very formidable.

Nor is the question without grave bearing on the European situation. If no cordial understanding with Spain can be reached Morocco would almost inevitably remain a fruitful source of intrigue for any Government with jealous or unfriendly disposition toward France. Spain has been regarded as a side partner in the triple entente, in which France, England, and Russia are the chief parties in interest. If Spain is to become alienated and possibly hostile, the entente would obviously be embarrassed and to some extent weakened. In these circumstances it is clear that Great Britain, which is deeply interested in the maintenance of the present balance, will do everything in its power to bring about a working agreement between France and Spain. The British Ambassador at Madrid has taken part in the negotiations, which have so far proved futile. The British Government is undoubtedly fully informed as to the situation. It is certain to bring all its influence to bear to secure a settlement. But the Spanish Government has proved extremely intractable. It has declined all the propositions made by the French Government without suggesting amendment or alternative. The situation is extremely awkward, and though it is reasonable to infer that Great Britain will ultimately bring sufficient pressure to secure the desired end, that process is not without risk.

THE MARCONI WIRELESS.

The publication in THE SUNDAY TIMES of two dispatches from London received by the Marconi wireless system in ten minutes from the time of filing, and of many others, of which the time of transmission was from fourteen to twenty-seven minutes, indicates the remarkable progress which has been made in this wonderful new method of communication between countries. The sending of wireless messages across the ocean from the station on the Irish coast to that at Glace Bay, Newfoundland, has been practically instantaneous, but delays have occurred in transmission over the land wires, particularly on the other side of the Atlantic. These were so nearly overcome on Saturday night, after an earnest appeal by THE NEW YORK TIMES to the British Postmaster General, that it can now be clearly seen that the wireless in the near future will equal the service of the ocean cables in rapidity, as it already does in accuracy.

The Marconi wireless system has now successfully passed through all the experimental stages. Preparations are under way by the British Government for the establishment of Marconi wireless communication between London and central points in all its colonial possessions throughout the world. Before long the wireless will encircle the globe—that is to say, a message may be sent from a Marconi station at any point clear around the world to the same point, in a remarkably short time, as was done by THE NEW YORK TIMES lately with a cable dispatch.

The special dispatches of the Sunday and daily TIMES have been received mostly by the Marconi wireless service for the last three months, and they have amounted to about 20,000 words weekly. For quick news service this system has lately proved wholly satisfactory. It is not likely, however, that the cables will suffer greatly from its competition in the long run, as business invariably grows with the means of conducting it, and when the Marconi system is established, as it soon will be, across the continents, the increased demand for means of quick communication will keep the telegraph wires busy, too. We are privileged to live in a wonderful age, and none of its developments is more wonderful than the adaptation of wireless telegraphy to commercial use by the ingenious and purposeful Italian inventor, GUGLIELMO MARCONI.

CANADA AS A "NATION."

In presenting his budget speech at Ottawa last week Minister WHITE declared once more that Canada did not reject reciprocity from hostility to the United States. It was unnecessary to tell us again that Canada merely dissembled its love for us, and harmed itself solely for our moral betterment. Minister WHITE declares that reciprocity was rejected on "national" grounds. This "national" quality of Canada puzzles not a few Americans. For example, on the same day that the Dominion budget speech was made Deputy Attorney General PAYNE, representing the United States in the wood pulp case, denied that the most favored nation clause of the Payne-Aldrich tariff was violated, because the Canadian reciprocity treaty is not made with either "a country, nation, or State."

The suggestion seems to be that Canada is merely a colony, just as though its political status has not altered since it was fixed by the British North America act of 1867. It is a little too bad that such a belittling suggestion should be made on the same day that Minister WHITE was proffering so many fine words that butter none of our parsnips. Far be it from us to embarrass Premier BORDEN, who has so many troubles, by asking for an explicit statement why Canada rejected reciprocity, and whether it is a colony or a nation. We are willing to assume, without his statement, that Canada is as sorry that it rejected reciprocity as it is that it is not a nation. One of them can be remedied more easily than the other.

TURKEY AND ASSASSINATION.

It is a sign of the confusion of mind in which Europe was plunged by the Tripolitan adventure of Italy that Austrian journals should accuse the Young Turks of plotting the murder of the King and of the Premier of Italy. The Young Turks are a savage set, as has been shown in their treatment of the Albanians, but they are not so stupid as not to see that killing the King would make the waging of the war by Italy still more relentless and all hope of European intervention vain. Even the attempt at murder by an "individualist Anarchist" will still further excite the popular passion for war, which, so far, seems to prevail universally.

Meanwhile the war goes on with very great cost to Italy and very little harm to Turkey. So long as Italy refrains from attacking Turkey directly—a step that would be fraught with great risk—the latter can look on the proceedings in Tripoli with a good deal of patience. There are only some 4,000 Turkish troops opposed to the Italians, and while this is not a formidable tax on the military strength of the Porte, these troops and their officers are a valuable nucleus for the fluctuating forces of the natives. The latter are doing most of the fighting. They are brave, reckless of life, rapid in movement, and can live where regulars would starve. Their subjugation will be a long, difficult, and costly task. It remains to be seen whether the Italians, now hot with militant enthusiasm, will be willing and able to stand the tedious strain and endure the great sacrifices that remain for them.

BOMBS AND THEORIES.

The bomb that was received by mail by Judge ROSALSKY on Saturday was deftly constructed of iron and brass, wood and cork, electric batteries, and assorted chemicals. The theories thus far formed and published as to what manner of person made and sent it, and the purpose that governed him or her, are made of guesswork, lighter than the air we breathe, and of no avail. An infernal machine similar to one recently received in the same way and on a Saturday by an unfortunate woman passed safely through the Post Office and was delivered by the regular letter carrier. Presumably this bomb was designed to end the life of the Judge to whom it was sent, a stern and industrious public officer, who fearlessly metes out justice to convicted criminals, and has been threatened by them and their friends.

Deputy Commissioner DOUGHERTY's theory that a fanatical and murderous "social cleanser" is at work in this town, and that he may, if identified, turn out to be a person of hitherto unblemished repute, is interesting, but not valuable at present. It is certain that this bomb, and the one that lately killed the woman who called herself variously TAYLOR and WALKER, were made by persons who know how to make bombs that will kill, and how to place them where they want them to go. As the maker and sender of the earlier bomb has not yet been discovered, the chances of discovering the maker and sender of the other now seem remote.

It is no secret that our public officers receive many threatening letters in these days of widespread unrest, and that, too often, they throw them carelessly away. Threatening letters rarely come from dangerous persons, to be sure, but the assailant of Mayor GAYNOR was a writer of that sort of letters, and if Judge ROSALSKY has failed to turn over to the police any such letters he has received, he now has reason to regret his lack of caution. The explosion of the bomb on Saturday was due to the recklessness of Inspector EGAN, who knew he had an infernal machine in hand, and might have been expected from his experience with explosives to use more care. Judge ROSALSKY was commendably cautious, and all public officers, who in the pursuit of their duty are compelled to enforce the criminal laws, would do well to follow his example in similar circumstances.

THE MONTANI VERDICT.

The ways of juries are past finding out. GENO MONTANI, the taxicab driver indicted for participation in the assault and robbery of two bank messengers, was found guilty on the evidence presented in the Court of General Sessions, but in returning their verdict the jury coupled with it a recommendation to mercy. Clearly MONTANI was no victim of circumstances. The robbery of the messengers was conceived by him, according to the testimony, and his confederates were his own choice, and although he did not personally blackjack the innocent men in his cab, he was as surely and as completely guilty of a heinous crime as any of his fellows. If the jurors had any doubt of his guilt, their verdict was not justifiable. But the trial had left no room for doubt.

MONTANI still insists that he is innocent, but his statements in the witness box were rejected by the jury. The justice of the verdict is not questionable. But why should such an offender be treated with mercy not accorded to thieves and perpetrators of crimes of violence generally? With his guilt proved, MONTANI appears in the light of an exceptionally daring and dangerous rascal, who should receive the full penalty of the law.

The recommendation to mercy may indicate that the evidence, though strong enough to compel the jurors to convict the prisoner, was not strong enough to satisfy them that he might not be innocent, in which case there has been another deplorable miscarriage of justice. Or it may indicate that some of the jurors were actuated by a fear of vengeance. In either case, the recommendation to mercy is remarkable.

ROYAL WORRIES.

Some of the things King GEORGE V. has to worry about were lucidly set forth in the Marconi wireless dispatches to THE SUNDAY TIMES from London, but the reader is left to judge for himself whether the King's mind is troubled more by the perplexing industrial situation in Great Britain and the still annoying disturbances in the foreign relations of his kingdom or by the social revolt of women, who have recognition at his Court against the somewhat severe rule of his admirable but aggressive consort. It is certain that King GEORGE is in no way responsible for the coal mining strike or the discontent of the working classes. Nor is he to blame for any ill-feeling in continental countries against his Ministry and his people. He is a generous and modest man, as well liked as a King can be, and, so far as is known, he has given offense to nobody. The throne of Great Britain is in no great danger at present.

But the King is assuredly responsible, in the eyes of the law, and in spite of the ideas of the militant suffragettes, who make going about so dangerous in the thoroughfares of his capital, for the conduct of his wife. The celebrated Mr. Bumble could have given the King points in this matter. If Queen MARY has really issued orders through the Lord Chamberlain's Office to make the gowns of her husband's feminine subjects only in the severe fashions she favors, we fear that the British Constitution has, indeed, been threatened. We can hardly credit the tale. A humane man like GEORGE may well be disturbed by the industrial crisis in England, but the revolt against the iron rule of his Queen in matters of dress and social form may tend to keep him awake nights and make him gray-headed before his time. Of course, all married men can sympathize with GEORGE a little, but too few of us are or ever have been Kings to have a full realizing sense of his predicament.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Pitiable Case of John Early.

He is a leper. Therefore JOHN R. EARLY, who, if he contracted the disease, which is a matter still much in dispute, did it in the patriotic service of the Government in the Philippines, has been driven literally from pillar to post, and from one city to another all over the Union. His last indignity was that of being transported across the continent in a box-car. The unfortunate's wife has finally obtained for him, the Elks, the Masons, and Spanish War Veterans backing her plea, a pension of $30 a month and an appointment to the Marine Hospital Service in Tacoma, Wash., to care for the leper, ANDREW GROVER. For this work his additional compensation will be $65 a month.

Had EARLY suffered from consumption, which is far more terrible and communicable than leprosy, the people whom he came near would not have uplifted their hands with cries of Unclean! Unclean! The more the disease and its bacillus are studied the more probable it appears that it is merely a slow form of tuberculosis, not at all contagious and very rarely infectious. It is not the "leprosy" of the Bible, which was applied to a number of distinct diseases, some of them loathsome, but hardly ever the affection which science by its eliminating processes has almost completely identified. If it is really caused by tubercles, the hated name may be discarded from medical nomenclature, as that of scrofula or "king's evil" has been rejected.

A Spear Forged for "Loan Sharks."

The lenders upon poor men's chattels are rapacious, their business is cruel and devouring. Their hides are as slippery as their jaws are formidable when the law tries to enmesh them, and the lawyers of the Sage Foundation are sincerely to be congratulated for employing an instrument which, in one case at least, has not been deflected when launched, but has touched the monster's vitals.

The case of JOHN E. SCHULTZ, defendant, which has just been decided by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in favor of the Sage Foundation, acting for the complainant, proves that Section 614 of the State banking law does not admit the charging of more than 6 per cent. a year for loans under $200 in the guise of brokers' fees. Mr. SCHULTZ's company had loaned $25 to CHARLES PRATT, charged him $1.50 interest, and "fees" amounting to $16.10 in addition. That was really over 70 per cent. interest. It might not be considered a crime to charge a Rockefeller or a Carnegie that much, but to extort it from a man who had nothing but a few personal belongings was not less than heinous, and the law has so declared it. The court in its opinion says that "the plain purpose of "the act was to protect the needy from "extortion, and the Legislature, in accom-"plishing that purpose, limited the pro-"tected class to small borrowers." The "loan sharks" have frequently charged double and treble the percentage extorted in this case. It will now be the business of the Sage Foundation to aid the District Attorneys in New York and Brooklyn in shutting up the offices of the usurious loan companies. The banking law permits quasi-philanthropic enterprises, like the Sage Foundation's loan office, to meet the needs of impecunious persons upon a reasonable basis.

Poor Mothers and Their Pensions.

We print elsewhere a letter from Mr. ROBERT P. GREEN, written in warning that the principle of State aid to indigent mothers may be carried too far. The city of Chicago has made its first payments to 142 widows, proportioned to their straitened circumstances and the number of their children; the total amount for the month was $4,101.

If Mr. GREEN should inquire of the Cook County Controller he might be informed that, had not this scheme been adopted, the county would be supporting in its institutions the children of these widows, at a cost exceeding the monthly payments of $4,101. An institution is at best a poor substitute for a mother. "Keep the children in the home," is one of the firmest tenets of individualism. State socialism would advise the putting of them into institutions at public expense. Where it is a question of this or of aiding mothers in their private support, is not the latter course the part of wisdom and common sense?

There is, of course, great danger of overdoing such work. If mothers in straitened circumstances are to be aided by the public, why not poverty-stricken fathers, who are, possibly, shiftless? Wherever the line is drawn, it must be jealously guarded.

Pay of Policemen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You comment on the proposition to increase the salaries of first-grade policemen, yet say not a word about the policemen's claim that since the present rate of pay was fixed the cost of living has greatly increased. The salary of a police Captain, for instance, is less than that paid to secretaries and stenographers in many offices of private concerns.

In my judgment the lowest pay for a policeman should be $1,500, and that of a Captain $5,000. There would be greater incentive to honesty and efficiency if decent salaries were paid. It is no argument that these officials receive higher pay than the average men in private business, and that they are subject to pension laws, because we want not ordinary men on the force, but extraordinary ones.

CHARLES E. CLARKE.

MRS. STETSON EXPLAINS.

X-Scientist Calls Mrs. Wright's Mental Condition "Pitiful."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Sunday I notice a statement which was made by Mrs. Margaret Wright, who testified in court to being an adherent of Christian Science and a friend of mine.

I have never spoken with Mrs. Wright but twice to my certain knowledge, and neither time over ten minutes. Several years ago in church she attracted my attention by her excited condition and tears, when I tried to quiet her. I never spoke with her again until after her incarceration in the hospital to which she was sent from Bellevue, when she called at my home and demanded an interview with me, which I refused.

She insisted upon seeing me, and I consented to meet her. Her pitiful mental condition appealed to me, and I advised her to return to her husband and children and remain quietly at home. I told her she was not living the life of a Christian Scientist, but I hoped she would see this and become more normal.

This is the second time I ever spoke with her and the last. A correct understanding of Christian Science would have shown her the necessity of meeting her home duties and of not neglecting her husband and children.

AUGUSTA E. STETSON.

IF "ANTIS" BROKE WINDOWS

Would They Be Regarded as Martyrs by the Suffragettes?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You ask why the Englishwomen do not strike instead of rioting, and you rightly surmise that this would be the more effective method of impressing the public. You overlook the fact, however, that only a very small minority of suffragists in England feel that at this juncture there is any necessity for violent measures, since the women's cause has been espoused whole-heartedly by half the Cabinet, and until the recent anarchical outbreak on the part of Mrs. Pankhurst and her followers, the passage of our suffrage amendment to the Government Franchise bill was assured this session.

At a meeting held last night in this city, an Englishwoman, Miss Freeman, related the advice that had been given "by an American radical on this side," to "get rid" of Asquith, Lloyd-George, and Winston Churchill, bracketing these three men together, although every other English suffragist of any position or note recognizes Mr. Lloyd-George as the most valuable champion of the women's cause that it has ever had. To "get rid of" implies assassination, and this militant suffragist gave as her reason for rejecting this advice that "the system" would remain. By which, presumably, she did not mean our system of party government, which assuredly would survive the death of the present Cabinet, but our English system of law and order, under which incendiaries and destroyers of property are prosecuted and punished, whether men or women.

It is not a very happy argument for woman's franchise to advocate the abolition of such a system, and I would like to ask the enthusiasts for anarchy what the Government should do if the anti-suffragists also broke windows and attempted to commit suicide by starving themselves when imprisoned? Why should not Mrs. Humphry Ward imitate Mrs. Pankhurst and make a quasi-martyr of herself to impress the Government and prevent it from yielding to the suffragists? It is an open question whether the suffragists are in a majority or not in England, but at any rate, until they undoubtedly are it is absurd to draw analogies either from the riots of 1831 or the more remote incident of the "Boston tea party." The strength of the coal miners on the other hand lies in their absolute unity, not merely in their demands, but in their organization.

ETHEL ASHTON JONSON.

DR. WILEY'S RESIGNATION

Means He Has Been Worn Out by Food Adulterators' Efforts.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you allow me to appeal to your readers in protest against the resignation of Dr. Wiley as Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry? For years Dr. Wiley's hands have been tied so far as possible to hinder the strict enforcement of the pure food law. He wishes to see the law enforced for the benefit first of the consumer, and secondly of the manufacturer. The reading public is perfectly familiar with all that has been done to aid and abet those "privileged" manufacturers who wished to get rid of Dr. Wiley so that they might again have full swing, and to force on the consuming public those "horrors" that the pure food law was designed to stop the sale of. THE TIMES has made a mighty fight for the consumer. It has stood always for Dr. Wiley, and that is why I now appeal to THE TIMES. As it has been clearly put by one who knows, "there has been adopted a guerrilla warfare of the most petty, insulting, nagging character imaginable, designed to drive him to do the very thing he is contemplating."

What does his resignation mean? The reorganization of the Bureau of Chemistry with the forces in command that will make everything easy for the food adulterators.

THE MOUNTAINEERS' RECALL.

Virginia Shooting Was the Triumph of a Temporary Majority.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note the early adoption of the "recall of judicial decisions" and of Judges as practiced in Southwestern Virginia. Bullets were used for ballots, and the temporary majority won. The fact that the principal leader was probably killed has little to do with the application of the principle for which he was fighting. No doubt he could claim a constitutional right for the acts of his party, but he was impatient at the checks and limitations put on him by various laws and precedents which have been established, and therefore sought to put into immediate effect the temporary rule of his majority.

The event may be considered not altogether an unfair illustration of the "recall of judicial decisions on constitutional questions" if that should be adopted, and such questions should be settled finally not by the courts, but by popular majorities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial on the recall of Judges and their decisions as exemplified in the recent tragedy at Hillsville, Va., is timely.

It is true that Col. Roosevelt does not advocate the recall of Judges or of their decisions unless affecting constitutional questions, but it is dangerous to the better class of the country to allow criticism, even on these questions.

Help the Older Women, Too.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read in THE TIMES of the great good the Young Women's Hebrew Association is to do in building a new home for the young women wage earners. I would like to say a word for women advanced in years who have no homes, who are wage earners, too, and who are thrown from pillar to post. Is there no thought for them? Could I suggest that in the same house where the young women will be housed, there should also be a dormitory for the older ones?

TO STUDY CHILD PROBLEM.

Inter-Church League Will Confer on Juvenile Court Work.

The Inter-Church League for Social Service, which is composed of representatives of men's organizations in a dozen churches, will launch its interdenominational work on Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock, with a conference on "The Children's Court and the Delinquent Child," at the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, 1 West Forty-eighth Street.

"The Attitude of the City Towards the Children's Court and the Child" is the subject assigned to Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick. Judge Julius M. Mayer will speak of "The Judges and the Court Proceedings" and Ernest K. Coulter is to talk of the "Care of Children Before, During and After Trial."

"The League desires to enlighten the public," the announcement reads, "to learn present plans, and to cooperate with the authorities in the early execution of a constructive programme for the child."

The Calvary Baptist Church, the Central Presbyterian Church, the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, St. Thomas's Church, the Broadway Tabernacle, the Collegiate Church of St. Nicholas, the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, Temple Emmanuel, St. Bartholomew's Church, the Brick Presbyterian Church, the Church of the Epiphany and the Church of the Messiah will be represented.

THE FEELING OUT WEST.

Principles Discussed by George W. Perkins Are Represented as Selfish.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with amusement your interview with George W. Perkins. For seventeen years I lived in the Far West, as wool grower, prospector, mine idiot, State official, &c., and I know the people thoroughly and love them thoroughly, for they have been in years past very kind to me. But, as they themselves say, they "are not out there for their health," and about the last thing one hears among them, for home consumption, are such phrases as "great moral questions" or "questions of principle." I know no people who more deeply resent any interference with their affairs by the Central Government than these same frank, manly people of the Far Western States. Mr. Perkins probably found this out when he discussed forest conservation.

But, with great opportunities within their own borders to invest what spare cash they have, they do not deal in the securities in which the accumulated savings of the older Eastern States are invested, such as railroad bonds and stocks and securities of our great corporations, and they are not at all adverse to improving their own condition at the expense of the East through income tax, railroad regulation, trust busting, &c. When one gets down to the meat of the egg, with them it's "let's give Wall Street a crack." Analyzed—the principles and moral questions of the Far West are simply "What is for our interests?" Mr. Perkins is correct when he says that on these questions there are no party ties among them. Nothing saved us in the free silver campaign in 1896 but the intelligent, though reluctant, appreciation of the fact, on the part of the agricultural Western States, that they were being made a cat's-paw by their mining sister States.

STATE AID OF MOTHERS.

The Extension of the Principle Ad Absurdum Is Foreseen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The first payments were made in Chicago a few days ago under the "progressive" law that mothers in straitened circumstances shall receive money payments from the State so as to be enabled to keep the home together. It appears that the pension is $7 a month per child, and one woman was scheduled for no less than $160. All so far helped are widows.

The next "progressive" step is to include in the list of straitened mothers those whose husbands have deserted them. When that is accomplished women whose husbands cannot work or cannot get work, or perhaps who will not, are each to collect from a city grateful for the chance to keep a home together $7 a month for each child under 18 years of age.

The trifling sum of $4,100 represents the first actual payment under the plan. It is fondly hoped by the "progressives" that it will soon be ten or twenty times as much, so that the poor may devote their energies to culture rather than mere bread-winning. When all the straitened mothers shall have been sought out and placed on the list by public employes who can infallibly detect deceit while remedying want, straitened fathers will then be attended to. Widowers will come first, then those who wives cannot learn to economize the earnings of the man of the house, and in general the cure for all ills will be found. Just what will be left for the persons who earn money after most of it shall be taken from them to hand out to unfortunates and shiftless folk will then have to be decided—for it will be a rather pressing problem.

Do Anarchists Never Plot?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In referring to the attempted assassination of the King of Italy you say: "It is always hard in these cases to believe that the assassin has no accomplices, that he is not carrying out a pledge to fellow-conspirators." Well, why? Can you name a single instance of an assassination committed or attempted by anybody who called himself an Anarchist or was reputed to be such, in which there was found to be a conspiracy? The air is always thick with rumors of a conspiracy at first, and it is at first that everybody is reading the reports and paying attention. By the time it is found that there was no conspiracy, nobody is paying attention any longer. Consequently everybody has the impression that he has known of several cases of monarchs or high officials assassinated by Anarchist plots. But it always turns out that there was no plot, doesn't it? What case can be cited to the contrary? On what evidence were any of the stories of a plot ever found to rest?

In past ages, political assassinations were quite commonly the work of plots. Down to our own time this has been eminently true of the Russian terrorist movement, which the average man lumps with anarchism as practically the same thing, regardless of the fact that there is no anarchism at all in a typical Nihilist. And the conception of a plot offers more chance for the public mind to spin elaborate romance. For such reasons the first thing that everybody thinks of when he hears of an Anarchist assassination is "plot." And yet, what chance have we of ever dealing intelligently with the Anarchist problem till we know at least enough about it to realize that one leading difference between Anarchists and other political assassins is that the Anarchists never, or almost never, have plots?

NOT FROM THE PRINCESS.

Dedicated to Christabel Pankhurst and the Rev. Anna Shaw.

Go the windows down the street,
For things are bound to happen
When the "gettes" and "bobbies" meet.

Oh! well for the bobby off beat
Who has finished his rounds for the day.
Oh! well for the tradesmen who know
This is no time for window display.

And the stiff-necked lawmakers hold
To their old opinion still.
But oh! for a "gette" with an iron hand
Who could punch Asquith's head with a will.

Break! Screech! Smash!
For modern or nothing are we,
And the stately grace of the dames who are dead

FORWARD MOVEMENT FOR MEN TO BEGIN

WOULD REFORM THE NATION

Teams to be Assigned to Many Cities to Organize and Start the Religious Campaign.

Nearly a thousand delegates from the different Protestant churches of the city assembled at the Broadway Tabernacle yesterday afternoon to hear F. B. Smith, organizer of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, describe what the movement intends to do in this city in the next four weeks.

With Mr. Smith on the platform were William Ives Washburn, H. W. Jessup, the Rev. N. W. Pratt, the Rev. Hiram Foulkes, and Irving C. Gaylord. The speeches were interspersed with congregational singing and special selections by a male quartet.

"This is a particularly prophetic meeting," said Mr. Smith, who made the principal speech. "You men have all been sent here by the pastors of I don't know how many city churches to be instructed as to what you are going to do in the next four weeks. The way this movement came to start is that the churches, the Sunday school organizations, and the Young Men's Christian Associations of the country recently discovered that the percentage of masculine church members, instead of having increased in the last ten years, had actually been decreasing.

"There are 5,000,000 less male than female church members in this country at the present time. So the eleven church denominations, the Sunday school organizations, and the Young Men's Christian Associations all came together and decided that for one year at least they would pool their interests and send out teams up and down the country challenging every man. They also decided that they would enter the realm of publicity and take up the work of the church from a newspaper man's angle.

"I want to state right here that I believe that if this world is going to be evangelized, the newspapers must be reached. We have been seeking newspaper publicity for this reason for many months. We have been fooled many times, and have spent some time and much money for naught. Finally, we went right into the newspaper offices and talked to the newspaper men as man to man.

"We learned from this that there is no use standing across the street and finding fault with the way newspapers and newspaper men conduct their business. The way to do, we discovered, was to go and convince the newspaper men right in their offices that we were trying to do something that was good and right. As a result, I'll venture to say that you've none of you ever heard so much about religion in the newspapers as you've heard in the last two weeks.

"We have four electric signs on the City Hall of Philadelphia, and we are now invading the White Light district of this city. We are sending out teams of six men to all the cities of this country. These teams are not composed of great 'evangelizers. But each is composed of a Bible study expert, a boys' work expert, a community extension expert, a social service expert, a foreign and domestic missions expert, and an expert on evangelism.

"Each team stays eight days in each city until a local organization to carry on a permanent campaign for church attendance and practical Christianity among the men of the community has been perfected. Then the team goes to another city and does the same thing there.

"This has cost a great deal of time and money—not as much money as the newspapers have said, perhaps. But I am glad you can't carry on a campaign of this kind without a lot of money. It is a good thing for the men of this country to get into the habit of giving money for such a purpose.

"I don't believe the men of any other country in the world would have given so much for such a cause as the men of America have; and, because of their example, the men of England are going to start a Men and Religion Forward Movement, beginning on Jan. 1, 1913. The Young Men's Christian Association of South Africa, of Australia, and of Japan have written to us for instructions regarding campaigns there within the last few weeks.

"What we want to ask all you men to-day to do is to pledge yourselves to sign up every man in your various churches to attend the institutes of the movement in this city on April 15, 16, 17, and 18, where instruction will be given in how to organize a permanent campaign in this city.

"If New York City is ever to be evangelized, it is going to be evangelized by its own men and not by outsiders. This Men and Forward Movement of ours has disturbed a lot of ministers and church folk. There is a song which begins 'Please go 'way and let me sleep.' This is what a good many men in the churches nowadays seem to be singing in their hearts.

"The evil reputation of some of our greatest men has gone to the ends of the earth. For every great man whose evil reputation is described in the big headlines of the newspapers I could name nine men whose repuation is spotless. But the moral conditions among American men are bad and the only remedy is to place the young men of the Nation face to face with the saving character of religion.

"Men ask me why I get so worked up about this movement and why I give so much of my strength to it. I always answer:

"'I'd sooner live for only ten years more, afire with zeal for God and the Church, than live forty years like an old sissy.'"

CALLS MOSLEM RULE A CURSE

Bishop Hartzell, Arriving on Laconia, Wants Italy to Keep Tripoli.

The Cunard liner Laconia arrived yesterday from Mediterranean ports with 228 cabin and 1,179 steerage passengers. Commander W. R. D. Irvine said that tanks to prevent rolling had been tested on the voyage. He said he could not discuss their operation until the company had received his report.

Among the passengers on the ship was Bishop Joseph C. Hartzell of the American Methodist-Episcopal Church. The Bishop makes his headquarters on the island of Madeira and his diocese includes the mission stations in Western, Eastern, Northern, and Southern Central Africa. He said that he had just returned from a three and a half months' trip to Algeria, Morocco, Turkey, Italy, and Portugal.

"I went to Lisbon," said Bishop Hartzell, "to discuss matters relating to colonial missions. The outlook for the future of the new Portuguese Republic is hopeful and there is no reason why its state of commercial prosperity of centuries ago should not be restored. There was still some friction between the Government and the clerical and Bourbon parties, who wish to see the monarchy restored. I hope the Italians will hold Tripoli and Cyrenica permanently for the benefit of mankind. The Moslem rule is a curse because the only laws that Mohammedans observe are contained in the Khoran, and no one can enjoy equal rights and privileges under Moslem rule unless he is a follower of Mohammet."

The Bishop said that he had come home to attend the General Methodist-Episcopal conference, which will be held at Minneapolis in May.

Mrs. Clarence Slocum arrived on the Laconia with her daughter, Miss Hope Slocum. They brought with them the body of Mr. Slocum, who died recently at Fiume, Austria, where he was United States Consul. Other passengers on the Laconia were George Allen, Miss Grace Allen, James C. Clark, G. C. Driscoll, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graham, Miss Graham, William H. Holme, W. F. Higgins, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin C. Kenly, Mrs. J. Hamilton Small, Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Taplin, Mrs. Jacob Weedemann, Mrs. Josephine B. Willbank, and Miss Bessie de Vole.

A YOUTH THE WIZARD OF NEW STAGECRAFT

Loomis H. Taylor, Who Put on "Mona" at the Metropolitan, Is Only 24 Years Old.

WENT ABROAD TO STUDY

Brings Back Theatre Art That Discards Painted Scenery and Footlights—Tells of Ideal Opera House.

A new name appeared on the programmes of the Metropolitan Opera House last Thursday evening, and those who noticed it asked of each other who could be this Loomis H. Taylor who had undertaken the stage direction of Horatio Parker's "Mona." Very few knew, and so explanations were not forthcoming that Mr. Taylor is an American, only 24 years old, and that although this has been his first opportunity in his native country, he is the bearer of the tidings of the new stagecraft of which New York has seen so little.

Occasionally the names of Gordon Craig, Stanislawsky, and Karl Hagemann have reached the ears of some of the more erudite theatregoers, but what their names stand for is only known to the few. There have been no echoes of their methods of staging in this country. Max Reinhardt is perhaps better known, because his "Sumurun" was performed here, but that Oriental pantomime gave but a faint idea of the many-sided nature of the talents of that wizard of the Berlin Deutsches Theater.

"Stanislawsky of the Theatre des Arts in Moscow believes in always subordinating the staging to the play itself," said Mr. Taylor yesterday to a reporter for THE TIMES. "He wants the psychology and the action of the drama to do its own speaking, and so he brings it prominently in the foreground with the barest kind of a background of sombre grays or black. On the other hand, Carré at the Opéra Comique in Paris subordinates the play to the staging. He thinks of his colors, his lighting, his mass effects, and his costumes before he considers the drama or the music. It is by his mise-en-scène that he has achieved his greatest triumphs in his theatre.

Germans Take Middle Path.

"The Germans, I think, have found a happy medium between these two schools. They have taken the best from each. They do not overspread the stage with decoration, they make it as simple as possible, and yet it is obviously decoration. As for Gordon Craig, I think he learned most of what he teaches from Stanislawsky. Isadora Duncan once told me that Craig had spent a great deal of time at Moscow watching the Russian. And, anyway, Craig's work is mostly theoretic. He has seldom staged plays. Stanislawsky, Hagemann, and Reinhardt have had every sort of practical experience. Many Americans who have visited Germany have seen the results of the latter two. Stanislawsky is known to foreigners chiefly by his staging of 'The Blue Bird,' which was seen in Paris.

"It was really with Hagemann in Mannheim that I learned most of what I know about the art of staging. I had read many of his books before I met him, and I agreed with most of his theories. He believes at first in making everything on the stage plastic. He uses back drops as infrequently as possible. Instead, in outdoor scenes, he uses a semi-circular cloth representing the sky, and in front of that whatever trees, houses, or rocks are used are actually built.

"To any one with a sensitive eye a painted scene is often a pretty picture when the curtain goes up, but as soon as a figure walks on the stage the effect is spoiled. The figure is plastic. The painted scenery is flat. Now by using plastic scenery, well-lighted, this bad effect is done away with. Hagemann also dispenses with footlights as much as possible. Of course, all natural lighting in this world is from above except when one is bending over a fire. When he does use footlights he uses a kind which lights the entire figure instead of half of it as is so often the case in an American theatre.

"For certain plays he devised a conventional method of staging. 'Hamlet' is one of the plays which he put on in this way. On either side of the stage were two square columns, which rose to the height of the fly galleries. At the back was hung a splendid tapestry. The columns were varied in different scenes by pictures or hangings, and the objects on the scene were those which were needed, except in the case of such decorations as candlesticks. Rising toward the tapestry, which varied in color during the different scenes, at the back of the stage was a flight of steps. The scene was occasionally made smaller by dropping the back tapestry in front of one pair of columns.

"Hagemann used a similar effect in the church scene in 'Faust,' which consisted only of two columns, with draperies and the tall candlesticks bearing lights. In the play of 'Faust' there are a great many different scenes, and in order to facilitate quick changes Hagemann had many of these built on rollers so that they could be wheeled on and off the stage.

"In 'Macbeth' he achieved a wonderful effect in the scene of the witches. The whole background was hung with dark, indistinguishable draperies. The witches bent over the caldron, which was lighted with a weird unnatural light. During the entire scene a man held two fingers on the two highest notes of the organ, played pianissimo. The effect was blood-curdling. It almost made people in the audience hysterical. There was nothing used in this scene, which did not serve to heighten the effect. This sort of thing is opposed to the 'realistic' staging, which is seen at its best at Meiningen. Scenery never should be realistic, but it should make an effect.

"I think the greatest temptation of the modern stage director is to restage the works of Richard Wagner. What an opportunity for the man who could do it. They cry for simple plastic staging as no other works in the répertoire do. But there is the senseless tradition of Baireuth which makes it impossible to do anything which was not done in the year 1876.

Wagner Would Approve.

"Now if Wagner were alive to-day he would be the first to wish that something could be done to improve the staging of his works. What could not be done with the works of the Ring if plastic staging were observed, with a sky background and the foreground as simple as possible, but all the objects real and lighted from above. In some scenes a more impressionistic method might be observed. For instance, in the Nibelung scene in 'Das Rheingold' I would use only black mysterious shadowy draperies. In the upper left hand corner there would be a blue light to indicate the upper world, and in the lower left hand corner a red light to indicate that one could go still further down into the underworld.

"As for the changes of scene in the Wagner dramas I think the convention of using steam curtains is ridiculous. It can never be made either realistic or effective. I should suggest the turning out of the lights, and the dropping of the curtains while the scenes are changed.

"I should like sometime to control the ideal opera house, which would consist of two theatres. One of them would contain a sunken orchestra pit and would be about the general description of the Prinz Regenten Theatre in Munich. It would be devoted to the works of Wagner, Richard Strauss, and Gluck and others of the grand style. A great deal could be done with Gluck along the lines of simple staging.

"Next to this would be the smaller theatre, where the Italian and French works could be given with more effect. Perhaps an opera like 'Aida' would do better in the Wagner Theatre."

Was Born in New York.

"When did you decide on your career?"

"I think I have always had a desire to work on the stage," he answered. "I was born in New York, but was taken to Germany when I was 2 years old, and I have passed most of my life over there. I went to the Gymnasium in Munich, and met many of the great Germans, including Franz von Stück, whom I consider the biggest of the German painters. He is to painting what Richard Strauss is to music. Then I came back to America to work in Wall Street, and finally went to Nevada for two years. There I earned money enough in mines to go back to Europe.

"Now, I wanted to learn stagecraft. I might have gone with Anton Fuchs in Munich or Weingartner in Vienna, but I finally decided on Karl Hagemann in Mannheim. I had letters to him, and he took hold of me and taught me what I could learn. Finally I helped him stage some plays, and often took charge of the stage in 'Faust' and other dramas during his absence. He is at present Director of the Deutsches Schauspielhaus in Hamburg.

"Then I spent a year in Munich watching Fuchs, learning what I could about Richard Strauss and the Wagner music dramas and last Winter I was in Paris, where I spent a great deal of time in the Louvre studying the history of art. A stage director must know many things, and he must not make any one thing too important. If he is too much the architect, too much the painter, too much the musician, or too much the actor, he cannot achieve that perfect whole in his artistic effect which should be his ambition.

"After my Winter in Paris I decided that I would like to come to America to try to work here and show the results of some of the things I had learned. Mr. Dippel thought perhaps he might be able to do something for me, and when I arrived here last October he indeed did offer me a position, but it was not exactly what I wanted.

Otto H. Kahn Helped Him.

"I knew Otto H. Kahn's cousins in Mannheim, however, and I had a letter to him. When he saw me he told me that he thought it was extraordinary that an American boy should go to Europe to learn the art of staging, and said that there should be a reward for such ambition. He also said that he did not think that there would be anything for me at the Metropolitan Opera House. All the places were filled. He sent me to Mr. Gatti-Casazza, however, and he kindly allowed me to attend all the rehearsals and performances in the house.

"Always he had said if anything turns up you shall have a chance. Then 'Mona' turned up. You see Brian Hooker does not speak French or German, and so it would have been difficult for him to explain his intentions to Mr. Schertel or Mr. Speck. Therefore I was chosen and did what I could."

During his stay in Germany Mr. Taylor came into close touch with many celebrated singers and dramatists. Richard Strauss lives at Garmisch, where Mr. Taylor spends his Summers.

"I see him very often," he said. "I once asked him why he had chosen to pronounce 'Salome' with the accent on the first syllable, as it must be sung in his music drama, instead of with the accent on the second syllable as it is correctly pronounced. 'I like it better my way,' was his answer. 'That's the only reason.'

Grossness of German Modernites.

"The German playwrights at present are striving for something new at which they have not yet arrived. And while they are searching many of them are writing works which contain scenes too crass to be described. These scenes appeal to a certain something which only exists in the German nature, and they seem to recur in all the modern plays. For instance, in a work which I admire intensely and which has had great success in all the theatres, Ernst Hartz's 'Tantris der Narr,' there is one horrible scene. The play is another version of 'Tristan und Isolde,' and in one scene Hartz has placed Isolde, banished, nude among the lepers. The scene on the stage may only be described as crass, and yet it is what appeals to the Germans.

"This leaning toward the crass is found especially in the plays of Frank Wedekind. Nothing could be more terrible than his 'Buechse der Pandora.' It moves in an atmosphere of cocottes, confidence men, crooks, bad women, and murderers. The final scene is of a brutality to sicken a police reporter. I cannot say that I care for Wedekind. The Stage Society in Munich gave a special performance of this play last Summer. It is not for public consumption.

"Many of his plays have been produced in Munich, where he lives, at the Schauspielhaus. At one time one could find better acting there than anywhere else in Germany. Now the Residenz-Theater is famous for its Ibsen acting, that they do most excellently.

"Schnitzler's 'Reigen' is another example of crass writing. Its publication is forbidden in Germany. And von Hofmannsthal, who has enormous talent, both poetic and dramatic, is always hovering over the brink. There are many horrors in 'Elektra' and much that is gross in 'Der Rosenkavalier.'"

SUNDAY AFTERNOON MUSIC.

Irish Symphony and Negro Overture—Griswold's Fine Singing.

Yesterday afternoon's concerts were given by the New York Symphony Orchestra in the Century Theatre and the People's Symphony Society in Carnegie Hall. Mr. Damrosch, who has a keen scent for the day's interest, celebrated St. Patrick's Day appropriately by playing Sir Charles Stanford's "Irish" symphony, a work that was revived last season by Mr. Mahler after several years of neglect in New York. It was worth reviving then and worth repeating yesterday because of its real beauty, the felicitous use the Irish composer has made of Irish themes, and the success with which he has made his music expressive of the Gaelic spirit, by turns merry and pathetic.

The second part of the programme was devoted to excerpts from "Die Meistersinger." Mr. Putnam Griswold was the soloist, and sang Hans Sachs's two monologues, "Wie duftet doch der Flieder," from the second act, and "Wahn, Wahn," from the third act. Mr. Griswold's singing of these was most poetical in conception and finished in style, noble and beautiful in voice, and of that remarkable excellence of diction that has won him so much admiration at the Opera. It was singing of the highest art and mastery, and prompted the hope that he would be enabled to show what he can do in the part of Hans Sachs in performances of the comedy at the Opera. The orchestra played the prelude, the prelude to Act III., and the Prize Song.

At the concert of the People's Symphony Society there was played a "comedy overture" by Henry F. Gilbert, based on negro themes. It is one of the most interesting and most truly musical contributions that have been made to this sort of composition, and discloses a fresh and orginal talent that ought to have a more extended hearing in New York than it has had. The overture was played yesterday for the first time in a New York concert hall, though it was performed here two years ago at one of the Summer concerts in Central Park. It has been played in Boston by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and at the Pittsburgh Exposition. Mr. Gilbert is a Boston musician, a pupil of Edward MacDowell, and not a youth, but a man of 44.

The overture, which is said to have been intended as the overture to an opera, is based entirely upon real negro melodies used as artistic material for ingenious and effective development, going even to the extent of a fugue. The rhythmic character of the music, (from which "ragtime" elements are not excluded,) is especially appealing, and there is something genuinely stirring about the whole overture, something vivid and individual, that marks it as a production much out of the common.

The orchestra, which is under F. X. Arens's direction, also played Tschaikowsky's sixth symphony and a march from Grieg's music to "Sigurd Jorsalfar." Miss Alice Nielsen was the soloist, and sang Arditi's once popular vocal waltz, "Il Bacio," and the air, "Visi d'arte," from Puccini's "Tosca." There were pleasing and brilliant qualities in her singing which appealed to the audience.

MUSIC NOTES.

Rosina Galli, the young dancer of the Chicago-Philadelphia Opera Company, will dance in the Plaza ballroom Wednesday morning for the purpose of raising funds for a scholarship at Vassar College.

Mrs. Henry Russell, assisted by George Copeland, will give a Debussy recital at the Little Theatre next Sunday afternoon.

Miss Esther Swainson, assisted by Miss Constance Purdy, contralto, and Miss Dorothy Swainson, pianist, will give a lecture recital on Claude Debussy at the Plaza this morning at 11.

McCall Lanham will appear in a recital of American and French songs at the Plaza on Thursday evening, March 28. The recital will be followed by a performance of the song cycle, "In a Persian Garden." Mr. Lanham will be assisted by Bruno Huhn, Alexander Russell, Edith Chapman-Goold, Corinne Welsh, John Barnes Wells, and William Fairchild Sherman.

Amy Grant will give a lecture recital on "Lobetanz" on Sunday afternoon at her studio, 78 West Fifty-fifth Street.

ADMIRAL MELVILLE DIES OF PARALYSIS

Former Engineer in Chief of the Navy First Won Fame as an Arctic Explorer.

HERO OF TWO EXPEDITIONS

Built All Our Ships That Fought the Spanish-American War—Believed Maine Blown Up from Within.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., March 17.—Rear Admiral George Wallace Melville, formerly Engineer in Chief of the Navy and famous as an inventor, scientist, and arctic explorer, died at his home here to-day of paralysis. He was 72 years old, and retired from the navy in 1903. He was married for the second time in 1907 to Miss Estella Smith Polis of this city, whose death occurred in 1910.

Entering the navy in 1861 as an assistant engineer, Rear Admiral Melville served through the civil war, and was then sent out to various stations and navy yards. He volunteered for arctic exploration, and distinguished himself with De Long's expedition in 1879, and as the rescuer of Greely's expedition five years later. He became Engineer in Chief of the Navy in 1887, and was reappointed successively until his retirement. During this long period of service he was the supervisor of all the ships that were built, in number 120, representing 700,000 horse power. His greatest success as a naval constructor was probably the triple-screw fliers, the Columbia and the Minneapolis. The records of these ships vindicated his judgment.

The ships that entered the Spanish-American war had practically all during their construction come under his supervision. It is set down to his credit that the magnificent run of the Oregon of 14,500 miles was due to his skill in naval construction.

Sided With Thomas B. Reed.

Rear Admiral Melville always held to the belief that the battleship Maine was wrecked by an internal explosion. The last report of the Vreeland Board that it was an external explosion was freely criticised by him. Last June he published a letter on the destruction of the Maine which he wrote in 1902 to Thomas B. Reed, then Speaker of the House, in which he argued at great length that the Maine could not have been destroyed by a mine. His views were given at the request of Mr. Reed, who held stubbornly to his stand against a war with Spain. Only last December, Melville said, "I still hold to the belief that the Maine was destroyed from within."

The first weighty opinion against the claims of Dr. Cook to the discovery of the north pole came from Rear Admiral Melville. On the day the news came, when everybody was acclaiming Dr. Cook, the old naval veteran declared his story false. A few days later when Peary was heard from he said:

"If Peary says he (Peary) has been there, you can rest assured that he has, and that has brought back the evidence with him."

And during the bitter controversy which followed Rear Admiral Melville stuck many holes through the fabrications of Dr. Cook.

No arctic explorer had more dramatic adventures than Melville. In 1879 he sailed as engineer with De Long's party from San Francisco on board the Jeannette. For two years they drifted through the ice, and more than once the ship was only saved by Melville's skill. He was sent by De Long to unfurl the American flag over an island that had been sighted and named Henrietta Island, lying to the north of Siberia. Tremendous difficulties were surmounted, but the feat was accomplished.

Soon afterward the Jeannette, worn out by the long struggle with the arctic ice, sank with most of the supplies on board. It was necessary to retreat to the nearest land, 500 miles away. Two parties were formed. For forty-one days Melville and his men dragged their sledges over the ice, crossing channels and dangerous leads. Probably no more dangerous feat was ever accomplished in the arctic regions, and Melville was the leader of the little party which finally reached the Russian village 110 days after the destruction of the ship.

Found De Long's Records.

For three weeks Melville was very ill; but as soon as he could gather supplies he started out to find De Long, who was in command of the second party. Almost, by a miracle De Long's records and instruments were discovered in a cache, but all other traces of De Long and his party had vanished.

Melville was forced to return to Bulun, his base, and to wait for Spring. The second trip was successful, and in March, 1882, just thirty years ago, Melville found the bones of De Long and his brave followers and gave them a burial. Melville returned to the United States after an absence of more than three years, Sept. 13, 1882.

The next year he set out to find the Greely expedition and made a speedy success. On June 22, 1884, Greely and his few followers who were still alive were found and saved from death by starvation, which was almost upon them.

By his bravery Rear Admiral Melville won a world-wide fame, which was tardily recognized by Congress with the award of a gold medal and promotion of fifteen numbers. Subsequently he devoted himself wholly to engineering. He was honored by almost all the scientific and geographical societies. The American Society of Mechanical Engineers elected him President, and he received honorary degrees from many universities, as well as decorations from foreign monarchs. At the time of his death he was the National Commander of the Loyal Legion.

Rear Admiral Melville was born in New York City and traced his ancestry through a Scotch line to famous persons in Scotch history. Sir James Melville, First Lord of the British Admiralty, was an ancestor of his, and his grandfather of the same name came to New York in 1804. His father was Alexander Melville, a professional chemist of New York. His mother was Sarah D. Wallace of New York.

A. BAMBERGER FOUND DEAD.

Heart Disease Kills Wealthy Realty Operator at the Ansonia.

Abram Bamberger, 58 years old and a widower, was found dead in his room in the Ansonia yesterday by a maid. Mr. Bamberger was a real estate operator and reputed wealthy. He has a daughter in Europe and a son in this city.

Mr. Bamberger had been treated by Dr. J. P. Thornley for heart disease for several months, and the physician gave this as the cause of death. The case was reported to the police and Coroner because the physician had not been in attendance on Mr. Bamberger for twenty-four hours.

MANY FIREBUGS AT LARGE.

Committee on Safety Makes This Fact an Argument for an Epileptic Home.

The Committee on Safety which has been conducting an investigation into the causes of fires in tenement houses made public a report yesterday showing that thirty-one fires of incendiary origin had occurred last week, eleven being in a single apartment.

The contention of the committee is that the incendiary fires were started by pyromaniacs who have no business to be at large, and are at liberty only because the State has been backward in providing a home for epileptics. A home such as is needed has been proposed, the committee explains, at Letchworth Village, near Haverstraw in Rockland County, but the plan has not been carried out for lack of funds.

In the hope that the Legislature will be encouraged to vote an appropriation for the home, the statistics collected on incendiary fires will be forwarded to Albany. Of the 14,000 fires in Manhattan last year, it is declared that 900 were the work of "human firebrands who, through mental derangements, have an irresistible impulse to destroy property and endanger lives.

"Of these firebrands," the committee's statement continues, "the court records show that only three in 100 are arrested. There are enough pyromaniacs in New York to fill a special institution. The amount of property loss occasioned by the foolish policy of giving these persons, when arrested, short prison sentences, and then returning them to prey upon the community is something that has not been seriously considered by the public.

"The mere money loss runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars a year. It costs $121 a year to support a defective in a charitable institution; it cost New York more money to allow a single defective family to remain at large last year than was spent in erecting and maintaining since its opening the custodial asylum at Newark."

A bill now before the Legislature, if passed, will allow the completion at Letchworth of an institution capable of caring for 2,600 defectives, instead of only 100, the present capacity, as provided for in an appropriation made in 1908.

TWO NEW PLAYS FOR BRADY.

Double Bill, with Cyril Scott, to Have Easter Opening Here.

William A. Brady announced yesterday that he has in preparation for early production "The Best People," a comedy by Frederick Lonsdale and Frank Curzon, and "The Gods of the Mountain," by Lord Dunsany, with music by Norman O'Neill. The two will be presented as a double bill, with Cyril Scott at the head of the company.

Both pieces have been played in London. "The Best People" treats of the complications between two husbands and two wives who get into misunderstandings over their affections. "The Gods of the Mountain," a fantastic satire, is in direct contrast to the longer comedy.

The company engaged to support Mr. Scott includes William McVey, Dallas Anderson, Rockecliffe Fellowes, Henry Dornton, James Hagan, W. G. Gross, W. Sage Bennett, H. S. Koser, William Lewis, Edwin Thompson, Ruth Shepley, Lucille Watson, and Mona Morgan. The plays will be given out of town for a few presentations, and will come to Broadway about Easter time.

CHICAGO OPERA PAYS.

Company Also Shows Better Financial Returns in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Chicago's grand opera company will cost the Chicagoans who are supporting it this year nothing, and they may realize a small profit, according to Bernard Ulrich, manager of the company. While the final accounts of the company will not be made up for a few weeks the management is assured of success in its efforts to have its income and expenditures balance.

The showing of the grand opera company in Philadelphia this year was a marked improvement. There was a deficit of $140,000 there last year. This year the company demanded a guarantee from Philadelphians and E. T. Stotesbury put up $100,000 to cover a possible deficit. The receipts for the ten weeks have reduced the deficit.

BELASCO REHEARSALS ON.

Clara Blandick in Title Role of New "Madame Butterfly" Production.

Rehearsals of the new production of "Madame Butterfly" that David Belasco will soon make in conjunction with Morris Gest and William Elliott, will begin to-day at the Republic Theatre. This will be the first of a series of one-act plays that Mr. Belasco will produce for vaudeville in accordance with an arrangement recently made with Martin Beck.

For "Madame Butterfly" Clara Blandick will have the rôle of Cho-Cho San, and others in the cast will be Earl Ryder, George Wellington, Edgar Norton, Frank L. Davis, Marie Hudspeth, Edith Higgins, and Inez Seabury. Following this play Mr. Belasco will begin on the production of "The Drums of Oude," a one-act play by Austin Strong.

TO REVIVE OLD SONG.

Jose Collins Will Give Her Mother's Famous "Ta-ra-raBoom-De-Ay."

Jose Collins, one of the principals at the Winter Garden, is going to have a new song number—"Ta-ra-ra-Boom-De-Ay"—made famous by her mother, Lottie Collins, twenty years ago. Miss Collins has the original score of the song, and has had a copy made of the dress and the big picture hat worn by her mother when she appeared at the old Standard Theatre here. New lyrics are being written to fit the air.

Miss Collins has never sung this song in public, although she made an attempt at it on the opening night of "Vera Violetta" at the Winter Garden, and had to give up because she could not remember the words.

Gatti-Casazza's Father Honored.

Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the general manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, received word yesterday that his father, Stefane Gatti-Casazza, who for many years represented the city of Ferrara in the Italian Chamber of Deputies, has been appointed a Senator of the Kingdom by King Victor Emmanuel II. The new Senator is in the full vigor of life. He is a radical constitutionalist in politics, a retired Colonel of the Italian army, and one of the few survivors of the famous Garibaldi "Thousand."

Minna Gale in 'The Garden of Allah.'

Minna Gale will appear in the rôle of Domini Enfilden in "The Garden of Allah" at the Century Theatre to-night for the first time. Miss Gale began her theatrical career at the age of 17 as leading woman for Laurence Barrett, and then played with the Booth and Barrett company. Two seasons ago she had the rôle of the Countess Chiaramonte with Viola Allen in "The White Sister."

Actors to See "Monsieur Beaucaire."

Lewis Waller announced yesterday that he will give a special invitation performance of "Monsieur Beaucaire" at Daly's Theatre, on Sunday evening. No tickets will be sold and the audience will be composed of actors and actresses now playing in New York. The performance, of course, will be the same as is given on other nights.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

A special matinée of "A Butterfly on the Wheel" will be given at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre this afternoon. Winona Shannon, who played the leading role during the illness of Madge Titheradge, will be seen as Peggy, and will probably play the part at the Wednesday matinée as well to relieve Miss Titheradge of the strain of more than seven performances a week.

Dallas Welford has been added to the company that F. Ziegfeld, Jr., is assembling to appear at the Moulin Rouge in "A Winsome Widow."

The management of the Garrick Theatre announces that owing to the length of Paul Orleneff's production of "Czar Paul I," the curtain will rise every evening at 8 o'clock.

TO HONOR GIRLS' TEACHER.

Entertainment at Plaza to Raise Funds for Vassar Scholarship.

A mi-careme dansante will be held in the ballroom of the Plaza on Wednesday morning to raise money to complete a ten-thousand-dollar fund to establish a scholarship at Vassar College to perpetuate the name of a woman teacher who for thirty-five years conducted a girls' preparatory school which many Vassar alumnae attended before going to college.

Mrs. George McAneny, Mrs. Morgan R. Howe, Mrs. J. Aspinwall Hodge, Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College; Miss Mary Reiley Smith, Miss Emily Dawes, Mrs. Frederic Martin Burr, Mrs. Vernon C. Brown, Mrs. J. Culbert Palmer, and Mrs. Joseph Ulman are the patronesses. Among those who are active in raising the fund are Mrs. James M. Taylor, wife of the President of Vassar College; Mrs. Henry Allen Pearson, Miss Sarah E. Newman, Mrs. William Edwards Milne, Mrs. Henry S. Fleming, and Mrs. William Reynolds Brown.

Fancy dances, from the time of the toe dancing of the Italian Court to the present day, will be illustrated by Mme. Rosina Galli, Maurice, the Parisian dancer, and other professional dancers.

The identity of the teacher in whose name the scholarship is to be established is not being made public, but her school was carried on in this city, and also near Poughkeepsie. She retired four years ago. All Vassar graduates, according to the patronesses yesterday, know who she is. Half of the ten-thousand-dollar fund has already been raised.

EX-FOOTBALL STAR TO WED.

Patrick Grant Engaged to Miss Marie S. Disston of Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., March 17.—The announcement to-day that Patrick Grant, a former Harvard football star and son of Judge Robert Grant of Bay State Road, is engaged to marry Miss Marie S. Disston of Philadelphia revealed a romance that started less than three months ago. Judge and Mrs. Grant have never seen the fiancée of their son.

"Pat" Grant, as the once famous centre was known while at Harvard, went to Sea Breeze, Florida, in January with Phillips Ward Page, the Boston aviator, to run an aviation school there.

At a social function there he met Miss Disston, who is one of the three daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Disston of Philadelphia, and is a member of the Philadelphia Cricket Club. Their progress in friendship was fast, and their friends have been looking for the engagement announcement for several weeks.

Patrick Grant is one of the four sons of Judge and Mrs. Grant. He was graduated from Harvard in 1908. By his work on the Harvard eleven he won a place in the All American team.

Commanding Officers to Dine.

The Commanding Officers' Association of the National Guard and Naval Militia of New York State, the President of which is Col. Daniel Appleton of the Seventh Regiment, will give its annual dinner at the Hotel Astor on Wednesday night. Among the speakers will be Brig. Gen. Robert L. Evans, U. S. A., chief of the division of militia affairs in the War Department, Capt. Matthew E. Hanna, Third U. S. Cavalry, Capt. George E. Thorne, Twenty-fourth U. S. Infantry, Commander Archibald H. Davis, U. S. Navy, Brig. Gen. William Verbeck, the Adjutant General of New York, Col. William Wilson, N. G. N. Y., and Maj. Gen. Charles F. Roe, N. G. N. Y.

F. C. MOORE FALLS DEAD.

Former Insurance Co. Head Stricken at Close of Y. W. C. A. Address.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., March 17.—Francis C. Moore, one-time President of the Continental Fire Insurance Company of New York, stepped from the platform in the auditorium of the new Young Women's Christian Association building, Lexington Avenue and Third Street, where he had delivered a dedication address this afternoon, and took a seat beside his wife in the audience. Suddenly he fell sideways, his head resting on her shoulder. Mrs. Moore cried out, and several women screamed. There was almost a panic in the audience when the choir struck up a hymn in which the congregation joined.

In the meantime Dr. G. W. Lyons, Dr. W. E. Schauffler, and Dr. I. H. Hance carried Mr. Moore to an anteroom. There they found that he was dead of heart disease, from which he had suffered for many years.

Mr. Moore was about seventy years old. For fifteen years he had spent his winters in the Laurel House here and his summers at Atlantic Highlands where he had a home. He was a member of All Saints' Church here and taught a class in the Sunday School. He was deeply interested in church work and in the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. He was greatly in demand as a speaker at meetings of these organizations.

Mrs. Moore collapsed when she learned that her husband was dead and had to be taken to her hotel in an automobile. She is in a serious state to-night.

DR. ALEXANDER HADDEN.

Aged Physician Dies on a Train—His Body Brought Here.

Dr. Alexander Hadden of this city died suddenly on Saturday on a train between Rocky Mount, N. C., and Richmond, Va. He was on his way to this city. He had been ill for some time and death was due to heart disease. The body arrived here shortly after midnight over the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Dr. Hadden was seventy-nine years old and graduated from Union College in the class of 1856. He had been connected with Bellevue and the Nursery and Child's Hospital and organized the Northeastern Dispensary, where he served until he was attacked recently with a nervous breakdown. He was a member of the Academy of Medicine, the County Medical Society and other medical organizations. He held the degree of L. L. D. from the University of Omaha.

10,000 at Dr. Meury's Funeral.

More than 10,000 persons attended the funeral yesterday of the Rev. Dr. Emil A. Meury in the Second Dutch Reformed Church of Jersey City, N. J., of which he had been pastor for thirty years. Only about 4,000 could be seated inside the church, but at the conclusion of the services the doors were opened and the big crowd which had waited outside was allowed to pass through and view Dr. Meury's body.

JAMES JONES IS DEAD.

Pittsburgh Coal Operator Leaves an Estate Worth $5,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 17.—James Jones, founder of the Pittsburgh-Buffalo Company, and one of the most widely known coal operators in the United States, died this afternoon, following a stroke of apoplexy early in the morning. He is reputed to have left an estate valued between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000, which includes interests in subsidiary companies of the Pittsburgh-Buffalo Company in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, West Virginia, and Kentucky.

Mr. Jones was born in Wales and arrived in this country in 1858. His first stopping place was Mount Savage, Md., but it was only a few years before he came here and began, in a small way, the operations which brought him into association with the late Judge Thomas Mellon, founder of the present influential Mellon banking interests, and the late Congressman W. L. Scott of Erie, Penn., a great coal merchant of his day.

MAJOR PERTAIN DROPS DEAD.

Civil War Veteran Stricken by Apoplexy While at Luncheon.

Major Nicholas Pertain, 66 years old, of 157 West Ninety-fourth Street, a veteran of the civil war and a former member of the New York Consolidated Stock Exchange, died suddenly yesterday while eating luncheon at a restaurant at 862 Amsterdam Avenue. He was sitting alone at a table when he collapsed and fell to the floor. The police of the West 100th Street Station were notified, and Dr. Oler of J. Hood Wright Hospital was summoned, but Major Pertain was dead. Death is believed to have been due to apoplexy.

Major Pertain was associated in business with his brother, George W. Pertain, a wholesale stationer of 16 Exchange Place.

Obituary Notes.

PETER MURRAY, 32 years old, a member of a well-known Newark family, was found dead early yesterday morning in his home, 1,202 Broad Street, Newark. He was married two months ago.

Dr. AUGUSTE RENOUARD, an authority on embalming, died suddenly on Friday at his home, 291 Sixth Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born in Baton Rouge, La., seventy-three years ago and graduated from McDowell University, St. Louis, where he afterward became an instructor. He was a surgeon in the Confederate Army during the civil war.

WILLIAM H. GILBERT, President of the S. S. White Dental Manufacturing Company, died on Saturday at his home in Philadelphia. He was 65 years old. He was a Mason and a member of the G. A. R. and had been connected with the dental company for forty-six years.

ALBERT FLANAGAN, President of a Chicago book publishing house, died suddenly of heart disease on Saturday on a Pennsylvania train near Fort Wayne, Ind.

WILLIAM K. PHELPS of 249 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, died of apoplexy on Saturday. He was born in Brooklyn sixty-five years ago, and was a member of the Philadelphia Council of the Royal Arcanum.

MARY A. ROBERTS, widow of William Roberts, died on Friday at her home, 118 Nostrand Avenue, Brooklyn. She was a member of the Church of St. Patrick.

JOSEPH C. McCLELLAN, a brick manufacturer, died on Friday at his home, 1,208 Chestnut Avenue, Coney Island. He was born in South America forty years ago and came to this country when he was 6 years old. He belonged to Columbia Lodge, O. S. C., and to the International Machinists Association.

GIANTS HELPLESS BEFORE HOUSTON

Texas Leaguers Defeat Title Holders, 5 to 2—McGraw's Men Fail Before Real Pitching.

HOUSTON, Texas, March 17.—Held to three widely scattered hits in nine full innings of play, the Giants were soundly thrashed by the Houston Texas Leaguers this afternoon 5 to 2. It was the same Gotham line-up as that which made nineteen hits and fifteen runs at Galveston yesterday, but it was facing real curve pitching for the first time, and the spectacle was not a pleasing one.

One "Stubby" Foster, a one-time St. Louis Brown with a victory over the Detroit Tigers listed in his record, did the mound duty for the locals, and in seven innings allowed one lone hit. The Giants started the eighth with two singles and a hit batter, and it looked for a few moments as though they might tie up the score.

Foster dragged his wandering parts together, however, and the next two Giant hitters failed to do anything. Foster had fair speed, good curves, and a good catcher to handle him, and but for short spells of wildness would have shown the champions up worse than he did. Five passes and four hit batters marred what would otherwise have been an exceptionally well pitched game for this time of year.

Chief Meyers's second inning double, which a fielder's choice and Doyle's fly converted into a run, was the only Giant hit until Doyle came through with a sharp rap to left in the eighth.

Snodgrass was hit in the ribs with a fast one and Murray bumped one to right, scoring Doyle. Neither Merkle nor Paulet could hit the ball out of the infield, and the chance to tie the game was lost.

Crandall, Wiltse, and Ames divided the slab work of the title holders, Wiltse lasting only one inning. After retiring three of the four men to face him in the sixth inning Wiltse took a turn at bat and was hit over the left ear with a fast one. He was stretched out half conscious for three minutes, and, though willing to continue, was excused from further service.

During Crandall's five innings Houston made seven hits and scored three runs. A single, a pass, a double, and a sacrifice fly netted two counts for the Texas Leaguers in the third, and Fletcher's fumble of Knaupp's grounder, followed by Whitman's double, resulted in another score in the fourth.

Two more misplays by Fletcher gave Houston another in the seventh; he fumbled Foster's lick to start with. Foster was caught at third trying for that station on Davis's sacrifice tap, but Davis got to second on the play. He moved on to third on an infield out, and scored when Fletcher threw Britton's effort wide past Merkle. A single, a sacrifice, a wild pitch, and another hit were responsible for Houston's final tally. The score:

Marquard in Pitching Form.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, March 17.—The Giants Colts easily defeated the Galveston team of the Texas League to-day by the score of 7 to 0. Marquard's pitching was the feature of the game. He was in the box for five innings and did not allow his opponents a base hit and struck out ten men. He hit one batsman and gave two bases on balls. Tesreau pitched the last four innings and was invincible except in the eighth inning, when he was hit for two singles. Groh, Bues, Devlin, and McCormick did the best batting for the visitors. The score by innings:

SUN DRIES UP GROUND.

Manager Wolverton Expects to Play Practice Games To-day.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 17.—The regular ball park here is expected to be ready for use to-morrow, according to Manager Hemphill of the Crackers, and if so the Yankees will return there and get ready for a solid week of practice contests. The sun was out all of to-day, and maybe the weather has finally cleared for a stretch of good behavior. Wolverton will then have the chance he has been waiting for to get a better idea of the worth of his youngsters, to say nothing of more baseball for all of the men. In what practice they have had the young players have shown up well, and Wolverton hopes the test of actual games will confirm the promise of the preliminary work.

The Yankees probably have been fortunate, all things considered. Whether the weather was good or bad, they have been able to do some sort of work every day. On rainy days they went beneath the grand stand, and when the ball park was flooded they found another field. Simultaneously good weather came, and the tuning up received prior to that found them pretty fit for the harder work they have enjoyed the last two days.

There is a wholesome spirit in the ranks. Wolverton appears to know how to handle men, and the best of feeling exists among the players and between manager and men. Wolverton to-day commented on what he termed the proper spirit shown by Hal Chase in jumping into the practice although he had left his uniform at the other park. Cree and Wolverton had a talk last night on the salary question.

The manager took his troop out to-day for an automobile ride, for which jaunt eight cars were necessary.

Brooklyn Takes First Game.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 17.—Dahlen's Superbas easily outplayed the local club to-day in their first exhibition game this season by a score of 5 to 1. Neither the diamond nor the outfield were in anywhere near good playing condition, and some of the errors by the locals were excusable.

The Superbas made enough runs in the second inning to win the game on singles by Erwin and Moran, Reill's steal of third, and two errors by the local shortstop. The Memphians made their lone run in the same inning on a base on balls of Yingling, Miller's double, and a bad throw to the plate by Third Baseman Smith. The same clubs will play a benefit game to-morrow for the widow and children of Pem Finlayson of Brooklyn, who pitched here last year. Score by innings:

Batteries—Yingling, Kent, Knetzer, Erwin, and Higgins; Allen, Smith, Clark, Love, Brennan, and Tonneman. Umpire—Mr. McNulty.

Three Hits for White Sox Youngsters

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 17.—The second division of the Chicago American League team to-day defeated the Fort Worth team of the Texas League 13 to 1. J. Scott, for the visitors, allowed but three hits.

San Antonio Trims Champions.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 17.—San Antonio's Texas League team to-day defeated a team of Philadelphia American players 9 to 7, with Plank and Krause and Coombs pitching for the visitors. Krause was hit for five runs and Plank for three.

Topeka Trounces Detroit.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 17.—The Topeka Club of the Western League to-day defeated the Detroit Americans 14 to 13. Taylor, a Detroit recruit from the Texas League, yielded nine hits, which netted eight runs in the seventh inning.

PLAN SUNDAY BALL.

United States League May Try Innovation in This City.

The United States League took no definite action yesterday at the Hotel Imperial on its schedule for the season, and the playing dates will not be known until it is decided whether or not New York will stay in the circuit. It is said on good authority that the magnates from the other cities are anxious for New York and Brooklyn to stay in the league, because they believe that the local outlaw organizations with parks a short distance outside the city will be able to play Sunday ball.

Baseball is played here on Sunday, but by semi-professional teams. No admission is charged to these games, but the revenue is obtained by the sale of programmes and voluntary contributions. If the United States League plans to play games here on Sunday, the venture will be watched with much interest. The Brooklyn team of the National League tried Sunday baseball a few years ago, but the police interfered.

This will be a day of great importance to the United States League. This afternoon the baseball world will know whether or not the new organization will try to invade New York. The club owners have been in session here for four days, and are still waiting the final decision from Charley White, the owner of the New York franchise, who promises to say to-day that he will or will not stick.

The club owners got together yesterday for a short time and held an informal discussion of the schedule. Any action was postponed until it is known whether New York expects to stay in the league. No one outside the magnates has seen the schedule, but it is said that one of its important features is Sunday ball. New York and Brooklyn, it is stated on pretty good authority, will get the best share of the Sunday dates. Brooklyn has already registered a kick against some of the dates which have been assigned to that club. It seems the Brooklyn Club has been given a number of dates during the month of July. As there is much baseball scheduled around her during the greater part of that month, Brooklyn would rather be somewhere else on the circuit. In drawing up the United States League schedule it was found impossible to avoid a good many conflicting dates, but President Witman states that his league is making a strong effort not to conflict with any more major league dates than is necessary.

The schedule in its rough draft calls for 126 games for each club. The season is to open on May 1 and close on Sept. 1. Of course, if New York decides to drop out, the schedule will have to be rearranged.

Charley White's lease to the mysterious new park which he says he has picked out will be settled to-day. The fourth shareholder in the property came to New York last night from Boston and will have a conference with Mr. White and his attorney this morning. The league will hold its final meeting here at 3 o'clock this afternoon to receive Mr. White's answer.

SOUTH AFRICA'S BIG TEAM.

Will Invade Stockholm for Olympic Games with Good Athletes.

As one of the forty nations which will have representation in the Olympic games in Stockholm this Summer that portion of the British Dominion in South Africa shows every disposition to send a strong team, as evidenced by the call for $20,000 to defray the expenses of the men who will constitute the competitive forces. The men who have been practically chosen are virtually unknown, but are said to have great possibilities.

The South Africans still point with pride to the great showing made by their wonderful trio—Reggie Walker, Charlie Hefferon, and Vincent Dunker—in the Olympic in 1908 in London, when Walker annexed the sprint from Jimmy Rector, and Hefferon was placed second to Johnny Hayes in the Marathon, after the disqualification of Dorando, while Dunker showed undeniable pace in the hurdles.

The team will probably consist of eight men, each of whom is a performer well above the average, as far as the colonies are concerned. Of the sprinters it cannot be said that there is any one who has shown any sensational form in the short dashes, but it is conceded that several of the youngsters have much promise.

In the Cape there is a young fellow named Reuben Povey, of whom great things are expected, but it is further said that the "real hope" is Cliff Sulin, the present South African champion, a 19-year-old youth, who is very much after the shape and style of A. B. Postle, the professional.

Another good man is G. H. Patching, who has been credited with ten seconds in the hundred, but who is essentially a quater miler with a record of forty-nine seconds for the distance. A Dutch youth named Victor with marks of 1.58 for the half mile, and 4.28 for the mile is also carded to make the trip.

In the jumping department the South African contingent is expected to be very strong with J. A. Stegmann, who can consistently show twenty-three feet. Where the South Africans expect to shine brightly is in the Marathon with K. K. McArthur, who is said to be in a class by himself at this distance. His countrymen assert that it will take a marvel to beat him. McArthur stands six feet, runs close to the ground with a slovenly style, but at very little expenditure of energy at a really remarkable pace.

Another athlete named for the team is A. C. C. St. Norman, a walker who is said to resemble George Goulding more than any other of the heel and toe exponents. He is credited with the ability to travel fairly in 6.30, and well able to stay any journey up to ten miles. Each of the men is exceptionally strong, and all are grandly built. They are all young, and will certainly improve over anything they have shown to date in the hands of some one capable of developing fine material.

TIE IN POCKET BILLIARDS.

Hyman, Carter, and Raynolds Share Lead—Three Games To-day.

The pocket billiard tournament for the championship amateur title which has been in progress at the Amateur Billiard Club will continue to-day, when three games will be played. This afternoon at 3:15 Dr. W. G. Douglas will play William A. Tilt. There will be two games this evening, the first at 7 o'clock between Dr. Douglas and Edward Gray and the second at 9 o'clock between Edward Raynolds and William A. Tilt.

Three players are now tied for first place in the tournament, Hyman, Carter, and Raynolds, with 3 won and 1 lost. Tilt is next with 2 won and 1 lost. Douglas and Gray have yet to win a game.

Triple Tie in Billiard Tourney.

For the third time, "Ed" Barnes, Mark Muldauer, and M. Isaacs will play off the triple tie for the premier honors of the Harlem Class A amateur 18.2 balkline billiard championship tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, this week. Barnes, who is the present holder of the title, is matched against Muldauer in to-night game and the loser will play Isaacs to-morrow night.

France in Davis Cup Competition.

America's lawn tennis team will receive a bye in the preliminary matches between the challenging nations for the Davis International Cup this year. This news was learned yesterday through the channels of the official organ of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association, American Lawn Tennis. This arrangement is based upon the challenge that was received late from France. The latter nation did not file an official challenge with the Australian Association until after the date when the rules surrounding the trophy state that such a formal notification of a nation to compete for the cup must be made. In the past, however, it has been the custom to accept late challenges, provided there was not a protest of any kind from the nations interested in the matches.

At this early period in the season, when the tournament fixtures have not even been decided upon, it is difficult to learn what action this Nation will take as to securing the international ties for this country.

It is believed that the West Side Club of this city will immediately take some steps toward securing the matches. In the estimation of those qualified to make the statement no other nation is in the position to offer the direct guarantees to the visiting nations that this country is in a position to offer. Then the French players, who have been sweeping European courts, have shown a lively interest in taking a crack at some of the American prizes, and this may turn the balance in favor of this country again staging the great contests.

IRISH-AMERICANS WIN POINT PRIZE

New York A. C. Runners Give Rivals Hard Tussle in Flatbush A. C. Road Race.

The honors of the St. Patrick's Day road run of the Flatbush A. C. were won by the team of the Irish-American A. C., which after a bitter struggle was successful over its rival, the New York A. C., with a total of 71 points, while the Mercury Foot runners, who in the early running appeared like the victors, were placed second with a tally of 83.

The event was carded as an Olympic road run of 10,000 meters, or 6 miles and 376 yards, but he creditable time of the victors led many to believe that the course over which the harriers competed was somewhat short. The race was a handicap affair, with Martin D. Huysman of the Irish-American A. C. and Alfred Roth of the Mohawk A. C. as the virtual scratch men starting from the fifteen-second mark, conceding handicaps to the limit men of 3 minutes 15 seconds.

Daniel Sheridan, a novice runner of the Glenmore A. C., with the limit mark, surprised a strong field by capturing the individual honors, completing the journey in the actual time of 28:53. James F. O'Connor, who was placed on the 2:40 mark, came in second after a hard fight with Sheridan. Michael Foster, one of the strongholds of the Putnam A. C., romped home in third place about twenty yards in the wake of O'Connor, after starting from a mark of 2:15.

Harry Lucas, the Indian runner of the Morningside A. C. of Harlem, who competed in his second open event in the race, showed himself to be a strong contender and improving with experience, by taking the fourth place. He finished up with a great burst of speed, and crossed the line less than five yards back of Foster.

Sheridan, in addition to taking down the premier individual honors, was also accorded the novice prize, making his victory twofold. The second novice to be heard from at the finish line was George Cooper, a newcomer to the cross-country game flying the colors of the Claremont A. C., finishing in fifteenth place.

The battle for the fast time prize was the feature of the entire run, with Huysman and Roth furnishing the sport. The Irish-American athlete traversed the course in the actual time of 27:04, winning the fast time prize. The Catholic Athletic League special medal was received by William McFarland of the St. Vincent Ferrer Club of Manhattan. The order of finish:

TWO WORLD'S RECORDS.

Arthur Postle Makes New Figures for 150 and 200 Yards.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, March 17.—Arthur Postle to-day defeated Jack Donaldson of South Africa, the world's champion profesional sprinter, in the 150-yard dash, in 14 1-5 seconds, and the 200-yard dash in 18 seconds. Both are new world's records.

REILLY CAPTURES RUN.

Field of Thirty Takes Part in St. Anselm Road Race.

W. Reilly of St. Bartholomew's A. C. captured the weekly cross-country run of St. Anselm's A. C. yesterday over a three-and-one-quarter-mile course. A field of about thirty harriers competed in the event, and the pace throughout was fast.

R. Brand of the home club made the pace for the greater part of the journey, with Reilly following in his footsteps. He, however, reserved his speed until the end, which carried him home in front. Brand held the premier position for about three miles, and when the challenge of Reilly came he was unable to meet it. The St. Bartholomew athlete opened a gap on his rival and crossed the finish line with a comfortable margin. The order of finish:

W. Reilly, St. Bartholomew A. C., 17:25; R. Brand, St. Anselm's A. C., 17:39; T. McMann, unattached, 17:45; F. Stein, unattached, 17:48; B. Flynn, Pastime A. C., 18:11; H. Kosse, St. Bartholomew A. C., 18:36; J. Gaddi, St. Bartholomew A. C., 18:37; F. Carlson, Holy Cross Lyceum, 18:48; E. Kiernan, St. Anselm's A. C., 18:52; J. Bova, St. Bartholomew A. C., 18:56; J. T. Flynn, St. Anselm's A. C., 19:00; W. Hannon, St. Anslem's A. C., 19:02; T. Lawson, Northern A. C., 19:21; W. Feldman, St. Bartholomew A. C., 19:24; M. Grenberg, Decauter A. C., 19:31, and F. Sheridan, Bradhurst F. C., 19:33.

American A. A. Road Run.

C. Heller of the Knights of St. Antony got home in front of the pack which tried for honors yesterday in the American A. A. road run over the Eastern Parkway course, the distance being over four miles. He beat a team mate, T. Murphy, by the narrowest of margins, and after this pair finished the next man was nearly three minutes away.

St. Paul's Lad a Winner.

At the Visitation Parish Club road run yesterday A. Coakley of St. Paul's Lyceum was first after a rather hard brush with a team mate, E. Fay. The distance covered was about two and three-quarters miles, and for the greater portion of the route the field hung together, the ultimate winners getting home by narrow margins from F. Serreggi of Sacred Heart Lyceum. The summary:

A. Coakley, St. Paul's Lyceum, 14:35; E. Fay, St. Paul's Lyceum, 14:38; C. C. Searreggi, Sacred Heart Lyceum, 14:39; W. Kessler, Visitation Parish Club, 14:50; T. Sieger, Alps A. C., 14:55; E. Fusig, unattached, 15:00; A. Gingani, Visitation Parish Club, 15:05; J. J. Plunkett, St. Paul's Lyceum, 15:10; M. Barrett, Visitation Parish Club, 15:12, and D. Kane, Visitation Parish Club, 15:14.

Goldman Wins at Bronxdale.

G. Goldman of the Bronxdale Athletic Club was the victor in the four-mile road run over the hills and dales of Westchester yesterday, in the time of 23:20. He was closely pressed by V. Vozin of the Bronx Church House, who managed to get to the finish just two seconds later than the winner, while R. Kuhn of the same organization was third, fifteen yards back. The order of the next five men to finish follows: P. Muller, Franklin Athletic Club, 23:40; E. Barten, Bronx Church House, 23:51; F. Murtha, unattached, 24:02; W. Krahe, Bronx Church House, 24:21; F. Drews, Holland Athletic Club, 24:33.

Rigby Again a Winner.

R. Rigby of the Putnam Athletic Club, who has been cutting quite a swath in distance runs lately, annexed further honors yesterday in the run of the Idle Hour Athletic Club over roads in Brooklyn, his time for the four miles covered being 22:22. W. Sheridan of the National Athletic Club finished second in 23:11, while J. McGill, another Putnam lad, was third in 24:05.

Pennant A. C. Road Race.

Eleven runners started in the Pennant A. C. weekly road run yesterday over Bronx streets, with the result that George Hooley led the pack at the end. The distance was a bit inside four miles. The summary: George Hooley, 20:40; J. J. Clancy, Dominican Lyceum, 21:15; J. Travers, Pennant A. C., 22:10; E. Stanhope, Pastime A. C., 24:11; T. Mitchell, Victor A. C., 22:55; E. Falzman, Trinity Club, 23:15; A. Pothler, Pennant A. C., 23:20; J. Martin, Pennant A. C., 24:06; W. G. Framo, unattached, 24:07; E. Gustiferro, Pennant A. C., 25:50, and T. Madero, Westchester, 27:15.

Unattached Runner Wins.

G. Lenney, an unattached athlete, made a runaway of the Good Council A. A. race yesterday, winning in the good time of 21:00. F. Ramey was his nearest opponent at the end, and fully seventy yards away. The summary: C. Lenney, unattached, 21:00; F. Ramey, unattached, 21:24; H. Presenger, Trinity Club, 21:46; D. Cunningham, Good Council A. A., 23:17; C. Schord, Good Council A. A., 23:23; J. Robbins, unattached, 23:48.

BRITISH OWNERS WORRIED.

Horsemen Fear Decadence of Blood Stock—Germany Buys in France.

The recent purchase of the French horse Reinhart by the German Government is taken as a sign of the decadence of English blood stock in some quarters in England. Reinhart finished second to Nuage in the Grand Prix de Paris two years ago. Nuage had already been bought for Germany, and the fact that Reinhart followed his conqueror has aroused considerable controversy among British owners and trainers. The German budget for this year provides $75,000 for the purchase of another stallion for breeding purposes. English owners of great performers would not seriously consider the sums which tempt the French owners to part with their classic winners.

There are many who think that the purchase of French horses on the part of the German Government is an indication that Continental breeders think the English thoroughbred blood stock is deteriorating because of the excessive amount of inbreeding which has taken place during the last two or three generations. Those who hold this opinion put down to it all the failures of very highly, or, rather, very fashionably bred yearlings, all the failures of temper which are shown by horses tried some time or other to be good, and, in fact, anything and everything which can be urged against the English breed at large.

British experts point out the success of classic winners when put at the stud, although it is an admitted fact that Europeans believe that English horsemen are ruining their breed from continuous inbreeding to a few of the most successful male lines of Eclipse. In discussing this phase of the British thoroughbred ancestry, The Field says:

"It is a difficult problem, which no amount of theorizing will solve, but we may point out that at times great winners fail to sire stock who can carry on the line they belong to, and to quote two horses of not so very long ago mention may be made of Blair Athol and Hermit. Blair Athol was a great performer, and a very successful, though not quite a great stallion. He sired several classic winners, and yet there is no line of Blair Athol in this country which has made a mark for many years. Hermit is certainly represented by Black Sand, but the male line of Mr. Chaplin's Derby winner is doing a mere nothing just now, and this is the more remarkable because Hermit's stock, during their sire's lifetime, won something like $1,750,000 in stake money. These horses were from the Stockwell and Touchstone lines of Eclipse, respectively, and in other directions both lines are doing well, Stockwell chiefly through Doncaster and Bend Or, and Touchstone through the line from Hampton, Lord Clifden, and Newminster. In France the line of Herod is still doing pretty well; in this country horses of this descent won less than $25,000 of the upward of $2,500,000 which was given in stake money last year. And the Herod line in tail male has dwindled away in spite of the strong support which was given to it from twenty to forty years ago.

"The two first Derbys we saw, those of 1871 and 1872, were won by Favonius and Cremorne, horses of Herod descent, and both had every chance of distinguishing themselves at the stud. Favonius had a Derby winner in Sir Bevys, but there were no sons of Cremorne good enough to carry on his line, and the families in tail male would appear to be almost extinct in this country. And a few years before Macaroni, by Sweetmeat, was a high-class horse, whose son Macgregor won the Two Thousand in 1870, and started the hottest favorite ever known—up to that time—for the Derby. Macgregor had a Two Thousand winner in Scot Free, and was a prolific sire of platers, but the line has not lived in tail male, nor is there any other line of Macaroni in England so far as we know.

"The question may well be asked why such horses as Blair Athol, Hermit, Macaroni, Favonius, Cremorne, and Macgregor could not carry on any tail male line, but the answer is by no means obvious, and the only certain thing about it is that nature asserts itself in ways which are not altogether known. It would be silly to think that mares of all sorts of blood were not tried with these horses, and yet none of the matings have really hit the mark, or else there would still have been male lines of these sires in existence at the present day. It is, of course, possible, as long as a male descendant lives, that there may yet be a revival of any or all of the lines which have been mentioned, but the odds against such a thing are very long, and those who think that Herod blood—for example—should be resuscitated in this country would do far better to buy a big Herod winner from France than to use horses of the line that had little racecourse form to recommend them. Even when Blacklock blood was in such low water, its odd representative was generally a very high-class horse. Voltaire was a good horse; Voltigeur won the Derby and St. Leger, and Vedette the Two Thousand, and of the two sons of the last named, Galopin won the Derby, and Speculum was third in the Epsom race of his year, and a winner among other races of the City and Suburban and Goodwood Cup.

"On the other hand the Herod horses in this country are not either great performers, or the sons of great performers, and none of them seem to have much stamina—and stamina was the strong point of the Herods sixty or more years ago. The Matchem line, thanks to the sons of Barcaldine, is a little stronger than that of Herod, and from time to time is represented by a really good winner. Bronzino and Neil Gow—and also Signorinetta—are recent instances, but the Matchem line never seems to go beyond a certain point. One more point with regard to the 'survival of the fittest' theory, and that is the very old story which shows that of about 150 Eastern stallions imported into this country between 1600 and 1750, the lines of only three remain, and that it only took two or three generations to wipe out the male lines of all but these three. For more than 100 years we have had nothing but Eclipse, Herod, and Matchem in tail male, and there is only one horse in the list of Derby winners—which dates from 1780—who is not of one of these lines."

INQUIETA'S SIXTH WIN.

Odom's Filly Captures Mexican Selling Stakes at Juarez.

JUAREZ, Mexico, March 17.—Before a large Sunday crowd, George Odom's Inquieta scored her sixth straight victory at the meeting when she easily captured the Mexican selling stakes, four furlongs, at Juarez to-day. She was an odds on favorite at seven to ten and, jumping away in front at the start, won pulled up by ten lengths. Jockeys Keogh and Selden were set down for the rest of the meeting by the stewards for rough riding in the first race. Summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Selling; four-year-olds and upward; six furlongs. Ben Wilson, 108 pounds, (Molesworth,) 15 to 1, won; Marsand, 106, (Selden,) 4 to 1, second; Keep Moving, 108, (Miller,) 15 to 1, third. Time—1:12 3-5. Wings of the Morning, Boana, El Molino, and Lucille Allen also ran. Prince Winter broke down.

SECOND RACE.—Selling; four-year-olds and upward; mile. Lily Paxton, 99 pounds, (Hoffman,) 5 to 2, won; Dottie B., 99, (Kederis,) 4 to 1, second; Sugar Lump, 99, (Selden,) 4 to 1, third. Time—1:40. Port Arlington, George Huyton, Marigot, Lonia, and Coppers also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling; four-year-olds and upward; mile. Abound, 105 pounds, (Taplin,) 13 to 5, won; Bob Farley, 105, (Selden,) 6 to 1, second; Layminster, 105, (Molesworth,) 3 to 1, third. Time—1:40 1-5. Oscuro, Jack Laxon, Jim Cafferata, Figent, and Misprision also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Mexican Selling Stakes; two-year-olds; four furlongs. Inqquesta, 110 pounds, (Callahan,) 7 to 10, won; Vested Rights, 110, (Murray,) 5 to 1, second; Velie Forty, 106, (Selden,) 5 to 1, third. Time—0:47 2-5. Palatable and Bluejay also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling; four-year-olds and upward; mile and a quarter. Whidden, 107 pounds, (Gross,) 7 to 5, won; Juan, 112, (Hoffman,) 3 to 1, second; Wolferton, 112, (Small,) 5 to 2, third. Time—2:08¼. Tahoe also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling; three-year-olds; five and a half furlongs. Acguin, 108 pounds, (Molesworth,) 6 to 5, won; Hardy, 110, (Gross,) 4 to 1, second; Dromi, 108, (Kederis,) 6 to 1, third. Time—1:07. Evelina, The Visitor, Hazel C., and Gift also ran.

Joyce Takes Morningside Run.

Frank Joyce, Mohawk A. C., was returned the winner of the road run of the Morningside A. C. yesterday over the streets of the upper city, the distance being five miles and the time 28:50. Second place resulted in a dead heat between S. Ost, Morningside A. C., and M. Taub, Pastime A. C., their time being 29:22. Twenty-two men started. The time and position of the first ten follow: F. Joyce, Mohawk A. C., 28:50; S. Oct, Morningside A. C., and M. Taub, Pastime A. C., 29:22; J. J. Manning, Harlem Evening High School, 30:08; J. Heffelder, unattached, 31:29; O. Ohland, unattached, 31:50; J. Zink, unattached, 32:44; J. Crosby, unattached, 32:50; G. Holz, Mohawk A. C., 33:42, and F. Linquist, unattached, 33:50.

Fischof's Horse Wins in France.

PARIS, March 17.—Eugene Fischof's Journaliste to-day won the Prix Amadou, a chase, two miles one and one-half furlongs, at the Auteuil track. The stake was valued at $1,600.

MORRIS-STEWART BOUT HEADS CARD

Plenty of Boxing, Professional and Amateur, Scheduled for the Week.

The return bout between Carl Morris of Oklahoma and Jim Stewart of Brooklyn, which is to be staged at the Empire A. C. Wednesday night, stands out as the big event in New York fistic circles during the present week. The general programme for the next few days shapes up as well as the average weekly bill, with four or five bouts of importance and the usual number of smaller contests. The metropolitan amateur championships will also be decided.

The importance of the Stewart-Morris clash is due mostly to the showing made by the Brooklyn architect in his bout with the Oklahoma Giant at the Carlyle A. C. about a month ago. Previous to that time Stewart was not regarded very seriously as a prominent member of the white hope division, and this bout was generally regarded as a practice stunt for Morris. Stewart upset all calculations by giving Morris a hard battle, which was so even that opinion was greatly divided on the outcome. Some gave the honors to Stewart, others picked Morris, and others called it a draw. Matchmakers immediately got busy for a return bout, and the Empire A. C. drew the card. As the loser is likely to be counted out of whatever claims he may have to distinction in the white hope ranks, both men have trained seriously for the contest. Morris says he was far from his best in the last bout, and is confident of disposing of Stewart without much trouble. The Brooklynite has gained a world of confidence as a result of his showing in the other bout, and is just as confident. Neither has figured in a bout since the Carlyle A. C. fight.

Sectional rivalry between Kid Burns and Jack Goodman stamps the bout at the Fairmont A. C. to-morrow night as one of the big events of the week in the boxing game. This is also a return match, and is the result of the exciting affair the west side boys figured in at the same club a few weeks ago. Goodman gained the popular verdict by a shade on that occasion, but Burns had the satisfaction of flooring his rival. Goodman is the clever boxer and Burns the rugged mixer. Burns arrived in this city yesterday from Kenosha, where he fought Packey McFarland Friday night, and is none the worse for his hard battle with the clever Chicagoan. He is putting on the finishing touches at a local gymnasium, and will be in shape for a hard bout. Goodman has been in hard training for the past week.

The appearance of Bob Moha, the Milwaukee middleweight, at the National Sporting Club Thursday night is another of the big events of the week in fistic circles. Moha has established quite a reputation in the Middle West, and the critics in that section agreed that he must be considered along with Jack Dillon, McGoorty, and Klaus in the fight for middleweight honors. Moha is a stranger to New York boxing cranks, and his coming here is creating considerable interest. Moha's opponent in this bout will be Sailor Burke, the Brooklyn middleweight, who on his last appearance at a New York club disposed of the championship aspirations of Billy Papke. Burke can travel like a champion at times, and if he is going at top speed Thursday night he should give the Milwaukee middleweight a hard fight.

Those who favor the hard hitters will have their inning to-night at the Olympic A. C. when Phil Cross and Young Hickey come together in the feature event. Both boys have recently outgrown the lightweight ranks and are full-fledged welters. They are both hard hitters who are always tearing in, and each can stand much punishment. As a slugfest it heads the week's card.

Charlie Griffin, the Australian featherweight, will be seen in action again, after a year's absence, at the Long Acre A. A. Wednesday night. His opponent will be Matty Baldwin of Boston. Both are clever boxers, but Baldwin has shown better form in his recent bouts here than Griffin has shown in a long time, and the Bostonian is picked to defeat the Australian.

Young Wagner and Patsy White, two New York featherweights, are carded for the star bout at the Fordon A. C. to-night. To-morrow night a special show will be put on at the Long Acre A. A., with Young Reilly and Emergency Kelly as the headliners. Kelly gave Johnny Kilbane a hard fight a few months ago, but is a stranger to local boxing enthusiasts.

The usual week-end stags will be held at the Fairmont, Olympic, Sharkey, and Long Acre Clubs of New York; at the Royale, Gowanus, and National Clubs of Brooklyn, and at the Liberal A. C. of Staten Island.

The Carlyle Athletic Club of Brooklyn, which has not staged any shows for the past few weeks, will reopen again Friday night with Knockout Brown as the star attraction. Brown's opponent will be Knockout Jack O'Donnell, a Brooklyn lightweight, whose style of boxing closely resembles that of the New Yorker.

The present week will furnish the big event of the season for the amateur boxers. The Metropolitan Association championships of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held at the New York A. C., commencing to-morrow night and continuing Thursday, with the finals on Saturday night. If the entry list is so heavy that all the bouts cannot be finished on the dates named, the club has decided to hold some of the bouts Wednesday night. This tournament is open to all registered athletes of the metropolitan district, and the regulation gold and silver medals will be presented to the first and second in each class. The programme contains seven events, which are classified as follows: Bantamweight, 105 pounds; featherweight, 115 pounds; special weight, 125 pounds; lightweight, 135 pounds; welterweight, 145 pounds; middleweight, 158 pounds, and heavyweight, all above 158 pounds.

KILBANE'S RECEPTION.

Vanquisher of Abe Attell Gets Great Homecoming at Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 17.—This city never saw such an outpouring of its population as that which to-day marked the homecoming of Johny Kilbane, who on Feb. 22 won the featherweight championship from Abe Attell at Los Angeles. At the station the police had to fight a way through for Kilbane, who joined his wife and baby in a waiting automobile that headed a monster parade.

At the City Hall Mayor Newton D. Baker reviewed the parade. At the Kilbane home it was only by hanging to the coattails of burly officers that the champion managed to make his way into the house.

McVey Defeats Barry.

SYDNEY, New South Wales, March 17.—Sam McVey, the California pugilist and heavyweight champion of Australia, easily defeated James Barry, the Chicago heavyweight, in a twenty-round contest here to-day. McVey got the decision on points.

Girls in Skating Race.

The Carlton Athletic Club held a skating carnival at St. Nicholas Rink yesterday and introduced something in the form of a race for mixed doubles. The race was for a quarter of a mile and was won by Miss A. Minds, who skated with B. Fry. The time was 1:02. Miss C. Goldsmith, skating with T. Minds, was second, and Miss Barnett, with W. Shiller for a partner, finished third. The race caused much excitement among the club members, and it was won by a small margin.

In the half-mile handicap, J. Spiegelburg won with a 25-yard handicap. Tom Rice, starting from scratch, gave him a hard battle and finished a close second. T. Meynz, with 20-yard handicap, was third. The time was 1:55. There was also fancy skating by some of the club members.

ROOT AND HILL WIN.

American Cyclists Capture Brussels Six-Day Race.

BRUSSELS, March 17.—The American team, composed of Root and Hill, to-day won the six-day bicycle race, defeating the Belgian team by one length. Root and Hill covered 3,651 kilometers, (2,270 miles.) Another American team composed of Collins and Drobach finished third.

POOR SCORES AT TRAPS.

Only Nine Men Competed in Larchmont Y. C. Shoot.

It was an off day yesterday at the Larchmont Yacht Club traps. Only nine men reported at the firing line, and, the conditions not being favorable, no high scores were made. Although nine matches were decided, only one full score was returned. That was by W. J. Elias, who broke all of his targets in the ten-"bird" scratch contest.

Elias easily carried off the honors of the day, for, besides being high gun, with 102 targets smashed out of 125, he was also the winner of the fifteen-target scratch competition, with a score of 13. Breaking 88 out of his 100 targets, he won the 100-"bird" handicap contest, W. B. Short being the runner-up, with 86 to his credit. Elias also won the leg for the monthly cup, with a score of 24 out of his 25, and the leg for the Held Trophy after a shoot-off with T. J. McCahill, who was the winner of the leg for the Bemis Cup after a shoot-off with R. J. Jones.

W. B. Short tied with W. J. Elias in the fifty-"bird" shoot for the Accumulation Cup, their scores being 42. They will shoot it off next week. T. J. McCahill and A. E. Ranney tied, with 24 apiece, in the shoot for the Take Home Trophy. This will also be shot off later.

St. Leos Defeated at Newark.

Playing the second game of their Eastern tour before a crowd of 5,000 spectators, at Harrison Oval, Newark, yesterday, the St. Leos of St. Louis, who will encounter Howard and Bulloughs of Pawtucket, at American League Park, Wednesday, went down to defeat before the West Hudsons after an eventful struggle, to the tune of 3 goals to 2. The weather conditions were perfect, but the ground was a trifle heavy, making the visitors appear at a disadvantage.

By the one-side score of 8 goals to 0, the Clan McDonalds disposed of the Clan McKenzies, in a New York and District League championship game, at McNulty Field, Brooklyn. The feature of the game, however, was a penalty kick by Wilkie, which was saved by Wilson by a marvelous leap.

At Chelsea Park yesterday the New York Celtics, present leaders in the second division of the New York and District League, upheld their unbroken record of consecutive victories, and the Washington eleven was their fifteenth victim by the close score of 1 goal to 0. The only goal of the game, which was scored in the first half, was the result of a drive from the toe of Humble, at outside left, and was a beautiful shot. The Washington team played an aggressive game, and at times came within dangerous proximity of scoring.

At Lenox Oval yesterday the Columbia F. C. defeated the Hollywood Inn eleven by 3 goals to 2. Smith, Pierson, and Stewart scored the goals for the winners, while Salmond and Christie annexed the points for the losers.

The Brooklyn Celtics took the Yonkers F. C. into camp at Yonkers by the score of 2 to 1. Campion and O'Hallaren annexed the points for the winners, while Terr scored the lone tally for Yonkers.

At Edison Field, Brooklyn, the Critchleys disposed of the Sheffield F. C. of Newark to the tune of 2 goals to 0.

The Arcadia F. C. went down to defeat at the hands of the Newark F. C. by the score of 4 goals to 1.

By the score of 2 goals to 1 the Camerons defeated the St. George F. C. at Van Cortlandt Park.

Hungarians Outclass Crescents.

The soccer football team of the Hungarian Field Club yesterday defeated the eleven of the Crescent Field Club at Jasper Oval in a one-sided contest by the final score of 13 to 0. The victors outclassed their opponents and succeeded in holding their opponents to a blank score.

Oarsmen Begin Training.

The outdoor rowing season had its first innings yesterday with the change in the weather, which broke up the ice on the Harlem course.

Although none of the crews will be permitted to go out before April 1, several of the club representatives in singles and doubles will take machine practice long before that date, judging from the activity shown along boat house row.

Clad in the briefest of regulation rowing outfits the regulars of the Nassau, Union, Metropolitan, Nonpareil, and Bohemian Clubs, failing to get permission to risk the floating ice, profited by the sunshine to take their first outdoor exercise as a change from handball.

The Nassau Club, usually the first on the water, was the first out, led by Capt. H. V. Cleaver, and looked after by S. Bailey, who promised to have the new working shell ready inside of two weeks.

Nassau expects to make good in the fours this year, both in the Harlem Regatta here and the American Rowing Association races at Philadelphia. "We are going to sacrifice our chances in the eights to build for the singles and four," explained Capt. Cleaver.

Meherhoff, the champion of two years ago, will renew his fight with Titus of the Nonpareil, in the singles, and the old-time star is in active training and hopeful of regaining his laurels of 1908. Both Titus and Meherhoff are good at the quarter and mile and a quarter distances.

The Nassau four will be made up of Meherhoff, stroke; Stivers, 3; Bailey, 2, and Weaches, bow.

The Metropolitans are presenting a Phoenix-like appearance, with a $25,000 brick structure from the ashes of the fire which played such havoc along boat house row.

The "Mets" were anxious to take their trial spin yesterday, but were held back by the coaches, who did not wish to take any chances with the shells. The new Metropolitan Clubhouse will be opened on April 20, although, according to President C. D. Bergen, active river work will start within the next ten days.

CANADIAN HOCKEY MATCHES.

Four Professional Teams to Compete Here for $2,500 Purse.

The leading professional hockey players in Canada will play to-night in the opening game of the tournament for the world's championship and a purse of $2,500 at the St. Nicholas Rink. This tournament will be participated in by the four teams, which only last week concluded a series of thirty-six games for the possession of the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the championship of Canada, which resulted in a victory for Quebec by the small margin of one game over Ottawa, the winner of the championship last year, the Wanderers of Montreal and Les Canadiens, the French Canadian team. These four teams have engaged to play a series of four games here and in Boston, the winner of each series to play a final and deciding series of two matches in which the total number of goals scored shall determine the winner of the title and the St. Nicholas purse. The first game in the local series will be between the Canadiens and Wanderers of Montreal.

Although the Montreal Wanderers have played here before, this will be the first visit of the French team, which is made up of some of the best professional playing material in the Dominion. In some respects they even excel their English speaking rivals.

The Ottawas and Quebecs will play in Boston to-night and in this city on Wednesday, and this will bring the finals down to Thursday and Saturday night, both of the deciding games to be played here. According to the Canadian rules the game will consist of three 20-minute periods, and, if an extra period is required the teams will play overtime until one or the other scores one goal, which will decide the winner.

The Time Is Getting Short

Easter Edition of The New York Times Next Sunday

Edwin A. Abbey

Paintings of

"THE QUEST OF THE HOLY GRAIL"

in their Actual Colors.

Nothing like this superb section has ever been given away by a newspaper before. It is reproduced by the best process known to printing, on extra heavy super paper, and represents the very finest product of the printer's skill.

This is the first time these most famous modern mural decorations in the world have ever been reproduced in their entirety with all of their vivid and harmonious coloring. Special permission to reproduce them was given THE NEW YORK TIMES by Mrs. Abbey and Curtis & Cameron, holders of the copyrights. There will be eight pages in full color, as follows:

THE TITLES OF THE FIFTEEN PANELS

Page 3—The Oath of Knighthood.
The Voyage to Sarras in Solomon's Ship.
The Key to the Castle.
Galahad Departs from His Bride.
Pages 4 and 5—Double Page Panels of The Round Table of King Arthur.
The Castle of the Grail.
The Golden Tree and the Achievement of the Grail.
The Conquest of the Seven Deadly Sins.

The high quality of the paper used for this section and the slow and careful method of three-color process printing required to get the results striven for involve so much time and expense that this edition of THE NEW YORK TIMES is necessarily limited. Each copy of this section alone costs more than any reader of THE NEW YORK TIMES will pay for THE SUNDAY TIMES complete.

It will not be possible to supply the demand of all the casual purchasers of THE SUNDAY TIMES on March 24, but an edition will be planned estimated to supply those who read THE TIMES regularly.

This timely notice is given so that those who wish to be sure of securing a copy of the Easter Edition of March 24 may place an order for the regular delivery of THE TIMES at once, because preference will naturally have to be given to those who are regularly served with THE TIMES.

NOTICE TO NEWSDEALERS.

The New York Times will not undertake to supply any great number of extra copies of the Easter Edition. To be sure of a supply increase your regular order of daily and Sunday Times at once. The Easter Edition is limited to the regular readers of The Times.

You are also advised to take special pains when the Easter Edition section of The Times is delivered to you to carefully handle it, and deliver it unsoiled to the readers. Many persons will wish to preserve and frame these pictures, and if received in poor condition newsdealers will be asked for another copy, and under no circumstances can extra copies of the section be obtained.

In New York City, Jersey City, and Newark,
Daily and Sunday Times
50 cents one month.

Outside New York City

DON'T SEND MONEY.

The New York Times can't undertake to supply copies of the Easter Edition with the Abbey Holy Grail pictures from this office. Orders must be placed with newsdealers. The edition is limited to newsdealers' orders and regular subscribers. Become a regular reader to-day if you are not one.

For the convenience of those who are not already regular readers of THE TIMES, this printed form is given. Fill it out and send it to THE NEW YORK TIMES office or to your newsdealer and you will be sure to get this unusual and valuable Easter Edition on March 24.

To The New York Times, Times Square, New York City:

That I may be assured of a copy of the Easter Edition of The New York Times of March 24, with the reproduction in the original colors of the fifteen Abbey Holy Grail pictures, enter my order for The New York Times, daily and Sunday, for one month.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

It was to be expected that as prices of stocks advanced into higher levels the indifference which the market had so persistently shown to bad news should become less pronounced. This would be true partly because the technical position of the market, after a period of trading activity during which prices had risen very considerably above their recent low level, would be to some extent weakened and partly because the reluctance of actual owners of stock to sell is gradually lessened as prices rise. In moderate degree both of these influences may have contributed to the signs which appeared toward the close of last week that the market was a little less indifferent than it had previously been to adverse influences. Thus the position into which the coal situation drifted on Friday, both here and in England, when our own miners came formally to a deadlock with the mine owners and when the negotiations between the British miners and their employes again became deadlocked, affected market sentiment more than had other unfavorable developments in recent weeks, to all of which the market paid but scant attention and persisted in its rise. It does not necessarily follow from this that unfavorable features of the situation will assume the dominancy in market influence which has in recent weeks been held by the favorable aspects of the general business and financial situation. It does suggest, however, more attention by the market to current happenings as distinguished from the broad underlying factors of the situation, and possibly a more irregular price movement than that of the last few weeks.

Such considerations as these, though, in no wise alter the fundamentals of the situation which have underlain the improvement in security prices during the past thirty days, and, what is even more important, the improvement in general business sentiment. Further signs were not lacking last week of the prevalence of greater cheerfulness in business circles. Voluntary advances in wages allowed to textile workers in districts not affected by the Lawrence strike, which now happily is ending under the mill owners' offer of higher wages, are indicative of hopefulness in that industry, which lately has made considerable progress away from the condition of depression which was caused in part by last year's high price of raw material, which this season is being bought at prices which leave more leeway for the manufacturer. The greater confidence which steel manufacturers expressed in their ability to command better prices for their product in the near future and the continued improvement in iron prices were other incidents of the week which show that business sentiment is bettering. In last week's expression of opinion in the business and financial communities there were many indications that this change in sentiment is in part at least due to fretfulness of the business world under the restraint which political and other uncertainties had put upon trade and industry and to growth of the conviction that experience would again be repeated, and that these uncertainties, or most of them, would gradually be dissolved without the occurrence of the mishaps which were feared. This seems to be particularly true of the political factor in the business outlook, for more and more is the sentiment finding expression that the country may be trusted to choose right in the final instance between saneness and demagogism.

The country's general economic situation has admittedly been strong during all this recent period of repressed business activity, for such in large measure it has been. Foreign observers of the American situation, and their view in respect to fundamentals has often shown itself to be more accurate than the estimates which our own business men have put upon affairs here, have repeatedly in recent months laid emphasis upon the strength of the general situation in the United States. It is this situation which is now telling in the improvement which has actually taken place and in the development of greater hopefulness in business as well as in finance. Money has long been easy, stocks of merchandise have been low, some improvement has lately taken place in the cost of living, some check has been put upon the persistency of the lowering of railroad rates, and operation on some important systems has improved, and even now, months ahead of the election and even of the party conventions, less and less fear is being shown as to the ultimate outcome. Such is the background against which has been projected the betterment in security prices during the last few weeks. There has been no lack of purely speculative operations in the stock market; they have gone along with the betterment in quotations, and in many instances have stimulated that betterment, but they have been not more than a contributory cause of the improvement.

Such commonplace explanation of a decided market movement does not, however, appeal to those who watch the movement of the market from too close a range. Traders are quick to supply reasons of their own for price changes, and when the market is rising no explanations appeal to them so powerfully as stories of deals, of acquisition of railroads by other railroads, and the like. Last week supplied its full quota of such stories. Many of them centred about the affairs of the Erie Railroad. It was only necessary to set the stories down side by side to show the falsity of most or possibly of all of them. What seemed to remain when they were all sifted to the bottom was the fact that much buying of the Erie securities had been going on of late by people who had become impressed with the betterment, which the property has been showing almost continually from the troublous days of 1908, when the late E. H. Harriman came to the rescue of the property, and who looked to the future of the property rather than to the immediate position of its securities. The rapid rise in the Erie shares last week to the accompaniment of many reports regarding what was going on in the affairs of the road, was a not unnatural sequel to the previous accumulation of its securities.

Looking to the basic facts of the situation, the information which came to hand last week was in the main calculated to bear out the impression of gradually improving conditions. With the advent of better weather food prices have shown some recession from the burdensome prices which prevailed during the Winter—a sufficient recession, in fact, to show a decline in the Bradstreet index number of commodity prices. A sharp break in wheat at the close of the week was in line with this movement. Bank clearings continue to improve, compared with this season last year, and the railroads are operating under somewhat better conditions and their gross earnings are expanding. In another important direction satisfactory results are being shown. Our exports of agricultural products in February exceeded all previous records for that month, and for the first time this fiscal year, with the exception of last September, the value of our cotton exports was greater than in the corresponding month of last year. Increase in exports at this time helps, of course, to preserve the credits which our bankers have established abroad through the loans made in Germany and England. The trust problem was presented last week from varying points of view, but robbed, so far as the security market is concerned, of most of its terror. Reports that the negotiations between the International Harvester Company and the Department of Justice would soon eventuate in a consent by the company to reorganize was the signal for a rather abrupt advance in the company's stock. The breaking up of a trust has come, in Wall Street's eyes, to mean primarily an occasion for higher prices for the securities issued to represent the outlawed trusts. It would not be well to follow too blindly the theory which this point of view suggests, but it is clear that what has happened since the breaking up of the Tobacco and Oil Trusts has greatly lessened the apprehension which not very long ago was felt over the enforcement of the Sherman law against the great corporations.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE

Revival of Public Interest Spoiled by Nigerian Tin Speculation.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, March 17.—An unmistakable revival of public interest was the chief feature of the week in Capel Court, but unfortunately this coincided with wild speculation in Nigerian tin shares, whose real value was shown by Friday's slump.

The week has seen little change in the money market, whose movements are largely dependent upon the coal strike situation. An increase in the bank rate is considered highly improbable in present conditions.

MONEY TIGHT IN PARIS.

Market Recovers Owing to Passing of French Coal Strike.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

PARIS, March 17.—Although, generally speaking, fairly steady the French market has shown recovery, the reason being that in spite of the English strike comparative satisfaction is felt in France that the strike of our miners only lasted one day.

Money is scarce, the banks not giving accommodations freely, and exacting high terms for what they give.

The Bourse finished rather heavy, in sympathy with less favorable advices from foreign Bourses, and owing to the slow progress of the Franco-Spanish negotiations.

Gold shares were weak, but Russian industrials showed a better undertone. Business is very quiet.

STRIKE DOMINATES BERLIN.

Influence on Boerse Rather Favorable Because Owners Profit.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BERLIN, March 17.—The Boerse was completely under the influence of the German coal strike last week, but the effect was favorable rather than otherwise on account of the profits which owners are deriving from increased prices. The feeling also was that the general strike will be short-lived.

The tendency on the whole was firm in consequence of encouraging news from the steel and iron market and the buoyancy of foreign stock exchanges, notably New York. Weakness manifested itself only at the close, owing to the increase in the bank rate.

Canadian Pacifics registered 2½ points advance during the week.

BIG SALES REPORTED IN PIG IRON MARKET

COKE PRICES RISE AGAIN

Better Supplies of Billets and Crude Bars—Renewed Strength in Plates and Shapes.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, March 17.—In the fortnight ended yesterday 225,000 tons of pig iron changed hands in Pittsburgh and valley districts, making the movement the largest since the early days of 1909; and the buying was accomplished without unsettling the equilibrium of prices materially. The iron trade is congratulating itself over these facts, for it was feared that a skyrocket rise in pig would halt the movement in both crude and finished lines. The price of Bessemer remains pegged at $14.25, valley furnace, or $15.15 delivered, Pittsburgh; and the taking up of 60,000 tons of basic iron since March 1 has strengthened the market up to the point at which the heavier producers in this district have been holding basic for six weeks—$13 at furnace.

Heavy Sales of Bessemer.

The past week saw the largest single transaction in Bessemer iron in two years—the purchase of 80,000 tons by the Youngstown (Ohio) Sheet and Tube Company, for delivery over the remainder of the first half of the year, on the basis of $14, valley furnace, a quantity of Lake Superior ore being turned in in part payment. The Steel Corporation added 10,000 tons of Bessemer to its previous purchase of 20,000 tons, and the Republic Iron and Steel Company bought 10,000 tons from a Youngstown furnace. Scattering sales late in the week showed a firm price of $14.25. The purchasers of basic iron were the Pittsburgh Steel Company, 40,000 to 45,000 tons; the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company, 10,000 tons; the Ohio Iron and Steel Company, 8,000 tons, and a New York machinery interest, 5,000 tons, firming up quotations from $12.50 and $12.60, valley furnace, to a flat $13. The activity in steelmaking irons had its effect on the foundry iron market, some 30,000 tons for sescond and third quarters being closed, of which the largest tonnage was taken by the Westinghouse Electric—12,000 tons for third quarter shipment.

Coke Prices Jump.

While the iron market was showing its conservatism, the bulls have been getting the better of the coke situation in the Connellsville region. The coal situation is really responsible for the meteoric rise in the price of coke, because coal at $1.60 shows as much margin of profit for the Connellsville operator as coke at $2.30, with a shade quicker turnover. When, therefore, offers of $1.50 and higher for spot shipments of run-of-mine coal began to be peddled about the Pittsburgh district, coke at Connellsville jumped across the $2 limit that has held for two years, and quickly reached a basis of $2.30 to $2.40 for furnace coke, and $2.75 to $3 for foundry coke.

Better supplies of billets and crude bars have appeared in the local market, as a result of pressue on the steel plants to work up to specifications. Last week there was some excess of crude steel, small offerings being reported at fifty cents under the recognized market of $20 for rolling billets and $21 for sheet and tin bars. For the most part, however, the crude steel producers are sold up for the remainder of this and the early part of the next quarter. Merchant steel is firmer than it was a fortnight ago, showing a minimum of 1.15 cents, at mill. Demand for merchant bars for second quarter shipment is becoming stronger. Refined iron bars are reflecting this better feeling, after a decline that continued for two months after steel bars "struck bottom."

Renewed strength in the plate and shape market in the East is reflected in Pittsburgh, one heavy local producer having given notice declining all business at less than the 1.15 cent basis. It is generally predicted that another two weeks of the present showing in specifications for prompt shipment of plates and shapes will bring an advance by mills in this district to 1.20 cent mill.

The week saw orders placed with the two principal car companies here for 3,300 steel cars, which means fresh demands on local plate makers. Structural contracting also is largely in excess of February records, while sheets show a much firmer tone, and the volume of tin plate bookings for second half of the year has reached the point which insures steady operation of tin plate plants well past midsummer.

OPPOSE RAZING OF MARKET.

Produce Dealers Want West Washington Buildings Retained.

The plan of the New York Dock Department to raze West Washington Market, to permit the building of two new piers, is receiving strong opposition from several New York produce dealers' associations.

At a recent hearing before the Sinking Fund Commission representatives of the associations argued strongly for the retention of the market, pointing out that its destruction meant elimination of the business and plants of more than a hundred merchants doing business there, involving the loss of thousands of dollars. It was further shown that, should the market be removed, several hundred small wholesale dealers would be driven out of business, and their trade would necessarily revert to larger interests, with a consequent placing of a greater burden upon consumers in the city.

The buildings of the market are owned by the city, and it is asserted that more than 25 per cent. is realized on the investment, besides the income derived from dock rentals and privileges. Should the present market be removed it is said that the necessity of building a new market elsewhere in the city would require the expenditure of considerable money and time, while the business of the merchants affected by the change would be at a standstill.

THE COMMERCE CONGRESS.

New York to Send Delegates to Its First Meeting in America.

The Merchants' Association, the Produce Exchange, the Board of Trade and Transportation, the National Association of Manufacturers, and the American Manufacturers' Export Association, all of this city, have decided to join the International Congress of Chambers of Commerce, and to send delegates to the sessions to be held in Boston, Sept. 24 to 28. As the congress has never before met in the United States, it is attracting much attention from American business men because of the opportunity it will afford to enter into relations with the commercial leaders of all other civilized countries. Great stimulus to the foreign trade of this country is expected to result.

President Taft is Honorary President, and Secretaries Knox and Nagel, Senator Cullom and Representative Sulzer are Honorary Vice Presidents of the General American Commitee of the Congress. While the sessions are to be held in Boston, under the auspices of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the event will be made National in its scope by a tour of many of the leading industrial centres of this country to be made by 100 or more of the distinguished foreign delegates in a special train after the close of the business sessions.

A resolution is now pending before the Congress of the United States which extends official Government recognition to the International Congress, and under which the United States Government will itself extend invitations to the Governments of the world, in addition to the business organizations to be represented.

The purpose of the congress is to facilitate the commercial intercourse of nations, and to promote cordial relationship between them. The recommendations adopted by vote of the delegates are carried out by a permanent committee, the headquarters of which are at Brussels. This congress will give consideration to a number of important questions affecting international commercial relations.

Machine Companies' Dividends.

The International Buttonhole Machine Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent., and an extra dividend of 1 per cent.; the Reece Folding Machine Company a regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent., and the Reece Buttonhole Machine Company a dividend of 3 per cent., which is an increase of 1 per cent. over the last quarterly dividend. All these payments will be made April 15 to stock of record April 5.

To Holders of
THE WABASH RAILROAD COMPANY

In view of the financial difficulties of The Wabash Railroad Company, and in view of the announced intentions and purposes of the Committees representing First Refunding and Extensions Mortgage Bonds of that Company, it has become important that the holders of the stock of the Company (Preferred and Common) should unite for the protection of their interests.

For this purpose the undersigned, at the request of holders of large amounts of the stock of The Wabash Railroad Company, have consented to act as a Committee under an agreement dated December 19, 1911, (a copy of which is on file at the office of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, Depositary, 60 Broadway, New York City), and request the deposit by stockholders of their shares, under said agreement, with said Depositary. Stock certificates so deposited should be properly indorsed in blank or be accompanied by properly executed instruments for transfer, and properly stamped so as to comply with the laws of the State of New York in respect to the transfer of shares of capital stock. Against such deposit there will be issued certificates of deposit therefor under the agreement above referred to, copies of which agreement may be obtained upon application to the Depositary.

Application will be made in due course to list the certificates of deposit on the New York Stock Exchange.

American Gas & Electric Co.

As one of the three members of the voting trust under which the common stock has been held since the organization of the company, I wish to notify you that this voting trust expired March 1st, 1912, and advise you to demand the delivery of your stock.

I was asked to join in the formation of a new voting trust, but refused to do so, believing there was no warrant for denying the right of voting to the stockholders for another long period of time.

As a determined effort is being made to create another voting trust, and as I have been refused a list of the holders of certificates, I am compelled to resort to public announcement.

WAGES INCREASED $10,000,000 A YEAR

FULLY 275,000 WILL SHARE

Of the Aggregate Amount Operatives in the Woolen Plants Will Receive About $5,600,000.

BOSTON, March 17.—Wage increases aggregating more than $10,000,000 will go into the pockets of New England textile workers during the next twelve months, according to authoritative estimates of the result of the present upward trend of pay in cotton and woolen mills. On the basis of an annual payroll of $79,000,000 in the woolen mills, the increase there will amount to $5,600,000, while cotton mill operatives will receive an advance of $5,000,000.

Fully 275,000 operatives will share in the raise by April 1 if all the mills which have not yet joined in the movement follow the lead of the larger concerns. Announcements made of contemplated advances in the textile centres of Maine, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire affect upward of 200,000 mill workers. Rhode Island, Eastern Connecticut, and Western Massachusetts cotton manufacturers, employing many thousands, have also indicated an intention of equaling the wage advances made elsewhere, but have given no definite announcement. They are understood to be awaiting the outcome of the situation in New Bedford, where a similar grade of fine cloth is produced.

The New Bedford manufacturers' offer of a 5 per cent. increase will be acted on early this week by the Textile Council, which recently presented a demand for a raise of 10 per cent. A heavy curtailment of production has been necessary in these mills during the last eighteen months on account of dull business, and this fact is pointed to by the Manufacturers' Association as a reason for the refusal of the 10 per cent. request.

Although there is a division of opinion among the operatives, many are said to be in favor of accepting the manufacturers' offer at present and reviving their demand for 10 per cent. when business improves.

The Textile Council, made up of delegates from unions numbering thousands of operatives, is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, while the Industrial Workers of the World, the organization which carried on the long labor struggle in Lawrence, claims great strength as well among mill workers in New Bedford.

Fall River operatives are also giving evidence of a spirit of unrest, induced partly, perhaps, by the approach of Spring and by the substantial wage increase granted as a result of the Lawrence agitation. The Textile Council, representing five unions, has voted to reject the offer of the manufacturers of an advance of 5 per cent., and demand 15 per cent., arguing that the outlook for business in print cloths is promising enough to warrant the greater raise.

Negotiations between the labor representatives and mill agents will be continued during the coming week. Close observers of the situation believe a compromise will be arranged. On the result in Fall River will depend in part, probably, the final attitude of the New Bedford unions toward acceptance or rejection of the 5 per cent. offer there.

South Barre, a Worcester County village, where a thousand operatives of the Barre Wool Combing Company, Ltd., and the Norway Worsted Mills are on strike for more pay, was the scene Saturday of a riotous demonstration reminiscent of the stormiest period of the Lawrence strike.

One hundred policemen and deputy sheriffs who dispersed the rioters with their clubs after a hand-to-hand encounter seemed to have the situation well in hand to-day, but the guard about the mills will be strengthened to-morrow morning.

Organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World are active among the operatives, taking direction of the strike as was the case in Lawrence. Many spinning mills of New England get their supplies of combed wool from the Barre Wool Combing Company, Ltd., which operates one of the largest plants of the kind in this country. The entire plant is now idle by reason of the strike.

Small bodies of textile workers are on strike also at several other points in New England including North Adams and Holyoke.

Although a few of the big Lawrence mills are still nominally under the ban of the strike leaders, indications to-night pointed to a general return to work to-morrow morning in these plants as well as in the ten mills where the strike has been declared by the committee officially as settled. A desire to get back to work after ten weeks of idleness, and fears that some one else may fill their places have made most of the strikers eager for the Monday opening of the mill gates.

Statisticians figure the injury by the Lawrence strike to manufacturers at $1,500,000 on business in hand and advance business lost; a forfeit by the strikers of about an equal amount in wages, and a cost to the State and city of $300,000 for militiamen and extra police.

All but three of the militia companies which have assisted the police in maintaining order in Lawrence have been sent home and these will be dismissed probably this week.

OFFER MORE LAND FOR ISHAM PARK

Donors of Tract Along the Hudson Want City Map Changed So View of River Will Be Saved.

GIVE SPACE FOR A STREET

Miss Isham Buys Land to Extend 214th Street—Estimate Board Expected to Approve the Plan.

Miss Flora E. Isham, whose niece, Mrs. Julia Taylor Isham, gave to the city about a year ago Isham Park, at 215th Street and Broadway, in memory of her brother, the late William Isham, has offered to the city enough extra land to provide for an extension to the park, thus connecting it with the Harlem ship canal, and for the opening of a new street, which will make the park more accessible to the public.

The parcels to be given as an extension to the park contain some two and a half acres, and consist of a plot between Park Terrace West and Seaman Avenue, two plots between Seaman Avenue and Indian Road, and a plot between Cold Spring Road and the ship canal. Miss Isham explains that she acquired this land in order that there might be preserved for Isham Park a suitable outlook to the Hudson River, as well as to furnish access for the public to the water.

In order to carry out this plan, Miss Isham suggests that the map of the city be changed to lay out the extension to Isham Park, and, if this is done, she says she will cede to the city for a street, West 214th Street, from Seaman Avenue to a point on the Easterly boundary thereof, about 227 feet north from Seaman Avenue and to a point Westerly about 290 feet north from Seaman Avenue, and will convey to the city for an extension to Isham Park all the land within the boundaries of this extension, excepting some 450 square feet, which she could not obtain.

Borough President McAneny has written Miss Isham that he will present the matter to the Board of Estimate on Thursday, and that he is sure the Board will accept her generous offer and agree to alter the city map as proposed.

"The Board will, no doubt," wrote President McAneny, "make suitable public recognition of the extraordinary generosity you and Mrs. Taylor have shown in presenting these valuable tracts to the city and preserving for enjoyment for all time the singular beauty of the outlook from the park summit through the Spuyten Duyvil cliff to the Hudson. In advance of formal action, I wish to express personally my great appreciation of what you have done, and to assure you that the city authorities will do all that they can to develop the tract in the way that you wish."

The original gift made by Mrs. Taylor consisted of the top of the hill lying between Isham Street, Seaman Avenue, 215th Street and Broadway. It has an elevation of 100 feet and commands a fine view of the surrounding country. It was feared that the view through Spuyten Duyvil Creek to the Hudson River would be cut off by the erection of buildings. This will now be impossible if the city accepts the new strips of land.

Isham Park, together with much other property in the neighborhood, was owned by William B. Isham in his lifetime, and was occupied by him as his country home for a considerable part of each year.

FRUIT MARKET FAVORABLE.

Prices Advance for Apples, Lemons, and California Oranges.

Fancy apples were in good demand in the New York fruit market last week, and as supplies of the most desirable qualities were light, prices were generally in favor of the sellers. Considerable quantities of low and medium quality apples were received and consequently the buying in that direction was not very heavy.

Reports from Georgia received in the market say that the peach crop in that state this year will approximate 5,000 carloads. Peach buds are beginning to swell already, and the outlook is said to be exceedingly encouraging.

Prices on California oranges show a general advance, following an increased amount of trading. The market closed with prices from five to ten cents a box higher than the closing figures of the preceding week.

The Sicily lemon market closed strong, with prices advanced to meet the increased demand. The offerings at auction during the week amounted to some 70,000 boxes. The contents of some of the recent shipments show signs of age, and chances of decay before the season advances caused operators to act cautiously.

To all Holders of Convertible Four Per Cent. (4%) Redeemable Gold Bonds of The Western Union Telegraph Company.

Notice is hereby given to all holders of the convertible four per cent. (4%) redeemable gold bonds of The Western Union Telegraph Company, issued under and pursuant to and secured by the trust agreement made by said The Western Union Telegraph Company, with the Bowling Green Trust Company as Trustee, dated November 26th, 1906, that The Western Union Telegraph Company, by action duly had by its board of directors, has declared its intention to and will pay off, cancel and redeem the whole amount of the bonds issued under and secured by said trust agreement, pursuant to the power and authority so to do contained therein; that the date fixed for said payment and cancellation and redemption is May first (1st), 1912, upon or prior to which date The Western Union Telegraph Company will deposit with the Equitable Trust Company of New York, New York City, as successor Trustee to the Bowling Green Trust Company, named as Trustee in said trust agreement, a sum sufficient to pay the principal of all of said bonds, five per cent. (5%) premium thereon, and the interest accrued thereon to May first (1st), 1912; that said Equitable Trust Company of New York, on said date, and thereafter as presented, will pay the principal of said bonds, five per cent. (5%) premium thereon, and the accrued interest to said date to the holders of said bonds respectively.

That said bonds will cease to bear interest after May first (1st), 1912, and that it is the intention of The Western Union Telegraph Company upon making such deposit and after said date, to have said trust agreement dated November 26th, 1906, cancelled and discharged by said trustee.

GOVERNMENT WHEAT REPORT NOW DOUBTED

OTHER GRAINS LACK SUPPORT

Cotton Drops on Heavy Sales—Provisions, Weather-Bound in Transit, Are Higher.

WHEAT.

The failure of theoretical conclusions, as to a possible scarcity of supplies at the termination of this season, to excite outside enthusiasm or to create nervousness among interests which were supposedly awaiting the farm reserve report of the previous week to afford an inspiration toward the advisability of replenishing supplies, was generally asserted to be instrumental in the sharp reaction of the market. A continued liberal movement at the Northwest fosters the belief in many quarters that the Government has erred in its crop estimates, while the shipping of wheat from various country points to Chicago had apparently been unlooked for by the leading holders. Prices in that market were evidently higher than could be obtained at other points and the spasmodic but altogether too frequent sales due to this feature seemingly led to an indisposition on the part of the leading holders to continue and absorbed wheat in this manner, not benefiting themselves by augmenting their burden.

Liquidation by several of the largest Western holders was assumed on various occasions, and the absence of support which the market encountered was taken as an indication that the trade was correct in its assumption. Sentiment seems to be decidedly confused at present, and there are still many advocates of higher prices who insist that the lowering of values the last few days is only temporary and does not alter the underlying situation in that, between the inevitable crop scares to be expected later in the season and the natural dwindling of stocks, their position will be substantiated. Apropos to stocks, the estimate of 74,000,000 bushels by The Chicago Daily Trade Bulletin for a carry-over on July 1 was pointed to and construed as extremely bullish. If these statistics should be shown at that time to be approximately correct a carry-over of 52,000,000 bushels under last season would be indicated, and would compare with 92,000,000 in the Patten year of 1909. Evidently this authority is allowing 29,000,000 bushels more to be exported and to otherwise disappear between this time and the end of the season, as compared with last year, as the Government recently gave farm reserves and visible as only 23,000,000 bushels under last year.

In addition to the inclination on the part of many operators to emphatically declare that the Government has been erroneous in its statement on farm reserves, the failure of undue apprehension to be shown as to future supplies, is also probably due to the perfunctory foreign inquiry at present. The foreign markets have repeatedly been disappointing to the holders of wheat, and while at intervals the low stocks at Liverpool have made for strong local conditions at that point the situation is being gradually remedied by free shipments from the Argentine. Export bids in most instances have been too low to permit of business, with the freight room conditions also an obstacle, and apart from occasional scattered quantities of red wheat to Antwerp there has been little business reported. Meanwhile domestic milling interests are still purchasing conservatively, and the flour buying is practically along the same lines, it being evident that buyers are not to be intimidated at this time, as to the possibilities of having to enter the market later in the season at a less advantageous level.

With the progress of the season the weather conditions through the Winter wheat belt will unquestionably have a great deal of influnece, as will the development of the crops in the principal foreign wheat-raising countries.

Information obtainable as to the prospects in Russia and India is rather meagre at present, but indicative of a favorable start having been obtained. In our own country it has been confidently asserted that the season in the ground has been the best in years, while during the severe Winter the crop has had a beneficial snow covering. Complaints are confined mainly to the soft-wheat territory, the bulk emanating from Indiana and Illinois, also some from parts of Oklahoma; but pending the disappearance of snow, so that a better examination of the situation can be made, there are many interests skeptical of the more pessimistic reports. At all events, it is realized that conditions in other parts of the belt are very promising, and this seems to counteract the usual effect of these premature damage claims.

OTHER GRAINS.

CORN.—There were sharp recessions in the market during the last week. An over-bought speculative position of the trade accelerated the downward movement at times, and ostensibly the high level of values made for more caution in accepting the buying side. A diminution in the cash inquiry was responsible for a great deal of the liquidation, and in spite of a very limited movement from first hands there appeared to be enough corn on tracks and at the terminal points to readily supply inquiry from consuming sources. The weather conditions have been mainly unfavorable, with considerable snow and unseasonably low temperatures, but an improvement in this respect was anticipated, and bears are firm in their assertions that with the Spring season inquiry from feeding sources will show a further sharp contraction, with the probabilities of hand-to-mouth buying, until the question of season-end supplies can be better gauged. At the high levels there was talk of imports of Argentine corn, notwithstanding the import duty of 15c per bushel, as the exportable surplus of that country is enormous. May corn at Buenos Aires is quoted at about 56½c per bushel.

OATS—Bull leadership, which has been so pronounced in this market by successful Western speculators, was not spoken of the last week, and, with other grain, there has been a great deal of liquidation. For a time buying orders from country points literally poured in, reflecting nervousness as to seeding conditions, the general reports indicating that with the snow-covered soil and the low temperatures a late start was in prospect. As in corn, however, the immediate conditions were bearish, due mainly to a vulnerable technical position of the market and a slackening in the cash demand.

PROVISIONS.

Contraction in the movement of hogs added stimulus to the price list during the week, and new high records were attained for the season for some products, while prices close to the best were recorded for pork and lard. Undoubtedly the movement has been retarded by heavy snow in the West, but apart from this there has been a liberal inquiry from shorts, who evidently were intimidated by the determination of leading holders of provisions to maintain prices, notwithstanding the liberal stocks at all points. Cash trade has been rather slow, but from some quarters there have been intimations of an improvement in certain descriptions during the last few days.

COTTONSEED OIL.

An unexpected increment in crude offerings on the basis of 35 cents per gallon acted as a barrier to the advocates of higher prices during the last week. With the increased disposition of Southern holders to part with a liberal volume of oil around those levels, seemingly refining interests which were conspicuous recently in rendering support withdrew from their position, and with the market more vulnerable there was a reactionary tendency disclosed. Sentiment has not been dissuaded materially, however, and is still inclined mainly to the long side. Unquestionably the tendency of the lard market at the West during the last few weeks has had more than passing influence in dissipating the bearish feeling so prevalent in many quarters during the earlier part of the season, and in spite of the liberal stocks of hog products together with the unabated moderate movement of hogs, the realization that powerful interests seem determined to maintain values leads to predictions of a satisfactory compound lard trade when stocks of hog products begin to dwindle. There are some authorities, however, who persist in asserting that the present bulls on lard will be quite content to maintain values when the stocks are being distributed, not alone to perfect a higher plane. At present the compound lard inquiry is generally stated to be only fair, although it is thought that there has been an improvement recently, as partly shown by the hardening of oleostearine values. On the whole, consuming demand for cottonseed oil is along quiet and conservative lines in this country, while the foreign labor disturbances militate against an active inquiry from abroad. The weather conditions at the South have continued unfavorable and adverse to the movement of seed and oil, with the opinion also quite general that until cotton farmers recoup part of their lost time, due to the unpropitious weather, marketing of seed may be more or less neglected. With the finish of the cotton planting season there may be disappointment expressed in some quarters if seed offerings are not in somewhat larger volume.

COTTON.

Although the weather conditions during the last week, excepting for the latter part, continued distinctly unfavorable for the progression of farming operations, serving to further retard the start of the plant, this was not reflected in undue excitement in the cotton market, values actually sagging. Seemingly, bullish enthusiasm as to a crop scare at this time dwindled, or at least sober reflection of the situation made it apparent that the conditions of to-day have not been unprecedented, and one season, as far back as 1897, was pointed to as almost identical to this. At that time there were dispatches received, many alarming in nature and dated as late as April 1, indicating that incessant rains were hindering operations, yet in that season there were approximately eleven and a half million bales of cotton grown, a record to that period.

There is a growing inclination to concede, however, that the start of the crop is not as favorable as many would have it, particularly when the reduced acreage in the Eastern belt is considered and the many advices dwelling on the smaller distribution of fertilizer as compared with last season. On the other hand, the desire of certain interests to await developments is not surprising, as it is realized that with a period of clear weather and moderate temperatures, such as were in view at the close of the market last week, a part of the time lost may be regained, and the fact that cotton values are on a higher plane than for some time, particularly as compared with a few months ago, may result in a modification of the ideas said to be entertained at some farming sections that indifferent cultivation will answer purposes this season. It is still maintained in conservative quarters that, even allowing for a curtailment in the area this season in the Eastern belt, opening of new lands in other parts, particularly in Texas, and the probability of less depredation from insects, together with an excellent season in the ground, are partial offsetting influences; a great deal admitted to hinge upon the weather during the planting season. If this period should be comparatively dry, so that a strong, deep root would be acquired, it is not at all improbable that considerable of the pessimism to be noted at this time would be dispelled.

Generally, the moderate setback in values during the week with bullish news apparently utilized for selling, has been ascribed to a willingness on the part of leading holders to reduce their lines. Complete abandonment of their position, however, is not suggested, and for this reason the operations on the bear side, in spite of the ability of some interests to arrive at bearish conclusions relative to the carry-over this season, are limited. On theory, those favoring lower prices are conceding spinners' takings of approximately 14,300,000 bales this season, which they claim will not be sufficient to prevent pressure at a later date when the crop of over 16,000,000 bales is considered and the cary-over on the first of September last year taken into account.

In other quarters, however, a more roseate view of the probable takings by consumers is entertained. It has been pointed out that exports will be of record proportions, amounting to nearly 8,600,000 bales to date, or more than 2,100,000 in excess of last season, when the exports totaled over 7,500,000 bales. In other words, the outward movement has continued so consistently that 10,000,000 is confidently spoken of as the season's shipment. Interests, arguing along these principles, are also encouraged by the highly satisfactory tenor of American trade advices. A decided increment in takings by domestic spinners would only be natural in view of the undeniable prosperity which is being enjoyed by most milling interests this season, as compared with last, and on this account there are many disposed to calculate that somewhat over 5,000,000 bales will not be an excessive estimate. It is indubitable that the early crop prospects will be largely influential in determining the amount of buying by spinners in the near future, while it is also safe to assume that, contrary to recent previous seasons, there may be a great deal more cotton taken because of the low prices, although this may not actually pass into consumption this season. Obviously, if this actually occurs, when considered with the attitude of foreigners, especially continental spinners, in contracting for supplies for several seasons in advance, it will be adversely construed next season, or at least will reduce the purchasing power of the consuming trade, the effect of this depending largely as to how burdensome or how light the coming supply of raw material will be.

Meanwhile there has been irregularity perceived in the tenor of Southern spot advices, but no inordinate weakness claimed. Inquiry is stated to have subsided in numerous sections principally because of a lull in foreign demand, but in others it is reported that this has been counterbalanced to an impressive extent by the increased interest shown from American spinners in reflection of their larger and more remunerative business. The labor dispute abroad is doubtless a deterring factor in the buying by foreigners, but it is still persisted in banking circles that a settlement of the labor disturbances will be brought about in the very near future. The fact remains that there has been too much optimism expressed in the previous forecasts as to the termination of this labor unrest, and while it is not thought that the outlook has grown worse, conditions are still critical, and the assertions that arbitration satisfactory to all concerned would be perfected before the expiration of the past week have not been fulfilled.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

8,373. KNITTED GOODS OF ALL KINDS.—A Consul in Germany reports that a merchant in his district wishes to handle American knitted goods.

8,374. OFFICE SUPPLIES AND STATIONERY SPECIALTIES.—A European merchant wishes to represent American manufacturers dealing in office supplies and stationery specialties.

8,375. WOOD AND METAL WORKING MACHINERY AND TOOLS.—A firm of important dealers in all tools informs an American Consulate in a Mediterranean country that it is prepared to purchase from the United States woodworking lathes, planers, and drills.

8,376. TELEPHONE PLUGS.—Tenders will be received by the Deputy Postmaster General, Melbourne, Australia, until April 2, for 250 telephone plugs fitted with cords, (Schedule 649.) Local representation is necessary.

8,377. ICE PLANT.—A State in Mexico has exempted payment of taxes on an ice plant soon to be established. About $5,000 United States currency is to be invested.

8,378. VACUUM CLEANERS, ELECTRICAL APPARATUS, AND NOVELTIES.—In the United Kingdom a firm of contractors and agents desires to be put in touch with American manufacturers of the following: Electric vacuum cleaners, electric heating and cooking apparatus, and novelties.

8,379. GRAIN BAGS.—A report has been received from an American Consul in South America accompanied by a request from a local firm for names of American dealers in second-hand grain bags.

8,380. FOREST TREE SEED.—A business firm in a European country informs an American Consular officer that it is a regular importer of American forest tree seed and would be glad to receive further propositions.

8,381. SHOES.—A shoe dealer in Italy desires to import direct from American shippers shoes that he can sell to compete with other foreign-made shoes which sell at $3.47 to $3.88 per pair. His average present sale of American and English shoes is seventy pairs per month. Correspondence in Italian.

670 NEW SHIPS LAST YEAR.

United Kingdom Has 82½ Per Cent. of the Total Tonnage.

In 1911, 670 new vessels, of 1,873,399 tons were classed by Lloyd's Register, says the British Trade Review. Corresponding with the general movement of the shipbuilding industry the present figures show an increase on those for 1910 of about 316,000 tons. Of these vessels, 603 of 1,356,591 tons are steamers, and 67 of 16,808 tons are sailing-vessels.

A large number of vessels of special design were classed during the year. These comprised twenty-four steamers built on the longitudinal system of construction, with a total of 109,113 tons, including three for the Great Lakes of America and one on the topside tanks system; six vessels fitted for burning liquid fuel; five steamers of the cantilever framing and topside tanks type; one steamer, Shinyo Maru, fitted with steam turbines; two steamers, Orama and Demosthenes, with a combination of turbines and reciprocating engines, and the steamship Holzapfel I., fitted with engines worked from a suctien gas plant and with screw shaft connected by a hydraulic transformer.

The average size of steamers classed is about 2,250 tons.

Of the total tonnage classed, 1,182,969 tons, or about eighty-two and a half per cent., were built in the United Kingdom. Among foreign countries, Germany contributed the largest amount of tonnage (76,239 tons), then followed the United States (45,473 tons), Holland (35,399 tons), Japan (22,596 tons), France (21,597 tons), and Austria-Hungary (15,435 tons).

A Class by Itself.

No similar Real Estate Company ever owned so large properties with so small a ratio of indebtedness as the NEW YORK REALTY OWNERS, which is shown by its Annual Statement to be less than 30% of its assets.

This Company has a larger ratio of security for its 6% Bonds than any other Company, and its shares also have produced for their owners the largest profits. It has done business for sixteen years under the same management.

No other like Company equals this record. A comparison of its Statements with that of any other similar Company shows that the NEW YORK REALTY OWNERS is in a class of its own.

It offers 6% Bonds in $100 amounts and Convertible Bonds with full business profits. Send for Booklet E.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The disturbance that was over the plains States Saturday night has moved to Lake Superior with increased development, but attended only by local snows and rains in the Upper Mississippi Valley and the upper lake region and the Dakotas; pressure also continues low in the extreme Northwest and in the Northern Pacific States, with rains in the latter region. There was no precipitation of consequence over the remainder of the country, except local rains in the Florida peninsula. It is much warmer over the interior of the country east of the Rockies, with temperatures above the seasonal average, except in the Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys. Rains will continue in the Northern Pacific States on Monday, and the weather will be unsettled from the upper lake region eastward, with local rains and snows in the east lower lake region and the St. Lawrence Valley. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Monday and Tuesday. Temperature will be high as a rule.

The winds along the New England Coast will be moderate south, probably brisk over south portion; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate south; South Atlantic Coast, light to moderate east.

Steamships departing Monday for European ports, will have moderate southeast to south winds, with generally fair weather, Monday; threatening Tuesday.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND TUESDAY.

New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer Monday; Tuesday fair; moderate to brisk south winds.

Southern New England—Fair, warmer Monday; Tuesday fair; brisk south winds.

Northern New England—Increasing coludiness, with local rains Monday or Monday night; Tuesday fair; brisk south winds.

CLEVELAND HONORED BY HIS OLD FRIENDS

MRS. CLEVELAND THERE

President Taft Pays High Tribute in Message—The 75th Anniversary of the Late President's Birth.

The seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Grover Cleveland was commemorated yesterday afternoon in the Great Hall of City College. A large audience heard speeches by men who knew Cleveland intimately and were associated with him in public life.

Addresses were delivered by Charles S. Fairchild, Secretary of the Treasury in Cleveland's first administration; Hilary A. Herbert, Secretary of the Navy in the second administration; President Jacob Gould Schurman of Cornell, President John Grier Hibben of Princeton, Dr. Joseph D. Bryant, Cleveland's physician, and Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia.

Mrs. Cleveland sat in the first row of the audience with Mrs. John H. Finley, Mrs. Daniel Lamont and other friends. A portrait of Grover Cleveland, draped with an American flag, stood at one side of the stage, and near it a cluster of seventy-five carnations, sent by Alexander Warendorff, who was a friend of the late President, and these were presented to Mrs. Cleveland at the close of the ceremony.

Mr. Fairchild was introduced as the Chairman of the meeting by Cambridge Livingston. Then a letter from President Taft was read and the names of many others who sent regrets that they could not attend. Among others, letters came from Mayor Gaynor, Richard Olney, ex-Secretary of State; Hoke Smith and David R. Francis, both of whom were Cleveland Cabinet members; Gov. Judson Harmon, ex-Attorney General; Senator Rayner of Maryland, Francis Lynde Stetson, Calvin Tomkins, Samuel, Untermyer, George Foster Peabody, Charles F. Murphy, and Oswald G. Villard.

President Taft's Tribute.

President Taft sent this message:

Grover Cleveland earned the sincere gratitude of his countrymen, and justified recurring memorial occasions like the one in which we are taking part. He was a great President, not because he was a great lawyer, not because he was a brilliant orator, not because he was a statesman of profound learning. But because he was a patriot with the highest sense of public duty, because he was a statesman of clear perceptions, of the utmost courage of his convictions, and of great plainness of speech; because he was a man of the highest character, a father and husband of the best type, and because throughout his political life he showed those rugged virtues of the public servant and citizen, the emulation of which by those who follow him will render progress of our political life toward better things a certainty.
(Signed,) WM. H. TAFT.

Gov. Dix said in his letter:

Up to the present moment I have hoped that in person I could join in the tribute to the memory and public services of the most illustrious citizen of New York this generation has known. As Governor of the Empire State, and President of the United States, he revealed great qualities of heart and intellect that made him by far the most conspicuous and commanding personage in our State and National life. It is no exaggeration to say that the name of Grover Cleveland has become a synonym for unselfish patriotism and sturdy devotion to principle and to the right as he understood the right. In these times of equivocation and of strange and revolutionary doctrines and sensational methods, we should be inspired and uplifted by Grover Cleveland's first example of steadiness of purpose, fidelity to principle, soberness of view, and absolute faith in the moral soundness and good sense of the American people.

Oscar W. Underwood, Democratic leader in the House, sent this message:

As time passes, the high character, sterling worth, and sincere patriotism of Mr. Cleveland are rising above the discord of partisan politics, and the country each year is appreciating more and more his worth, and giving him his place as one of America's greatest statesmen.

Alton B. Parker said in his letter to the committee:

It mattered not to him what others thought, said, or did, he kept in mind always the great and abiding truth, "public office is a public trust," and governed himself always as one consecrated to its exemplification. Since then more spectacular methods have attracted both public attention and applause, but the pendulum of public favor is now slowing swinging back to the modest, faithful, and efficient services of the days of the Cleveland Presidency.

Recalls Walk with Cleveland.

Mr. Fairchild, who opened the meeting, recalled that he was the only surviving member of Cleveland's first official family with the exception of Donald M. Dickinson, ex-Postmaster General. He said he would not try to eulogize Cleveland, for the things that came to his mind were the memories of many days like yesterday, when he and Cleveland used to take long walks out into the country from Washington.

"I remember a day very much like to-day," said Mr. Fairchild, "when Cleveland, Lamont, and I walked through the Virginia Mountains. The things that I remember about him are that he was a kind, gentle, and considerate man."

President Schurman of Cornell followed Mr. Fairchild with an address on Cleveland's character. He praised him for his independence, which, he said, was almost too strong for the best interests of his party.

"Grover Cleveland was a reverent and pious spirit," said President Schurman. "He was large and strong in body, and the tide of bodily life flowed strong in him. More and more in his later life he came to believe that the real things are the things of reason and morality. So in his later years we became conscious of his great influence for righteousness. Not that he preached or lectured on topics of morality—the man's nature would have made that impossible. But in his last years there was scarcely a letter or an address which did not breathe his conception of simple duty and honesty as the greatest things in life. We treasure this moral influence as a part of a priceless heritage he left us.

"And what a heritage it is! This American lad, without money and without a college education, rising to the highest elective office in the land! But through it all he preserved the great and simple life of his childhood, and he became the champion of the principles of his party. Through discord and strife his eyes were steady, his heart brave, his will resolute, and his hope unquenchable. Is this not a heritage for which the American people can well give thanks to the Almighty?"

Cared Little for Public Opinion.

Hilary A. Herbert spoke of the political struggles of the Cleveland administrations and compared the history of that time with the difficulties that beset Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln. Cleveland, he said, was worthy to stand with the other three. His position was unique, and of all our Presidents he had cared less for public opinion.

"Washington had his troubles with political parties," said Mr. Herbert, "and his contemporaries thought him too much of an aristocrat. Jefferson had bitter enemies and the whole people criticised him severely. Lincoln was a democrat of the people. He was made the object of conspiracy by the men he trusted. Cleveland's hand guided us through the storm that raged between 1893 and 1897 and saved sound money for the Nation. The panic he inherited grew to a storm and the storm grew to a hurricane, and it almost wrecked his party. Through it all he was calm and serene. 'Of all men I ever knew,' Bayard said of him, 'Cleveland is the best poised and the strongest.' I think that is true, and those who knew him best, loved and admired him the most."

President Hibben, who knew Cleveland as a Trustee of Princeton, spoke of the late President's relation to education and his intellectual qualities.

"We came to regard Mr. Cleveland," he said, "as one of the great counsellors of education, and in this relation we had the greatest esteem for the power of his mind. He had the rare gift of being able to take a position at the centre and heart of a question. He was particularly interested in the higher studies of the university and those which fit men for teachers. He became the Chairman of our Committee of Graduate Studies, and as we are now building our graduate school, it is appropriate that the tower which will rise on the highest point of ground on the campus should be called after his name."

Dr. Joseph D. Bryant told of his first meeting with Cleveland at his inaugural reception as Governor in 1883, and of his subsequent long friendship with him. As a public official, Dr. Bryant said, Cleveland took no account of his time or comfort and did not murmur under the burden of responsibility. He toiled while his enemies slept. Of himself he never manifested concern, but he was everywhere solicitous for the welfare of those around him.

Took Pains With Everything.

"He was a man of infinite humor," continued Dr. Bryant. "Practical joking was not to his liking and he would not encourage it in others nor indulge in it himself. He was temperate in all things unless unduly irritated by those who would annoy him persistently or selfishly, and then appropriate and emphatic remarks were made and fully comprehended. He was a man who took great pains. To a toy for his children he gave the same care that he gave to a public document. All his life's actions were epitomized in his last rational utterance, when he said: 'I have tried so hard to do my duty.'"

Congressman Hardwick spoke for the South, where, he said, as far as he could find out, the name of Cleveland was held higher than ever before. He said: "We have for Cleveland very deep respect and esteem. In his death we had a great sorrow and we have a great pride in his cherished fame which we share with all other Americans."

At the close of the speeches Mrs. Cleveland shook hands with many of those who attended the meeting. Mr. Livingston announced the formation of the Cleveland Memorial Association and invited membership from everybody in sympathy with the ideals of the late President.

Some of those who attended the meeting were President Finley of City College, St. Clair McKelway, Dr. A. Jacobi, F. R. Coudert, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, Judge McAdoo, George Gordon Battle, J. F. Allen, President of the Georgia Society, John A. Mason, secretary to Gov. Dix, Congressman William Sulzer and Rabbi Joseph Silverman.

AT CLEVELAND'S BIRTHPLACE.

Services at Caldwell, N. J., Attended by Mrs. Cleveland.

Special to The New York Times.

CALDWELL, N. J., March 17.—Services in commemoration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Grover Cleveland were held to-night in the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Cleveland attended the services in which the congregations of the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches joined, and which the Rev. Nelson B. Chester conducted. The speakers were President Finley of City College, New York; Dr. Paul Van Dyke, and Dr. John D. Bryant, who was Cleveland's physician.

The church in which the services were conducted is a short distance from the house in which Cleveland was born, and seventy-five years ago his father was its pastor. A movement has been started to establish the old Cleveland manse as a memorial to the late President, and a contract has been signed by which the property is secured to the committee. The actual campaign for the larger memorial fund that has been raised outside of Caldwell, which will furnish $5,000, has begun.

MAKES PLEA FOR MERE MAN.

Boston Lecturer Starts Movement to Free the Slaves of Women.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 17.—"A veritable outbreak of human progress is beginning," said Morrison I. Swift, lecturing in Sheafs Hall this afternoon, on "How Women Have Womanized Man."

"Old ideas are crumbling at a rate never before known. The enlightenment of the last ten years has almost equalled that of the past 500. We know, too, that enlightenment has only begun and that the grand changes are yet to come.

"One remarkable phase of this awakening is woman's attack on man. She can show easily that man's reign over the earth has been a failure. He has been far more a brute than human. Woman is rightly revolting against man, because in his present debased character he is a poor companion and because the world cannot be regenerated while he remains a semi-brute.

"But the revolt is accompanied by the dangerous fallacy that woman is much better than man. A good many women seem really to believe this and to think that if the world were made over upon the pattern of their ideas it would be a much more perfect world. Women need regeneration quite as much as men do. A society built on the average woman's ideals would be more horrible than present society. That is why many highminded men are afraid to give her the vote.

"It is time for man to cry out for emancipation from woman and to start a movement parallel to votes for women for the liberation of his sex. There has been a great double enslavement. Man, the stronger, first enslaved woman and made her his doll. Then she turned upon him and subjugated him with her doll qualities. She dollified him."

PREDICTS SUFFRAGE BOMBS.

Chicago Women Are Told English Suffragists Will Use Them.

CHICAGO, March 17.—Bombs may soon be substituted for window-smashing bricks in England Dr. Jessie Murray of London told a meeting of the Woman's Party here to-night.

"You in America do not realize to what economic straits the women of England have been reduced," she said. "We are fighting for life and honor.

"The men are taking away our means of livelihood by legislation. They are robbing our working women of the privilege to work when they are eager and willing to work to support themselves. The men are crying for their places.

"It has reached the stage of a civil war. People have asked why we do not substitute bombs for bricks. If our demands are not acceded to soon, I assure you bombs will be used."

SOCIALISM INJURES HOME, SAYS VAUGHAN

Cathedral Congregation Hears Its Doctrines Destroy Sanctity of Marriage.

MAKE MOTHERHOOD A TRADE

"Better a Massacre of the Innocents Than That," the Jesuit Priest Declares Emphatically.

Socialism, the enemy of the home, as contrasted with Catholicism, the enemy of divorce, was the theme of "Socialism and the Family," the fourth of the Lenten conference sermons preached yesterday by Father Bernard Vaughan, the English Jesuit. A huge congregation filled to overflowing all the seats and aisle spaces of St. Patrick's Cathedral, for yesterday was the feast day of its patron saint, and, besides, Cardinal Farley celebrated the high pontifical mass for the first time since his return from Rome.

"My implacable quarrel with Socialism is this," said Father Vaughan, "that in its recognized classics, in its propaganda, in its press, and in its unguarded utterances it propounds and proclaims a gospel about wedlock and family life altogether subversive of the teaching of Christianity. No sane man can give himself up to the study of Socialism without coming to the conclusion that, taken as an ethical and as an economic theory of life, it is committed to doctrines about marriage which it would seem must inevitably destroy the home, and so undermine the State. Socialism is founded on a philosophy of life which makes the indissolubility of marriage ridiculous.

"When you rise up and fight Socialism you are fighting to save the child and the family, for it would make motherhood not a duty, but a trade, and would make of the children but tools of the State. Oh, my brethren, better the Massacre of the Innocents than that such a thing should be! It is an onslaught on the home."

Then, in honor of the day, the preacher turned his discourse upon Ireland.

"The Irish are a great people," he said, "and when I look at Erin Go-Bragh I see a picture of brave men and pure women, and you are splendidly a great people because you have taught the world the meaning of the sanctity of married life. Have done with the flirting, with the coquetry with Socialism. Check it. Baffle it. Balk it. They would stir up trouble between the Irish and the clergy in Ireland, between the people and the priests. I am told by some that in this country the Irish are already rallying to the red flag. Oh, rally to the green flag; and if there be red at all upon it, let it be the blood of martyrs! Rally, oh, my brethren, to the faith of the fatherland!

"Until Socialism shall have shifted its centre of gravity from anti-Christian premises, until Socialists shall have publicly renounced the philosophy of life as formulated by the founders of their cult, and until their men of light and leading shall have made it clear to us that Socialism indorses, upholds, and enforces the time-honored traditions of the Christian family and the Christian home, we have no alternative but to denounce Socialism from pulpit and platform, in public and in private, as a most insidious menace to the State, which must rest on its own God-given foundation, the home."

Socialism and the Family Life.

Father Vaughan pointed out that in the Catholic Church marriage is absolutely indissoluble. There could never be a compromise on this point. Nations might slip away, but Holy Church would never yield.

"If only man and wife made fuller allowance for their differences in tastes and in heredity, in temperament and in character; if, instead of exacting so much more, they were to be contented with so much less each from each; if, in a word, their demands upon one another's lives, instead of being measured by what each wanted from the other, were, on the contrary, to be regulated by what the other could give, then, after long years of wedded life, in the words of my poet, to the wife's fond whisper, 'More years have made me love thee more,' there might far oftener be heard the husband's firm reply, 'There is none I love like thee.'"

And not only, said he, is the Catholic faith forever opposed to divorce, but forever opposed to race suicide, and as he urged the repelling of the one from the home, so he appealed for the repulsion of the other from the chamber.

"Socialism, if we study it ethically, we shall find committed to a set of ideas about wedded life and its most sacred duties that are not only foreign but repulsive to those who have been trained in the school of Christ. I speak of the Socialist who is something more than a mere social reformer. The latter is a mere barnacle on the Ship of State—he may hinder progress, but he can never direct the course.

"The Socialist who is more than that cannot well avoid attacking the institution of the family as we know it. It is bred in him to do so, because it is an essential constituent of historical Socialism, and when I say this, I am borne out by a cloud of witnesses.

"Take the book called 'The Origin of the Family,' and referred to by Socialists as 'an intellectual treat,' a 'great Socialist classic.' In this work we are assured that 'monogamy was not founded on nature, but on economic considerations, namely, the victory of private property over primitive and natural collectivism.' The author informs us that under Socialism marriage will no longer be indissoluble. He informs us that marriage is moral only as long as love lasts.

"'The duration,' he writes, 'of an attack of individual sex-love varies considerably according to individual disposition, especially in men. A positive cessation of fondness, or its replacement by a new passionate love, makes a separation a blessing for both parties and society.'

"No passage in that Socialist classic could be made to fit in with the Gospel of Christianity. Again, take the Socialist's international textbook on the woman question. 'Woman' has run through more than fifty editions in Germany alone. In it are passages such as this:

"'The satisfaction of the sexual impulse is as much a private concern of each individual as the satisfaction of any other natural impulse. No one is accountable to any one else, and no third person has a right to interfere. * * * If between man and woman who have entered into a union, incompatibility, disappointment, or revulsion should appear, morality commands a dissolution of the union which has become unnatural, and therefore immoral.'

Opposed to the Gospel of Christ.

"This Socialist classic, full of passages such as I have cited, differs in every line from the gospel of Christ, as all the world may see.

"Once more, in a work written by the greatest man the Socialist movement has yet claimed in England and entitled, 'Socialism, Its Growth and Outcome,' we read that under a Socialistic regime 'property in children would cease to exist, and every infant that came into the world would be born into full citizenship, and would enjoy all its advantages, whatever the conduct of its parents might be. Thus a new development of the family would take place on the basis, not of a predetermined, life-long business arrangement, to be formally and nominally held to, irrespective of circumstances, but on mental inclination and affection, an association terminable at the will of either party.'

"This teaching requires no comment from me. Lastly, we are told in 'Socialism, Positive and Negative,' a work described as 'brilliant, fearless, searching,' that 'Socialist parties do not attack religion, the family, and the State,' but the would-be brilliant author makes a point of reminding us that 'Socialist philosophy proves conclusively that the legislation of the positive political and economic ideals of Socialism involves the atrophy of religion, the metamorphosis of the family and the suicide of the State, as we understand it.' This quotation speaks for itself."

Father Vaughan said that if he were to be told by individual Socialists that he had misrepresented entirely the Socialist position with regard to marriage, its rights and its duties, he would reply that what he had said he had drawn from their own very much read and very highly recommended classics. Instead of finding fault with him, they would do well, he said, first of all to issue an expurgated edition of their classics or else to withdraw them once for all from the book market, repudiating as un-Socialistic the teachings which they unfold and propound.

"And publicly," he said, "I wish to express my indebtedness to the Socialist press for reporting my remarks so fairly and so fully."

Father Vaughan will omit the sermon on Socialism on Palm Sunday and will preach the final one on Easter.

WIDOW'S LIGHTHOUSE VIGIL.

Operated Bird Rock Light Since Husband Was Drowned Ten Days Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 17.—A wireless dispatch from the steamer Seal reports sighting signals of distress flying from the Bird Rock Lighthouse on Magdalen Islands. The Captain sent a boat to ascertain the cause and found that Peter Bourke, the keeper, had been drowned ten days ago, and that since then his wife and little child, the only occupants, had kept the light in operation.

The woman was greatly weakened from her long and lonely vigil. One of the steamer's crew will operate the light until the Government appoints a new keeper.
